The following song was sung by Brother Nathaniel Pinkham, and at the request of several Members of the Grand Lodge, is printed and transmitted to the subordinate Lodges.

BEFORE I became a Free Mason,
Some said it was a damnable thing ;
Some said 'twas witchcraft and treason,
And swore that the devil reign'd king :
But I thought to myself I would venture,
And went without further delay,
With a firm resolution to enter,
To a Lodge then I hasted away.

II.

I met an old friend and relation,
Whom I heard was a Mason before ;
To whom I soon made application—
He carried the news to the door,
And bid me to tarry with patience,
And strait to the room did repair ;
So soon he return'd with an answer,
And bid me to come and prepare.

III.

Good Heavens ! then how my heart panted,
Expecting to meet with old nick,
The report I had taken for granted,
My conscience began for to prick ;
But I found it a matter more serious,
Tho' never a word I yet spoke ;
The way that I went was mysterious,
I felt in no humor to joke.

IV.

Thro' dark, dismal shades how I blunder'd,
Lord help me in private I cried ;
With a voice unto me seem'd thunder,
One question my friend and my guide :
Says Brother who is this you're leading,
My case unto him he made known ;
My guide was my lawyer in pleading,
He carried my cause to the throne.

V.

Then wisdom he taught me my duty,
He gave me new light to mine eyes,
I was struck with such majestic beauty,
It filled my poor heart with surprise.
When he told me that I was his Brother,
And that we had nothing to fear,
So we love and respect one another,
So come and partake of our cheer.

VI.

But what I there saw I wont tell you,
But this I can say without fear ;
I found something good for my belly,
And believe me there is no devil there.
So now for to tell you my mind, sir,
But not what was told unto me ;
Before I went there I was blind, sir,
But now with both eyes I can see.
