

OCTOBER IS FULL OF SWEET FUN!

Candy for Fines?!? Wear your costume! Where? When? Read on!

Have you been avoiding the library lately? Is it because there are some old fines haunting you? Oh boy, does the Harnett County Library have the answer for you! During the Month of October, you can pay your overdue fines with a bag of candy. No matter if you owe $2.00 or $30.00 in fines, a bag of candy will wipe them out. This is only good for fines, if there is a lost item you will still need to pay for that.

All bags of candy must be unopened with individually wrapped pieces. The candy will help at the Halloween Carnival. The Carnival will be on Saturday Oct 28, from 6:00-8:00 PM.

Children ages 2-12 are invited to visit. This program is sponsored by the Harnett County Public Library, with help from many volunteers. This year there will be trick or treating, carnival games, and more. Make sure the library is on your list of places to visit this Halloween!

ANDERSON CREEK PUBLIC LIBRARY

Anderson Creek Public Library participated in the "The Smartest Card" campaign in September.

Each child who brought a parent to sign up for a library card was rewarded with a picture book of their choice.

In case you don't know where the Anderson Creek Public Library is located, it is in the Anderson Creek Primary School, on Anderson Creek School Road off Highway 210 in Harnett County.

The library is now operating on winter hours:
Tuesday-Wednesday-Thursday, 4-8 pm; Saturday
10am-2pm.

The library features books, magazines, videos and DVDs, and books on tape and CD, as well as high-speed internet access for public use. Patrons may also take advantage of interlibrary lending with any of the five other locations in Harnett County. More than 10,000 people each month are served by the libraries in the Harnett County Library System. The system owns more than 200,000 books, magazines, cassettes, compact discs, books on tape, and videos.

For more information please call 910-814-4012 or visit the Harnett County Public Library Website at These database are available through the Library's Online Catalog, Vubis Smart, and your library card!

Ask us how to access these valuable resources.

Get email notices from the library

You can elect to receive email notices as well as paper notices from the library. All you have to do is ask staff to update your library card with a valid email address and request email notice. If you decide later that your email box cannot stand the load of email notices we can stop sending them.

The key benefit is that you will receive an email notice a few days earlier than the paper notice. This allows you to return the item sooner, with lower fines. It also saves paper, postage, and staff time.

Remember, though, you will have to allow emails to come from the library. So, if you have something set on your email account to block email from unknown senders, you will need to add @harnett.org to your active list or your email will bounce back to the library.

Another way to save money is to renew your items online. You can use your library card number and your pin code to access your account from the online catalog. If you do not have a pin code, you can call or visit the library and we will generate one for you. If you lose your pin code we can reset it and email you a new one.

Not only can you renew items online, you can place reserves and the library will give you a call or send you an email when the item is at the desk waiting for you. If the item is on loan to someone else you will be notified when the item has been returned and available for you. Each day we print a list of items with reserves that are on the shelf; we pull these items and bring them to the desk for you. How easy is that?

Libraries level the playing field for local businesses

How? By providing valuable information resources and services for local entrepreneurs. Libraries provide local businesses with cost-effective access to information, education for the workforce, and increased community vitality. Your HCPL System is encouraging businesses to explore their library and sign up for a library card. Libraries impact the community's economic health by providing local business with cost-effective, current, and comprehensive information.

As our economy transitions from industry to information-based, strong public libraries help attract "knowledge workers" and are often cited as a reason why small businesses choose to locate in a particular community. The library is a center of lifetime learning, and benefits employers through programs ranging from classes in computer skills, business databases and other tools that prepare workers to play productive roles in our local business community.

A library card is not only a wise investment for business owners, but is the "smartest card" for all community members.
