Bennett College Grad Join Japanese College Staff

Greensboro, N. C.—Teaching piano and voice to girls who neither speak nor understand English is just one of the obstacles that Miss Charlotte Alston, 1954 Bennett College graduate, has overcome since joining the faculty at Jogakuin College in Hiroshima, Japan.

Miss Alston uses an interpreter for this class but, fortunately, the girls in two other classes speak English since they are English majors. These classes include history, theory, appreciation, singing and creative melody writing. She also directs the college choir.

"I have 28 piano students," Miss Alston reports, "ranging in age from five to 24 years. I do some teaching at the college studio but the major portion of the piano work is done at my house where we have converted the "big room" into a music studio."

Miss Alston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Alston of Greensboro, is the seventh child of a family of eight children. She went to Japan last year to serve three years as a missionary under the auspices of the Methodist Church.

Most Bennett grads follow their schooling

GREENSBORO, N. C. --Although teaching still attracts the majority of Bennett College graduates for that job, an increasing number are to be found in graduate and professional schools and in a number of hitherto unentered occupations.

The foregoing is based upon a tabulation of the results of a questionaire sent to the 100 members of the class of 1955 and returned by 76 of them.

Ten members of the class were in graduate school during the past academic year and most of these are expected to continue their studies.

WHILE A a large number of the graduates have married during their first year out, only six of those reporting indicated that they were giving full time to homemaking.

Five are employed as secretaries and three as librarians either in municipal or school libraries. One graduate is a member of the armed forces and another is a policewoman in a large Eastern city. Another is a missionary serving in Africa.

One is a saleswoman, another a beautician and still another is a registered nurse. Seven reported that they were unemployed at the time of reply.

It was also noted that of the 39 graduates who taught last year, several have plans to continue their studies within a year and are merely using teaching as a means to an end.

Than War

Methodist Leader Says Visit Here

Dr. Eric W. Baker, a genial and energetic man whose life is wrapped up in his work as secretary of the Methodist Conference of Great Britain, left Greensboro last night with a word of warning.

"Tell the people that they should not fear war," he said; "To fear war is worse than war."

Here in Greensboro over the weekend as a guest of Bennett College, Dr. Baker expressed concern that so many Americans he has met during the past few months talk as though war with Russia is inevitable.

No Stranger Here

No stranger to this country, Dr. Baker had come here this year as a delegate to the recent World Council of Churches conference held at Evanston, Ill. Since that time he has traveled throughout the Eastern part of the United States.

"There's so much talk about war wherever I go," he said. Dr. Baker noted that any large scale war would probably destroy many countries and leave Russia, China and the United States as world powers.

25 for Jones

When David Dallas Jones became president of Bennett College at Greensboro, N.C.,* in 1926, it consisted of four ugly buildings, a campus that looked like a corn-and-turnip patch, ten students, and $000 in the bank. A former Methodist co-educational institution founded in 1873, Bennett had run downhill. The church decided to turn it into a women's school, and to run it tapped Dr. Jones, a Greensboro native and Y.M.C.A. secretary who had virtually no experience in the field of education.

Today Bennett is known as the "Negro Vassar." It has 42 acres of beautifully landscaped campus, 31 American Colonial-style buildings, assets of more than $3,500,000, and an enrollment of 438 girls from 32 states and several foreign countries. This week in Washington, Dr. Jones, the man who made it all possible, won Christian Education Magazine's award as a symbol of his achievement in the 25 years of his presidency.

The first few years were tough for Jones and Bennett. Then in 1932 the doctor got the General Education Board to give $250,000 of Rockefeller money, which was matched by Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer, a chemical heiress. Over the years, contributions from both have totaled $1,885,000, giving the college a firm financial footing. Dr. Jones got his money by showing off his tidied campus and his gracious-mannered girls.

The girls, whose yearly tuition and expenses run to about $625 apiece, must take their turn at such tasks as cleaning their rooms, scrubbing floors, and waiting on tables. When a girl enters, she is screened for defects, then urged to correct them in the clothing clinic, writing clinic, and in personal hygiene or etiquette courses. Many graduates, with a B.A. or B.S., become teachers or social workers, although some go into the arts, like Maidie Norman, star of the film "The Well," or the sciences, like Dr. Jones's own daughter who is a physician on the staff of Massachusetts General Hospital.

Rated "A" by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Bennett has a faculty of whites and Negroes, Jews and Gentiles. It is small by design, for Dr. Jones tries to stress "the dignity and worth of the individual." At 64, he has more than succeeded.

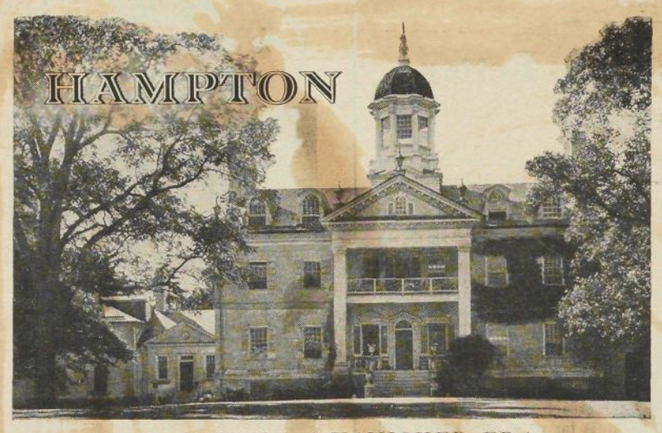
FAMOUS AMERICAN HOMES



SYMBOL OF A VANISHED ERA

Because of the danger of wolves in the neighborhood, while Hampton was being built, the workmen were allowed to quit early each day in order to reach home before dark. This stately mansion near Baltimore was started in 1783 and was built by Charles Ridgely whose family had been early settlers in Maryland and had amassed wealth and won prominence in the colony.

Fond of hunting and good-fellowship, the genial Charles differed sharply from his domineering, intensely religious wife Rebecca. It was said she was the only living creature he feared. As Hampton was the fulfillment of a long-cherished ambition, when it neared completion he proposed to hold a lavish housewarming which Rebecca violently opposed. Her husband had his way but on the appointed evening, while he and his friends waxed merry at a stag party, Rebecca conducted a prayer meeting in another part of the house.

In 1790, a few months after the housewarming, Ridgely died and, having no children, left the estate to his nephew Charles Carnan with the proviso that he assume the name Ridgely. Rebecca, who could have had Hampton for her lifetime, preferred to accept another dwelling. Charles Carnan Ridgely devoted himself to developing the terraced gardens which became known for their beauty. He was Governor of Maryland for three years, and was married, oddly enough, to Rebecca's youngest sister.

After remaining in the possession of the Ridgely family for more than a century and a half, Hampton was deeded to the nation in 1947. Under the custodianship of the Society for the Preservation of Maryland Antiquities it is operated for the National Park Service.

Readin', 'Ritin', and TV

How does television affect the study habits and grades of children? The latest answer came last week from a survey conducted among some 1,000 Cincinnati public- and parochial-school children by Xavier University: The difference between TV- and non-TV-watching children was practically nil. Parental control was also found to be no factor, although "poorer television habits and lower IQ's, lower parental control and poorer school achievement tend to be found in the same child."

