Sgt. J. G. Taylor Is Commended

Is Cited For Role In Feeding Troops

For taking charge of feeding troops bound for the invasion of Southern France, Staff Sergeant John Gould Taylor, husband of the former Miss Jessie Thornell of Sharpsburg, has been commended by his command ng officer.

by his commanding officer.

The citation reads: "This letter of commendation in the behalf of Staff Sgt. John G. Taylor is but a small tribute for his outstanding performance while enroute to take further participation in the invasion of Southern France.

"Sgt. Taylor did willing take charge of the messing of the men on board the ship. Even though the food was of the ordinary B ration type, he went to great lengths working long hours beyond his call of duty to provide most palatable dishes. This contributed greatly to the good mortale and general welfare of all who have been confined to such small space. Sgt. Taylor is truly an outstanding solvier whose devotion to duty has made many men happy and is appreciated oy all.

happy and is appreciated oy all.

"Lt. Col. Charles P. West"
Lt. -Col. D. E. Swift has also written: "It gives me great pleasure to note that Sgt. Taylor's performance of this temporary duty was outstanding enough to merit this commendation from his troop commander. In performing his functions so capably. Sgt. Taylor has brought credit not only to himself but to our battalion."

Sgt. Taylor, who was with the forces meeting on the Anzio beachhead, wears the Good Conduct ribbon, the Italian campaign ribbon and the Distinguished Unit Badge streamers. His combat engineer battallon has received the Presidential Citation for heroism
