demic Institution and Institute for Teachers

STATEMENT.

trial Academy was founded October 25, 1901, rtered under the laws of the State of fer such degrees as other schools of simi- nstitution is the extension and improve- ject of industrial education as a means of opening better and wider avenues of employment to colored people. While we do not lose sight of the ordinary branches taught in common schools, yet the chief aim is to drill the students in practical workmanship.

The school is divided into five general departments—Manual Training, Classical, Normal, Preparatory and a Summer Normal Institute for the special training of teachers.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT—This course is designed to give the pupil a thorough drill in the elementary branches of an English education.

NORMAL DEPARTMENT—In this department "teachers are prepared and equipped for their work." The full course covers three years, and the instruction given is with a view to the systematic training of teachers.

CLASSICAL DEPARTMENT—To complete the course in this department requires three years. The curriculum covers a complete course in Latin, Greek, Rhetoric, Logic, Geometry, Trigonometry, Bookkeeping, English Literature, Political Economy, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Biology, Chemistry, Astronomy, and Christian Evidences.

MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT—In this department the young men are taught the manual, industrial, and mechanical trades. The young women are taught the domestic sciences, such as sewing, millinery, laundering, cooking, etc.

A special course in Literature, and, also, in Music is provided.

Bible study through the entire courses.

Diplomas are given to those who complete the various prescribed courses.

Introductory

TO THE BUSINESS MEN OF NEW BERN:

We published for you in 1904 our first Directory of your city. We were then strangers in your midst and the value of our work could not be fully determined nor appreciated by you until you were afforded an opportunity to examine the work carefully. That you have done so, we are satisfied. That our work has stood the test, we have no reason to doubt, as we still retain a large per cent. of our first patrons, as well as acquiring many new ones.

And in presenting to you this, our second Directory, we do so with pride and pleasure—pride, because we feel confident we are presenting you with an up-to-date Directory. It is the aim of our company to make every new edition more attractive than the previous one. Pleaseure, because we found your merchants and the public generally, more ready to aid and contribute to its success.

Lastly, our work has been thoroughly done by experieneed and competent men. With the printing and binding more than ordinary care has been taken, and we trust that this issue will prove so satisfactory that it will find its way to the counting-room or office of every business man and public spirited citizen. To our patrons and those who have aided us in the gathering of data, we extend our thanks.

Very respectfully,

HILL DIRECTORY COMPANY,
Richmond, Va.