The survey, financed by a grant from the Crosley Broadcasting Corp.—operators of three TV stations—revealed the amazing fact that the children studied spent 30 hours a week in front of the television screen, 25 hours in school.

BENNETT PRESIDENT GETS $260,000 IN CHECKS

Dr. David D. Jones, left, president of Bennett College is shown above getting $260,000 in checks from N. S. Calhoun, chairman of the college's Quarter Century Drive. One of the checks Calhoun is handing Dr. Jones is for $75,000, given the college by the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Mich. The funds will be used to pay off the college's debt on its new Student Union Building.

Bennett Debt Wiped Out By Grant

Foundation Gives $75,000 Check

The presentation of a $75,000 check from the Kresge Foundation has made Bennett College entirely debt-free, Dr. David D. Jones, president of the local Negro institution, announced yesterday.

The Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Mich., a philanthropic organization established in 1924, pledged the $75,000 in the event Bennett College raised the $180,000 before the deadline.

Pay Off Debt

Totaling $260,000, the money will be used to pay a debt the college incurred a few years ago to help build a Student Union Building on the campus. Cost of the new construction was $500,000. Approximately $300,000 was available to the school and it had to raise the remainder.

Calhoun accepted the chairmanship of the campaign which was called the Quarter Century Drive.

Dr. Jones yesterday pointed out that the college has never lost a conditional gift. The first such offer was made in 1932 when the General Education Board of the Methodist Church contributed $250,000.

Notes Generosity

Terming the Kresge grant "one of the finest and most appreciated gifts in the history of the college," Dr. Jones noted that the generosity of Greensboro residents was largely responsible for the meeting of the goal.

Dr. Jones was honored for his 25-year presidency last week by the Christian Education Magazine at a special banquet in Washington. Speaking at the banquet, Dr. Jones pointed out that the college has a present endowment of $1,050,000 and that the school's physical plant is valued at nearly $2,500,000.

Named for Lyman Bennett of Troy, N. Y., the school was chartered by the state in 1889. When Dr. Jones assumed the presidency in 1926, 10 girls were enrolled. Today there are more than 400 students and the institution enjoys an "A" rating by the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States.

Fund Campaign Success Told By Bennett Prexy

GREENSBORO Jan. 12. — Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, announced yesterday that the citizens of this North Carolina city along with generous help from alumni of the college, faculty, and students, have succeeded in raising slightly more than $180,000 in the Quarter Century Fund Drive under the direction of Chairman N. S. Calhoun, and have thereby qualified to receive a grant of $75,000 from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Michigan.

Both Dr. Jones and Mr. Calhoun expressed their deep appreciation to all concerned — those who gave their contributions and those many workers who aided during the campaign. The grant from the Kresge Foundation automatically makes Bennett College one of the few debt-free institutions of its kind in the South. This Foundation, created by Sebastian S. Kresge and incorporated in 1924, was to be for the purposes of "promotion of eleemosynary, philanthropic and charitable means of any and all of the means of human progress whether they be for the benefit of religious, charitable, benevolent, or educational institutions of public benefactions of whatever name or nature." The Foundation has for a number of years made an annual grant to the United Negro College Fund.

The effort to raise $260,000 was an all-out drive to relieve the Methodist College for Negro women of a debt incurred when it became necessary to build a Student Union Building housing a new dining room and recreation area for the students. The building cost well over $500,000 and some $300,000 was available at the time. The remainder had to be raised, and the Quarter Century Fund was thus inaugurated in 1950.

The drive gained momentum when word was received from the Kresge Foundation that trustees would grant the last $75,000 for the fund if the college should raise the initial $180,000 by December 31, 1951.

Dr. Jones pointed out that a record of the college, that of never losing a conditional gift, still stands as a result of the drive which was held in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of the school under his leadership. The first such conditional offer was made in 1932 when the General Education Board contributed $250,000.

The physical plant of the school is now valued at $2,496,236.04 with an endowment of $1,050,000. Since June of 1950 Bennett has put into capital improvements $490,520.74, investing this money in new improvements.

Bennett Drive Goal Reached; Grant Earned

GREENSBORO, Jan. 12 — Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, announced yesterday that the citizens of this North Carolina city, along with generous help from alumni of the college, faculty, and students, have succeeded in raising slightly more than $180,000 in the Quarter Century Fund Drive under the direction of Chairman N. S. Calhoun, and have thereby qualified to receive a grant of $75,000 from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Michigan.

The effort to raise $260,000 was an all-out drive to relieve the Methodist College for Negro Women of a debt incurred when it became necessary to build a Student Union Building housing a new dining room and recreation area for the students. 5 fe GIFT 13N WA1044a J14

GREENSBORO (UP) - Bennett College, Methodist school for Negro girls, was debt-free today, thanks to a $75,000 gift from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit.

Dr. David Jones, president of the college, said the gift was offered on condition the college raise $180,000. N. S. Calhoun of Greensboro was chairman of the successful drive to raise the money.

Bennett Fund Tops $180,000, Claims Grant

GREENSBORO. — More than $180,000 raised in the Bennett College Quarter Century Fund Drive enabled the institution to receive a grant of $75,000 from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Dr. David D. Jones, said yesterday.

The drive was under the direction of N. S. Calhoun and contributions were received from alumni, faculty, students and Greensboro citizens.

The grant from the Kresge Foundation automatically makes Bennett College one of the few debt-free institutions of its kind in the South. The Foundation, created by Sebastian S. Kresge and incorporated in 1924, has for a number of years made an annual grant to the United Negro College Fund.

The effort to raise $260,000 was an all-out drive to relieve the college for Negro women of a debt incurred when it became necessary to build a student union building housing a new dining room and recreation area for the students. The building cost over $500,000 and $300,000 was available at the time. The remainder had to be raised and the Quarter Century Fund was inaugurated in 1950.

The drive gained momentum when word was received from the Kresge Foundation that trustees would grant the last $75,000 for the fund if the college should raise the initial $180,000 by December 31, 1951.

Dr. Jones pointed out that a record of the college, of never losing a conditional gift, still stands as a result of the drive which was held in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of the school under his leadership. The first such conditional offer was made in 1932 when the General Education Board contributed $250,000.

The physical plant of the school is now valued at $2,496,236.04, with an endowment of $1,050,000. Since June of 1950 Bennett has put into capital improvements $490,520.74.

Dollars That Really Count

It is doubtful that Greensburghers have ever been asked to contribute as valuable dollars as the $17,407.05 which Bennett College is endeavoring to raise before the end of the year.

At stake is a $75,000 conditional donation from the Kresge Foundation. This sum will be forthcoming if the college raises a total of $150,000, within the stipulated period ending December 31, 1951, which will be sufficient, when augmented by the Kresge donation, to complete payment for construction and furnishing of Bennett's new Student Union Building and thus leave the college debt free. And the meaning of "debt free" cannot be appreciated unless you know how Dr. David Jones and the institution which he heads have operated all these years.

As of the last public announcement friends, students, alumni and faculty of the college had raised $132,592.95, which appears to be about all they can do. So anyone who aids in the raising of the additional $17,407.05 will actually enable the college to realize $7.50 for every dollar of donation. And what this money will mean to the institution in a deeper sense is incalculable.

