OWNERS AND PUBLISHERS.

RICHMOND, VA.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1897, by the J. L. HILL PRINTING COMPANY, in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington.

PREFATORY REMARKS.

In presenting this their first number of the Wilmington City Directory, the publishers have had to overcome the prejudices and dissatisfaction of the entire business community, because of the very imperfect last issue and the consequent uncertainty and doubt created thereby in the minds of the people as to what the character, correctness, and usefulness of the present edition might be.

The last (1894) Directory was an imperfectly compiled list of names, without business or location—only the place of residence being given. In the general part of the present volume will be found the name (arranged in strictly alphabetical order), the business, place of business, and place of residence; co-partnerships, with names of individual members in parenthesis; Incorporated Companies, with names of officers; Churches, with pastors' names; Schools, public or private, with principal, and after such names as salesmen, clerks, and others holding official or clerical positions, the place where or by whom employed. Following the general will be found a complete Business Directory, classified alphabetically by business and name, and name after business. Preceding the General Directory will be found much useful and interesting miscellaneous matter pertaining to the State and City governments; Banks, Insurance, and other Incorporated Companies; Secret Societies and Beneficial Orders; Churches, etc., etc.; also the Post Offices of North Carolina and Virginia, names of streets and their description, and the 'Phone Nos. of all the patrons of the Directory.

Appended will be found the number of names under each letter in the edition of 1894 and the present one. It speaks for itself.

The above shows an increase of 2,862 names, or over 59 per cent. In the new or recently-grown cities of the country, the publishers use as low as 3 in multiplying the number of names in the Directory to ascertain the population; in the old cities, $3\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$. Taking the smaller one, $3\frac{1}{2}$, as a multiplier, we would be given a population of 26,916—all of which we feel quite sure Wilmington has.

In conclusion, we thank all who have assisted us in any way, and particularly those who, by their generous patronage, have made the publication a possibility for the future.

Respectfully,

J. L. HILL PRINTING COMPANY.

THE CITY OF WILMINGTON has a population of about 25,000. It is situated on the Cape Fear river, twenty-five miles from its mouth, and at the junction of the northwest and northeast branches. The harbor is commodious, and is a resort for vessels from all parts of the world. A depth of twenty-two feet on bar and in the river enables a class of large vessels to come directly to the wharves and to take on full loads.

The exports are chiefly cotton, cotton goods, timber, lumber, naval stores, and numerous miscellaneous articles. Wilmington ranks as the sixth cotton port of the United States, and this product is shipped all over the world. In addition to export and domestic shipments otherwise, over thirty-one foreign steamships were engaged in 1896 in the transportation of cotton to European ports, some of them carrying cargoes of 11,000 or 12,000 bales each. About 214,000 bales were handled on the Wilmington market in 1896.

There is a direct steamer line to New York, and a good business is done by sailing vessels to all domestic ports. Considerable trade is also conducted with the West Indies by sailing vessels and steamships. There are five railroad lines reaching the city, besides a short line to the coast, which handles quantities of coast products.

Fish and game are abundant. There are two fine pleasure and health resorts on the beach, reached by rail and steamer. This beach is said to be one of the finest on either side of the continent.

The soil around Wilmington is most admirably adapted for truck farming, for fruit cultivation and for stock and poultry raising. The soil is light and loamy, with a strong, rich subsoil of clay, and every kind of vegetable, all the small fruits, pears, peaches, plums, watermelons, &c., thrive and are profitably grown. The strawberry business alone engages the attention of many farmers, while potatoes, asparagus, lettuce, tomatoes, cauliflower, blackberries, whortleberries, &c., furnish a source of large revenue to truckers. The season being about two weeks ahead of Norfolk and following after the Florida crop is exhausted, enables an advantageous shipment of products to Northern markets, with remunerative prices, while the home market affords a good base to fall back upon when shipping becomes less profitable. There is first-class railroad service to Northern markets, express trains especially for this business being run during the season.

The exceeding mildness of the winter, the cold weather not exceeding two months in duration, makes expensive sheltering of stock unnecessary and decreases to a minimum the time during which feeding from the barn is required. Grazing is possible during the other ten months, and the native grass (crab) furnishes good grazing and makes a fine hay. Raising of poultry can also be made successful and lucrative.

The climate is unusually equable, the means being: For spring, 63.0°; summer, 78.3°; autumn, 64.0°; winter, 48.7°.

Malignant diseases are unknown. The death rate is abnormally low.

No city of the South offers better natural and acquired advantages for men of energy and enterprise. Nothing is required but thrift to control a large and profitable commerce, while an extensive and important section of country in the interior would easily be tributary to its trade.

THE WILMINGTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, composed of Wilmington's most progressive and active business men, is alive to every possibility of advancement of the city's prosperity. Its influence is at the command of all persons seeking to establish business enterprises in the city or institutions of public benefit.

The Chamber solicits correspondence, and promises the best attention to all inquiries made of it.

J. R. WHITEHEAD, President.

E. S. REID, Cashier.

CHATHAM SAVINGS BANK.

CHATHAM, VA., May 3, 1897.

VIRGINIA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Richmond, Va. :

Dear Sirs, -- You ask my opinion of the graduates of your school, and in reply will say that we have had one of your graduates -- Mr. Frank Marshall, Jr. -- in our employ for the past three years as stenographer, book-keeper, and general assistant, and he has given entire satisfaction.

Young men -- and I might say women, too -- who have not acquired a thorough knowledge of stenography, book-keeping, and penmanship, stand poor chance of obtaining clerical positions, and I congratulate you on the good work you are doing in qualifying them to measure up to the requirements of business men.

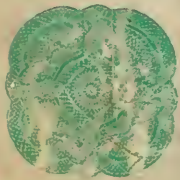

Very truly, E. S. REID, Cashier.