The Daily News is confident that those who know what Bennett College has done and is doing, what has been put into the college by its leaders, faculty, students and benefactors and what it in turn has put into the community and far, far beyond will rally to the appeal which it is now making and thus assure the richness of its potential return.

Bennett has all along paid its way. It is little indeed that it is asking of the community it has served so well in the year-end appeal to those who believe in it and its mission.

Bennett College May Lose $75,000 Gift

Bennett College of Greensboro, N. C., will lose a gift of $75,000 from the Kresge Foundation of New York unless the school's Quarter Century Fund Drive raises $23,000 by the end of December. The money was offered to the college with the understanding that the school raise the balance needed to pay for the new Student Union Building. College President David Jones said an anonymous donor has promised to pay the last $5,000 of the $23,000.

Allies Take Two Points But Later Lose Them Both

SEOUL, Korea, Jan. 8.—(AP)—United Nations infantrymen won then lost two important objectives today in the battle of Sasi Bulge, a bitter fight to recapture ground taken by the Reds December 28.

The United States Eighth Army communique, reporting this, did not identify the Western front objectives.

U. N. elements took one after a 15-minute fight with an enemy company and the other after a 10-minute engagement with a Red force of undetermined size.

However, the communique said, two Communist battalions supported by two tanks or self-propelled guns recaptured the first objective in a one-hour and 20-minute clash and a single Red battalion retook the second in a one-

Bennett College Head Gets Methoidst Award

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — The annual Christian Education Magazine award for 25 years of notable service as president of Bennett College was presented to Dr. David D. Jones as a climax of the first day's sessions of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church at a banquet of American University's Mary Graydon Hall last night. The sessions are being held at the Statler Hotel.

President J. Earl Moreland of Randolph Macon College in making the presentation described Dr. Jones as "a friend of his fellow man, a Christian gentleman and an educational statesman."

The citation said that Dr. Jones is one who in his local community of Greensboro, N. C., has made a record of excellent citizenship and who has wielded a great influence in the councils of the Methodist Church. It also called Dr. Jones a president "who at all times and in many situations has been a champion of better understanding and more harmonious relationships among men of all races and religions."

Dr. Jones was called a far-visioned educational leader who has been quick to sense needs and to institute such program features as a broad emphasis on homemaking, maintenance of a day nursery, and conferences and clinics for career women.

Mrs. Jones was presented to the group of college presidents and described as a woman who was there not as a wife of a Methodist college president but as one who through her own accomplishments had earned the right to attend.

Taft Claims Enough Votes Held For Coup

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — (AP) — Senator Taft (Republican, Ohio) claimed today that if all the pledges he now holds are translated into voting strength he will win the Republican presidential nomination.

That was the Ohioan's answer to the statement of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that he is a Republican and would respond to a "clear-cut call to political duty," but would not personally campaign for the G. O. P. nomination.

Taft told a reporter he believes this makes Eisenhower only a "draft" possibility, adding:

"If all of the pledges we have obtained from all over the country can be translated into delegates when they are chosen, I believe we have more than half of the convention votes."

The G. O. P. nominating meeting, to be held in Chicago early in July, will have slightly more than 1,200 delegates, with more than 600 votes needed for the nomination. None of the delegates has been formally chosen yet.

Taft said he always assumed that other candidates would be seeking the nomination and that "General Eisenhower would be one of them."

Expects Return

He intimated he had expected Eisenhower to doff his uniform as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces and return as a civilian to campaign.

But Eisenhower said at his Paris headquarters yesterday that "under no circumstances will I ask for relief from this assignment in order to seek nomination to political office and I shall not participate in the preconvention activities of others who may have such an intention with respect to me."

Taft said he interprets this as meaning Eisenhower will have to be drafted to obtain the nomination, and commented:

"I think this will make matters easier for us."

Taft said he is confident he will be able to harvest a sizeable number of G. O. P. convention delegates from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Kansas, home states of the principal Eisenhower leaders.

Senator Schoeppel of Kansas, a Taft backer, supported this contention with a prediction that the Kansas delegation will go to the

Truman And Churchill To Discuss Britain's Recognition Of China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Britain's recognition of Communist China was expected to come up today in the globe-girdling talks between President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill.

The President was expected to tell the prime minister that this country's non-recognition of the Chinese Reds is a firm policy, hardened by their intervention in Korea.

He may suggest that an irritant could be removed from British-American relations if London's recognition of the Peiping government were revoked.

Thorny questions of Iranian oil, Egyptian demands for withdrawal of British troops from the Suez and the problem of security against Communist aggression in Southeast Asia, notably Indo-China and Malaya, as well as progress on the organization of a Middle East command also were believed to be on the slate for today's White House session.

Two final meetings were scheduled. A joint statement, reporting on accomplishments, was due to be issued tonight.

Europe Defense Talked

Yesterday afternoon's session covered European defense problems. An official statement said crisply that "several military matters were presented and received consideration."

The President and prime minister and their diplomatic and military advisers, meeting around a table in the cabinet room of the White House, were obviously able to hit only the high spots of cold war strategy and other problems in the two days allotted for their intensive discussions.

The "several military matters" discussed yesterday were described as of great secrecy and the decision was made that none of the persons present should talk about them outside the meeting.

However, it was known that specific questions due for discussions during the two days included these:

1. Atomic energy — Churchill is known to desire a renewal of the wartime partnership in which Britain, the United States and Canada jointly worked on atomic developments and exchanged information about them.

Wide Gap Shown

2. Defense of Europe—A North Atlantic Treaty Council committee recently completed a study showing a wide gap between the present capacity of the Western nations and the military goal of some 90 divisions in the Western European defense force by 1954. Decisions will soon have to be made as to whether the goal should be lowered or the time extended.

3. Atlantic command—the United States has sought the appointment

Active Republican Prepares To Take Over As RFC's Boss

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—An active Republican prepared today to become boss of the multi-million dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation under an announced policy of loans "on a basis of business and merit—no politics."

Even as Harry A. McDonald, enunciated this policy, however, a move sprang up to launch a new Senate investigation of the huge scandal-scarred government lending agency.

Senator Maybank (Democrat, South Carolina), Senate Banking Committee chairman, announced he had ordered an inquiry into the resignation of W. Stuart Symington as RFC administrator.

He said Senate action on President Truman's nomination of Harry

Election-Year Session May Be Lengthy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — (AP) — Politics, defense spending, universal military training and foreign aid stood out as the dominant issues today as the 82nd Congress returned for its election-year session.

The session started at noon and leaders wouldn't be surprised if it lasts right up to the November elections in which a President, a vice-president, 435 House members and at least 32 senators will be chosen.

It's always that way in a general election year, the halls of Congress being a favorite forum for political speeches.

Legislatively, it probably won't produce much. Only a few "must" major bills are due for consideration. Topping them are U. M. T. (universal military training), economic controls, foreign-aid and billions in new appropriations.

Politically, it may be one of the hottest in decades. Supporters of Senator Taft of Ohio, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and other Republican presidential possibilities already were jockeying for position, and Democrats were countering at every opportunity.

Hope For Clue

From President Truman's state-of-the-union message tomorrow, Democrats hope to obtain some clue as to whether Truman will seek re-election and if not, the issues on which the Democrats will be expected to base their campaign.

They expect the President to ask for many things Congress has refused to give him in the past. They remember that just four years ago President Truman snatched election victory from seeming defeat by pounding away at Congress's failure to enact his program.

Tomorrow's message will be the first of three from the President. The others, on domestic economy and the budget, will follow within two weeks. The budget message is expected to call for an estimated $83,000,000,000 during the fiscal year starting July 1.

The first few weeks of the session probably will be spent getting squared away for action and digesting the President's recommendations. This interlude will give six new representatives and a new senator a chance to get themselves oriented.

Educators Honor Bennett President

BY BRUCE JOLLY

Greensboro Daily News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Dr. David D. Jones tonight received the annual Christian Education magazine award for 25 years of notable service as president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N.C.

The presentation was a climax of the first day sessions of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church, being held at the Statler Hotel.

The award was made at the annual banquet, which was held at American University's Mary Graydon Hall.

Mrs. Jones Introduced

Mrs. Jones was also presented to the group of college presidents. She was described as a woman who was there not as a wife of a Methodist college president, but as one who through her own accomplishments had earned the right to attend.

President J. Earl Moreland of Randolph Macon College made the presentation. He described Dr. Jones as a "friend of his fellow man, a Christian gentleman, and an educational statesman."

'Champion Of Understanding'

The citation called Jones a president "who at all times and in many situations has been a champion of better understanding and more harmonious relationships among men of all races and religions."

It said he is one who in his local community of Greensboro, N. C., has made a record of excellent citizenship and who has wielded a great influence in the councils of the Methodist Church.

Bennett College Freed of Debt By Kresge Foundation Check

GREENSBORO (AP)—The presentation of a $75,000 check from the Kresge Foundation has made Bennett College entirely debt free, Dr. David D. Jones, president of the local Negro institution, announced yesterday.

The Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Mich., a philanthropic organization established in 1924, pledged the $75,000 in the event Bennett College raised the $180,000 before the deadline.

Totaling $260,000, the money will be used to pay a debt the college incurred a few years ago to help build a student union building on the campus. Cost of the new construction was $500,000. Approximately $300,000 was available to the school and it was forced to raise the remainder.

Deserved Recognition For Dr. David D. Jones

DESERVED recognition has just been given to Bennett College's president, Dr. DAVID D. JONES, who was presented the Christian Herald's award for outstanding accomplishment during the 25 years he has headed the Greensboro college for women. Bennett is operated by the Methodist Episcopal denomination, of which the Christian Herald is the official organ.

Small in enrollment, limited in buildings and pinched for funds, Bennett began its almost spectacular growth in the middle of 1930's when Dr. JONES made a lasting friend of Mrs. ANNIE MERNER PFEIFFER, heir to a drug fortune. Her initial gift, as we recall, was for $250,000 and in all she doubtless gave a million dollars or more for new buildings which modernized and transformed the old campus.

Her quarter-million-dollar contribution matched a similar amount from the General Education Board. The story goes that Mrs. PFEIFFER, a small and lovely lady, came to the campus as "just another friendly visitor" but, with his unfailing courtesy, Dr. JONES took her on a tour of the campus, dropping discreet hints as to Bennett's needs in the hope of a small contribution.

Impressed more than Dr. JONES realized, Mrs. PFEIFFER indicated her desire to help "in a small way." Back in the president's office she wrote out a check. Dr. JONES assumed it to be a helpful amount and voiced his thanks as he glanced at the check. He halted in mid-speech when he realized the size of the "small" donation. She was one of the last of the great individual donors to Negro colleges. Taxes nowadays prevent the creation of many new fortunes or penalize heavily those able to give great sums.

This friendship with Mrs. PFEIFFER was of great help to Bennett, often called the "Vassar of the South." But the energetic and able administration of President JONES has been an equally vital factor. The JOURNAL AND GUIDE joins all friends of education in felicitating Dr. JONES on his accomplishments, signalized by the Christian Herald award.

Tribute To Dr. Jones

Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College here in Greensboro, early this week was awarded the annual Christian Education Magazine award for his 25 years of outstanding service as head of the local institution. The presentation took place in the nation's capital at a meeting of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church.

The citation accompanying the award praised Dr. Jones for his Christian character, community service, achievements as an educator, and efforts to promote better relations among people of all races and faiths.

This recognition is well deserved by Dr. Jones, and his fellow citizens here take pride in the honor accorded him. Great as his contributions for good have been in the past, The Record feels one other observation should be added at this time. It is this:

The influence of David D. Jones will be felt for many years to come not only here but wherever Bennett College graduates may go.

RECOGNITION TO DR. DAVID D. JONES
By Mrs. Gloria Young Guy

When an individual we know, regardless if he is an acquaintance or just someone we've heard of in our home town, makes progress and achievement which causes recognition from both races, we are happy and proud of him. Such is the case of Dr. David D. Jones, who received the Christian Education Magazine citation at a dinner in Washington, D. C., January 7, for twenty-five years of constructive service as president of Bennett College.

If you will think back to 1926 when Bennett became an all-girls' school and Dr. Jones was chosen for the job of president, you know the task before him was great, with Bennett having a student body of ten, and not a dollar in the bank. Through his dynamic leadership, cooperation of friends, community, and Foundations, Bennett was built into what it is today, an "A" rating college of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern states, a student body of 432 girls, and assets totaling more than $3,500,000.

To make Bennett College what it is today was not an easy task for Dr. Jones. He did not stop when he had completed one goal, but always had another to accomplish. He has never known discouragement; through keeping faith, putting his philosophy into practice, and the support of his wife, Mrs. Susie Jones, he has always weathered the storms faced by the college.

I don't think that any of you who read this article can know, or I can explain how deep the interest and pride of President Jones is in the Bennett faculty, staff, student body, and 1100 graduates until you sit in the beautiful Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel for four years—as I and many others have done—listening to him talk to his 432 daughters. I have always had a close contact with Bennett, even before I chose to attend it in September, 1946. As a grammar school student I remember President Jones, his family, the Bennett student body and faculty attending services at St. Matthews Methodist Church, of which Dr. Jones and I are members. When passing the campus, I always wondered just what went on there. As I grew older, observation and conversation made me aware of the Bennett way of life, and that it was under the leadership and guidance of a fine and understanding person. Through hearing my mother (who also attended Bennett), talk to others and to me, my admiration of not only the physical structure, but the beauty of the young women in personality and action, the leadership of President Jones and his co-workers, I decided to make Bennett my Alma Mater.

One of the remarkable qualities of Dr. Jones is the fact that he never forgets the names and home towns of his 1100 graduated daughters—not even in this, his 25th year.

Dr. Jones has not only set his goals for the betterment of the college, but also for the community in which it is located. He has made an excellent record of citizenship here in his local community, and as a distinguished educator has won many top honors. He is an educational leader who is democratic, quick to sense needs, and institute ways and means of combatting them.

His accomplishments of making Bennett an "A" rating college with 31 beautiful buildings, a competent faculty and staff, and sending out 1100 graduates since 1926 was not done for the citation and other honors Dr. Jones has received down through the years. He has done, and will continue to do his job, because of his belief in developing the future women of our race, and his never-ending devotion, interest, and pride in what has been called the Negro "Vassar" of the South. The words used by President J. Earl Moreland in presenting the citation to Dr. Jones describes him as the individual he is—"a friend to his fellow man, a Christian gentleman, and an educational statesman."

I'm sure that I speak for Bennett's 1100 graduates when I say, "we are proud of you and your work, President Jones, and will be with you in any task you are out to accomplish."

Methodist School Heads Honor Bennett President

WASHINGTON, D. C. — An eminent educator, Dr. David D. Jones, was cited here Monday night (Jan. 7) for his 25 years of service as president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C.

A framed citation, awarded by Christian Education magazine, was presented to Dr. Jones at the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church. Dr. J. Earl Moreland, president of Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., and vice president of the association, made the presentation.

"Dr. Jones at all times and in many situations has been a champion of better understanding and more harmonious relationships among men of all races and religions, and in his local community of Greensboro he has made a record of excellent citizenship high-lighted by an active interest in all civic agencies and efforts," the citation stated.

THE PRESENTATION was made at a banquet at American University, attended by presidents and administrators of 10 Methodist seminaries and 125 church-related colleges and universities, staff members of the denomination's board of education, and other officials of the church.

DR. DAVID D. JONES

The Methodist educators plan to attend the annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges scheduled to begin in Washington Tuesday night.

Honor To Dr. Jones

Bestowal of the annual Christian Education Magazine award upon Dr. David D. Jones for 25 years of notable service as president of Bennett College is an honor well and worthily given.

No one who has known Dr. Jones—and his wife who has worked side by side with him and who was also presented to the meeting of college presidents in Washington where the honor was formally bestowed—who is familiar with the work he has done and who has seen Bennett College grow and expand, all the while remaining true to its high and inner purpose, has to be told what the Greensboro educator did to merit this award.

Dr. Jones's labor and influence have, as the citation properly stresses, gone far beyond the college itself, into his church, his community and the state and nation wherever Bennett graduates have entered into their life work. Here at home, though, there must be special appreciation of his cataloguing as "a champion of better understanding and more harmonious relationships among men of all races and religions."

And of what, may we in deep earnestness ask, are humankind, communities and nations in greater need?

A framed citation, awarded by Christian Education magazine, was presented to Dr. Jones at the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church. Dr. J. Earl Moreland, president of Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., and vice president of the association, made the presentation.

"Dr. Jones, at all times and in many situations has been a champion of better understanding and more harmonious relationships among men of all races and religions, and in his local community of Greensboro he has made a record of excellent citizenship highlighted by an active interest in all civic agencies and efforts," the citation stated.

The presentation was made at a banquet at American University, attended by presidents and administrators of 10 Methodist seminaries and 125 church-related colleges and universities, staff members of the denomination's board of education, and other officials of the church.

Funeral Held For William H. Hunter

Funeral services were held Sunday, January 6th at 1:30 p. m. for Henry Hunter at the First Congregational Church on High Street. Rev. A. T. LeGrand gave the eulogy, taking his text from 2nd Corinthians, 10th chapter, 1st and 2nd verses which read: "Now I Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who in presence am base among you, but being absent am bold toward you: But I beseech you, that I may not be bold when I am present with that confidence, wherewith I think to be bold against some, which think of us as if we walked according to the flesh."

William Henry Hunter, son of William and Selia Hunter, was born in Alamance County, July 31, 1870. He died January 2, 1952 at the age of eighty-one years and five months. For approximately fifty years he made his home in Greensboro. He was employed for over thirty-five years and until his retirement by the Southern Railroad System. In 1906 he married Ella Miller, who died March 12, 1925. Since that time he has made his home with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hunter of Greensboro. He was a member of a large family, being one of five brothers and four sisters. There was also one step brother and four step sisters. Two brothers and two sisters survive.

Mr. Hunter was a member of the Shriners, the Masonic Order, and the Eastern Star. He was a good neighbor, a faithful friend, loved and respected by all who knew him.

Early in life he accepte l Christ and became a member f the Church and for many yea s was connected with the Zio n Church. In 1925 he joined t e First Congregational Church of this city and was a loyal member until his death. He constantly lived a Christian life and will be greatly missed as a member of the church and community.

A man's life can usually be summed up in the things he loved. His favorite song was, "There Is A Land Of Pure Delight", and we know that he has gone to—

"A land upon whose blissful shore
There rest no shadow, falls no pain;
Where those who meet shall part no more,
And those long parted shall meet again."

His favorite scripture was the 23rd Psalm, which he learned as a child, and loved at eighty-one as he walked through his shadow of Death into the light of Perfect Day, knowing that the Eternal God is his refuge and that he shall dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Dr. Mays Bennett's First 1952 Vesper Speaker

First speaker of the 1952 Sunday Vesper series at the Pfeiffer Chapel on the Bennett College campus was Dr. Benjamin Mays president of Morehouse College, Alanta, Georgia.

He spoke at 4 o'clock, Sunday January 6. Dr. Mays has lectured at well over 100 colleges throughout the country and is recognized as one of the most able speakers in this area. Author, educator, and leader, he represented the United States at the Oxford Conference on Churches and State in 1937. He also has been affiliated with the World Student Service Fund and has been the author of many books. President of Morehouse, a college for Negro men, he has been one of the most popular speakers to ever appear on the Bennett campus.

A singular honor was bestowed on Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, a college for Negro women when the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church and Christian Education Magazine honored him on the occasion of the completion of 25 years of service as president of a Methodist college.

Dr. Jones received this honor at a special banquet held at American University on Monday, January 7, at 7 o'clock. A present member of the Strategy Committee of the organization, Dr. Jones is also a past president of the Association; the only man representing a Negro college to be thus recognized.

Dr. Jones began his duties as president of the Methodist school for Negro women in 1926 with 10 young women as students. Now over 500 women train annually at the college located almost in the center of Greensboro.

Dr. Jones Praises Contributors Here

Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, announced yesterday that the citizens of this North Carolina city along with generous help from alumni of the college, faculty, and students, have succeeded in raising slightly more than $180,000 in the Quarter Century Fund Drive under the direction of Chairman N. S. Calhoun, and have thereby qualified to receive a grant of $75,000 from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Michigan.

Both Dr. Jones and Mr. Calhoun expressed their deep appreciation to all concerned, those who gave their contributions and those many workers who aided during the campaign. The grant from the Kresge Foundation automatically makes

WASHINGTON — Dr. David D. Jones last Monday night (January 7) received the annual Christian Education magazine award for 25 years of notable service as president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C.

The presentation was a climax of the first day sessions of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church, being held at the Statler Hotel.

The award was made at the annual banquet, which was held at American University's Mary Graydon Hall.

Mrs. Jones was also presented to the group of college presidents. She was described as a woman who was there not as a wife of a Methodist college president, but as one who through her own accomplishments had earned the right to attend.

President J. Earl Moreland of Randolph Macon College made the presentation. He described Dr. Jones as a "friend of his fellow man, a Christian gentleman, and an educational statesman."

The citation called Jones a president "who at all times and in many situations has been a champion of better understanding and more harmonious relationships among men of all races and religions."

It said he is one who in his local community of Greensboro, N. C., has made a record of excellent citizenship and who has weilded a great influence in the councils of the Methodist Church.

Jones was called a far-visioned educational leader who has been quick to sense needs and to institute such program feature as a board emphasis on homemaking, maintenance of a day nursery, and conferences and clinics for career women.

The drive gained momentum when word was received from the Kresge Foundation that trustees would grant the last $75,000 for the fund if the college should raise the initial $180,000 by December 31, 1951.

Dr. Jones pointed out that a record of the college, that of never losing a conditional gift, still stands as a result of the drive which was held in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of the school under his leadership. The first such conditional offer was made in 1932 when the General Education Board contributed $250,000.

The physical plant of the school is now valued at $2,496,-236.04. with an endowment of $1,050,000. Since June of 1950

Bennett College one of the few debt-free institutions of its kind in the South. This Foundation, created by Sebastian S. Kresge and incorporated in 1924, was to be for the purposes of "promotion of eleemosynary, philanthropic and charitable means of any and all of the means of human progress whether they be for the benefit of religious, charitable, benevolent, or educational institutions or public benefactions of whatever name or nature." The Foundation has for a number of years made an annual grant to the United Negro College Fund.

The effort to raise $260,000 was an all-out drive to relieve the Methodist College for Negro women of a debt incurred when it became necessary to build a Student Union Building housing a new dining room and recreation area for the students. The building cost well over $500,000 and some $300,000 was available at the time. The remainder had to be raised and the Quarter Century Fund was thus inaugurated in 1950.

Dr. Jones announced that the college will concentrate its efforts over the next few years in working along with the United Negro College Fund and will merge its support with this worthwhile organization. He was obviously elated over the support afforded the drive by the citizens of the community who aided the cause of the Negro school, and termed the Kresge grant "one of the finest and most appreciated gifts in the history of the college."

Honor Paid To Bennett President

Educators Gather In Washington

In Washington tonight, at a dinner to be attended by leading Methodist educators, honor will be paid to a distinguished Negro educator, Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College.

At the dinner, Dr. Jones will receive Christian Education Magazine's citation, signaling the completion of Jones's 25th year as president of Bennett.

Since Jones became Bennett's president in 1926, the Negro college has gone a long way, and the story of Bennett is inseparably linked with that of Dr. Jones.

Today, Bennett can boast of a beautiful 42-acre campus, 31 buildings styled in the best tradition of American Colonial architecture, assets of over $3,500,000, and an enrollment of 432 girls from 32 states and several foreign countries.

Founded In 1873

Bennett was founded in 1873 as a coeducational Methodist college and named after Lyman Bennett, a prominent Troy, N. Y., businessman.

However, in the 1920's faced with increasing competition from state-supported Negro colleges, Bennett's enrollment and faculty dwindled. In 1926, the college's trustees, mainly Methodist churchmen and laymen, decided to make Bennett a Negro woman's college.

Dr. Jones was 39 when he was tapped for the job.

When Jones took over as Bennett president in 1926, the campus looked like a "cornfield and turnip patch," its student body numbered 10, and it didn't have a dollar in the bank.

Jones's first task was to outline a clear educational program for the college. His philosophy was simple: "We take each student where she is and treat her as if she has already come to the place where we wish her to be, thus confirming our faith in the dignity and worth of the individual and her capacity to grow."

Gets First Break

Bennett got its first break in 1932 when Jones sold the General Education Board on the value of the Negro college. As a result, the board granted Bennett $250,000 on condition that the gift be matched by other donations.

The board's grant was matched—by Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer, a wealthy chemical heiress.

Later on, the General Education Board and Mrs. Pfeiffer gave a total of $1,885,000 to Bennett. Other major contributors to the college have been the Methodist Church and the Cone family here.

Today, Jones looks with pride on Bennett and its student body. The college has the "A" rating of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, and has often been called the "Negro Vassar."

And numbered among Bennett's 1,100 graduates since 1926 are such personalities as Thora Kelly Brown, concert pianist, Maidie Norman, star of "The Well," and Edith Whiteman of Broadway stage fame.

Dr. Jones himself has won many top honors, including honorary degrees from Howard and Wesleyan. He was also the first Negro elected president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church.

Makes Plans

Now with the first quarter century safely tucked under his belt, Dr. Jones is busy with plans for Bennett's next 25 years. First, he hopes to increase the college's endowment from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000, to keep Bennett's financial foundation solid.

Secondly, he wants the college to get enough annual income so that Bennett can attract and hold top scholars.

Working with Jones in these projects are two well-known Greensboro residents, Dr. W. C. Jackson, who has served as chairman of Bennett's board of trustees for the past 10 years, and Mrs. Laura Cone, chairman of the college's building committee since 1932.

IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Grady W. Coble of Route 1, Greensboro, is a patient at Wesley Long Hospital. She is not allowed visitors.

Colonel Tells Of Fighting Germans On Two Fronts

As far as he knows, Col. Robert Solborg is the only living man who fought against the Germans on both the Eastern and Western fronts during World War I.

And that is only part of his war record. He did extensive intelligence work overseas for the American Army in World War II.

Now the 58-year-old Polish-born veteran is an official for the Armco Steel Company in Europe and is president of the American Chamber of Commerce in France with headquarters in Paris.

He could tell his story in 11 languages if he wished. He speaks that many.

Reared in Warsaw by his Swedish parents, Solborg joined the Czar's Imperial Army at the start of World War I and became a junior officer in the 13th Vladimir Lancers, a cavalry outfit.

Wounded in action against Hungarian troops near Lodz, Solborg was transferred to America as attache to a Russian procurement officer in 1915.

"I liked this country so much, I decided to stay," he says.

Not only did he stay; he also joined the American Army and went overseas with the famous 42nd "Rainbow" Division. "I went in as a private, was sent to officer's candidate school, and came out of the war a captain," the white-haired cosmopolitan explains.

Solborg entered World War II as a lieutenant colonel, serving both in the OSS and the Army's "G-2" intelligence section.

"I helped prepare the landings in North Africa ahead of Patton's Army in 1941," he points out.

Military Attache

That was in 1941. From 1942 until 1945, he was a military attache in Lisbon, Portugal. Later he held a similar post in Brussels, the Belgian capital.

What about his present job as French Chamber of Commerce president?

"We try to promote American industrial and business interests in France," he explains. He has just begun his second term.

Solborg was the subject of an article in Time magazine about two years ago when he managed an Armco "deal" with a large Italian steel corporation. Time said Solborg was "silver-haired and silver-tongued."

He is certainly eloquent in expressing his opinions about 1952 and its role in European affairs. Speaking as a onetime Russian citizen and current continental resident, Solborg uses his glibness directly.

Year Of 'Tenseness'

"1952 is going to be a year of tenseness with a possibility of war but perhaps not the probability," he says. He believes the Russians are equipped to fight, but that they will not as long as they gain advantages in a cold war.

What after 1952?

"If we unite Europe and gain strength at home, things will go our way during the next years," he believes. And those, he thinks, are the two things the Soviets fear most: European and, more particularly, German unification plus American industry.

Fair And Cold Is Forecast For Area

Yesterday's cloudy skies and snow flurries are expected to be replaced today by mostly fair skies and continued cold weather.

Greensboro-High Point Airport weathermen credited the passing front of a "polar-Canadian air mass" with producing yesterday's "nasty weather." The thermometer rose to 37 in the afternoon and was expected to drop to 24 last night.

The cold air mass which now covers the Greensboro area will produce a high temperature today of 38 degrees and a low tonight of 22, weather experts predicted.

Melting Snow

As the cold front passed through the city yesterday morning, fast melting snow flakes drifted over most of the area. Free of sleet, the snow began about 9 a. m. and ended by 2 p. m.

While cars, trees, and fallen leaves collected the snow flakes, in tiny pockets, weather instruments recorded .04 of an inch of snow.

No radical changes in the weather picture are predicted by weathermen for the next few days.

Snow and rain have been ruled out by the cold air blanket, they said.

Elsewhere in the state the United States Weather Bureau reported snow falls yesterday in the Raleigh-Durham area, at Rocky Mount, Cherry Point, Elizabeth City, Boone, Asheville and throughout the Western part of the State. In most cases, however, only a trace of snow was recorded.

Temperatures in the Raleigh area remained around 32 degrees Sunday. In the mountain area last night, the mercury fell to 20 degrees; Piedmont areas had temperatures in the high 30's and along the coast, temperature readings were reported around 32 degrees.

Hit-And-Run Case Still A Mystery

No definite lead had been turned up late last night by policemen investigating the hit and run incident which put two local women in the hospital Friday night.

The injured women were identified at Piedmont Memorial Hospital as Mrs. Mattie B. Allred, 49, of 812½ Dillard Street and Mrs. E. A. Gray, about 50, of the High Point Road.

Hospital authorities reported yesterday that both women were "doing fine." Mrs. Gray suffered a broken leg, Mrs. Allred escaped with bruises.

Police said that the two women got out of their car at Summit Avenue and Sullivan Street about 7:15 p. m. Friday to attend a meeting at Watchtower Hall, across Summit Avenue. They reportedly waited until the traffic light changed to red before starting across the street.

Walter W. Newell of McLeansville said that he was approaching the intersection when the hit and run vehicle passed him and whipped back into the right lane, striking the women.

MEETING TONIGHT

The executive committee of the Sedgefield School P.-T. A. will meet at 7:45 o'clock tonight at the school.

Salesman, 58, Hangs Self In Home

Robert E. Ehly, 58-year-old resident of 1007 Fairmont Street, was found dead about 12:30 a. m. yesterday in the basement of his home.

Coroner W. W. Harvey said that he was called to investigate the death at that time and found it to be suicide. Ehly had been dead for an hour or two before his arrival, the coroner said.

Police said that Ehly, a sales engineer for Carolina Steel and Iron Company here, had hung himself with a small rope in the basement of his home.

A native of Philadelphia, Ehly had lived in Greensboro for the past 30 years. He came here to join the steel and iron company.

Survivors

Surviving in addition to the wife are three sons, Dr. George Wileman Ehly, a lieutenant in the United States Air Force stationed in Newfoundland; Gerald Ehly, a student at the Harvard Divinity School, and Robert E. Ehly, Jr., of the home, and three brothers, Walter Ehly, Edwin O. Ehly, and Harry Ehly, all of Philadelphia.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, pending arrival of the sons. The body will remain at Hanes Funeral Home, where the service will be held at a day and time to be announced.

Two Local Soldiers Get Purple Hearts

Two Greensboro soldiers have recently been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in Korea.

Cpl. William Ingold of 2519 Carroll Street received the award at the 141st Army General Hospital near Fukuoka in Southern Japan where he is a patient.

Pvt. John A. Thompson of Greensboro was decorated at the 382nd Army General Hospital near Osaka, Japan. He has since been transferred to the United States for further treatment.

A third Greensboro man, Pfc. Lester E. Meyers of 1800 South Elm Street, has been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge and the Korean Service Ribbon with the Second Infantry Division on the Korean front. He arrived in Korea last August.

Coroner Says Local Death Is Suicide

Glenn McConnell, 46, committed suicide at 10:10 a. m. yesterday by shooting himself through the heart with a shotgun in the basement of his home at 1604 West End Place, Coroner W. W. Harvey reported.

Police said he left no note.

McConnell was a native of Mooresville, a veteran of World War II, and a resident of Greensboro for the past three years. He was a traveling salesman.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Painter, Ill., and a member of the First Presbyterian Church here.

Survivors

He is survived by his wife, the former Dora Hardin; one son, Robert C. McConnell of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McConnell of Mooresville; five brothers, R. P. McConnell of Danville, Paul G. McConnell of Charlotte, George L. McConnell of Oceanside, Calif., R. C. McConnell, Jr., and John M. McConnell, both of Mooresville, and three sisters, Mrs. Susie L. Bender of Richmond, Va., Mrs. Betty Clark of Quinton, Va., and Miss Mary Lou McConnell of Charlotte.

Funeral will be held at 12:30 p. m. today at Forbis and Murray Chapel with Dr. John A. Redhead, Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church officiating.

Graveside service will be held at 3 p. m. at the Triplett Methodist Church Cemetery near Mooresville, and Rev. William M. Currie, associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, will preside.

Mrs. Luna Boyden Succumbs At 73

Mrs. Luna Boyden, 73, of 101 Westover Terrace died at 5 p. m. yesterday at the Guilford County Sanitorium in Jamestown. She had been a patient there two days and a patient previously at Piedmont Memorial Hospital.

A member of the West Market Street Methodist Church, Mrs. Boyden has been a Greensboro resident for the past 20 years. She had been in declining health several months.

Surviving in addition to Mrs. A. G. Poindexter, a granddaughter with whom she made her home, are one daughter, Mrs. Lilly McDowell Gordon of Rapid City, S. D.; one brother, Robert Wynne of Washington, and six sisters, Miss Eliza Wynne of Raleigh, Mrs. C. C. Marlor, also of Raleigh, Mrs. D. C. Hudson of Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. Norma Moore of Ridgecrest, Mrs. D. M. Campbell of Myrtle Beach, S. C., and Mrs. L. H. Perry of Washington.

The body will be taken to Brown Funeral Home in Raleigh today for funeral and burial at a day and hour to be announced.

RETURN FROM FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Armstrong of 2309 Pinecroft Road yesterday returned from Newnan, Ga., where they attended the funeral Friday of their son-in-law, Joseph A. Lovern, who died Wednesday. Mrs. Lovern, the former Jeanelle Armstrong, and her daughter accompanied her parents to Greensboro for a visit.

Valuable Dog Murdered By Band Of Carousers

OAK RIDGE, Jan. 6.—A valuable fox hound was shot to death here early this morning by a band of unidentified carousers who attempted to hide the body in a thickly wooded section a mile away from the scene of the shooting, the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department reported today.

"Old Sue," the hound owned by Samuel Coy Lowery of this section, was well-known to hunters in the area and was valuable both as a hunter and a breeding animal. Lowery resides in Guilford County a mile and a half from the shooting scene.

Forsyth County Sheriff E. G. Shore gave the following account of the shooting which was earlier thought to be the murder of a human being:

S. L. Sechrest, service station operator who lives in his station near the Forsyth-Guilford County line, was awakened at 3 a. m. today by a group of men shooting at signs at the station. Later, he saw them place an object in a near-by car and drive away.

Sechrest went to a near-by home which had a telephone and contacted the sheriff's department. Shore and his deputies arrived on the scene about 5 a. m. and found on the scene enough blood for two people."

Dog Found

The search for the bleeding body began immediately, but the trail was lost soon after leaving Sechrest's station. The dead dog was found at 11 a. m. about one mile from the station in Forsyth County.

Shore said that he was not expecting to press the search for the killer because "there is too much else to be done."

"Old Sue" has brought her owner "many offers" from hunters, Mrs. Lowery said. However, the dog belonged to her son killed in the Pacific in 1944 and "money couldn't buy her from us," she said.

"We have no idea who could have done such a thing," Mrs. Lowery said at her home. "We are broken up about it. The dog was with us a long time and was our son's favorite."

Several other cases of killing and mutilation of dogs have been reported in other parts of the state recently.

Legion Group Would Trim Deadwood

Plans for trimming up the "work horse" of the American Legion were discussed here yesterday at a meeting of third division 40 and 8 members.

Third division officials met in the Legion Building to discuss constitutional changes which would clip "dead wood" from 40 and 8 membership rolls by setting up attendance requirements for members.

The 40 and 8, honorary society of the American Legion, includes many of the most active or "work horse" Legion members.

Proposes Change

H. F. Boediker of High Point proposed the attendance requirement to permit the removal of inactive members from the 40 and 8.

A. M. Scarborough, division grand chef de train, appointed Boediker, John W. Clay of Greensboro, and Eugene Swanson of Hamlet to draft a resolution embodying the constitutional proposal. The resolution will be presented to state 40 and 8 officers at a meeting Saturday in Winston-Salem.

The Winston-Salem conference is a joint three-day meeting of American Legion post and 40 and 8 voiture officers.

Gives Talk

Paull Fenner, American Legion service representative with the Veterans Administration regional office in Winston-Salem, addressed the district 40 and 8 meeting yesterday on the American Legion child welfare program.

The child welfare work was originally a project of the 40 and 8 before the Legion assumed responsibility for its activities. The 40 and 8 now contributes to the support of the child welfare work.

Attending the meeting yesterday were 40 and 8 representatives from Greensboro, High Point, Troy, Asheboro, Roxboro, Hamlet, Burlington, Southern Pines, and Chapel Hill.

Trucker To Face Trial For Reckless Driving

Wayne M. Peebles, 25-year-old truck driver from Route 1, Morrisville, will be tried Wednesday, January 16, in Municipal-County Court after being arrested Friday for careless and reckless driving, police said yesterday.

Peebles was arrested after his car collided with the vehicle being driven by James V. Evans of Greensboro at Gorrell and East Streets, according to the police. Damage to both cars was estimated at $875.

Ground Is Broken For New Church

Some 600 persons attended the groundbreaking ceremony at 12:30 p. m. yesterday for the first unit of the New United Institutional Baptist Church at Market and Clinton Streets.

The unit started yesterday consists of a ground floor with accommodations for an all-purpose hall, several classrooms, a ladies' lounge, and a kitchen. On the main floor, there will be a sanctuary seating 800, the pastor's study, church office, nurses' room and ushers' room.

The L. M. Berry firm of Durham holds the general construction contract for the building project. The first unit of the over-all $250,000 church building project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Meanwhile, church members will use their present church building adjacent to the site of the new building.

Rev. J. W. Tynes, pastor of Providence Baptist Church, was main speaker at yesterday's groundbreaking service. Rev. C. W. Anderson is pastor of the church.

First-Grader Gives Good Saint Run Of House

A wreath at a side window, a row of candles, a discarded tree bearing bits of silver ribbon were here and there about town last week end.

How reluctantly many children closed the door on Christmas and headed for school again.

Mary V. Compton of 1501 North Elam Avenue and many other 6-year-olds were deeply absorbed in the Christmas spirit. Came Christmas Eve and Mary V., getting ready for bed, asked her mother if she might leave a note for Santa in addition to the plate of lunch.

Her mother said yes, so Mary V. printed this message: "Dear Santa: You may use the bathroom if you want to."

In our neighborhood, a little first-grader added to Santa's lunch an item she felt he'd surely welcome—two aspirins.

Among the gifts we liked best were jars of sweet-hot home-made relish and watermelon rind pickle. How that relish did vanish with pork chops or beef roast!

Two or three times, now, Mayor Robert H. Frazier has made a remark at city council meetings which has opened a wide avenue of thought.

By the way, those white lines at busy intersections downtown could stand renewal. They don't last long.

. . . And another thing. Wonder what happened to that paint with the reflecting beads in it that traffic folks experimented with some months ago. Did it prove a failure?

The city council's ordering a 25-mile speed limit on Friendly Road from the city limits to Westover Terrace. We'll await reports on the number of speeders caught there.

Did you know that one of the downtown dime stores has equipment to adapt vases and jugs and antique coffee grinders and such to lamps? Reasonable, too.

State Over Duke....Case: 'Won More, Lost More Times Than Any Game Ever'

by Smith Barrier

MONDAY COACH. Everett Case, the Wolfpack coach, had settled down somewhat from the nightmares of Duke Indoor Stadium. About State College's 72-70 double-overtime basketball victory over Duke, the nightmare cause, he grinned, "I had the game won more times and lost more times than in any my team has ever played."

That could resemble double talk, which could be excusable under the conditions.

"We had the game won in regulation time," he began.

It might be well to reconstruct, if memory and hastily scribbled notes make such possible, the exciting moments at Duke Indoor Stadium during the final 12 minutes of Saturday's 50-minute ball game. Even some among the 9,000 fans might enjoy reading this because I doubt if they took notes on what was happening.

Let's begin with Rudy D'Emilio's set shot which tied the score at 62-62 with two minutes and 10 seconds to play in the regular ball game. State College got the ball, voted to freeze the ball. They controlled about a minute, and Duke recovered. As D'Emilio, a great ball player Saturday night, dribbled across the mid-stripe, he glanced at the big clock on the east end of the indoor stadium. It had just turned red (denoting the final minute of the game) but Rudy saw the two clock hands close together, thought it was finishing this final minute, shot the ball wildly. He beat his head when he learned his mental error.

State got the ball, moved back down the court. The Wolfpack worked the weave, then sent Bernie Yurin down the foul lane for a one-hander which swished through. . . . State 64-62 with 40 seconds to play.

Duke now had the ball. Bernie Janicki, star of the game, shot from the side, and State tied up the ball. State got the jump, but there was a close ball at midcourt. Three players fought for the ball. D'Emilio was ruled fouling. State waived the free throw, took the ball out of bounds . . . 18 seconds remained. But there was a bad pass, Duke out of bounds. Dick Groat passed in for Duke, and Janicki aimed from deep on the left. He scored. It was 64-64 with three seconds to play.

First Overtime . . . Thompson's Twist Just Short

So, let's lead up to the play he mentioned.

In the first 2:20 miutes of this initial overtime the two rivals swapped goals, Rudy Lacy rebounding for Duke, Bobby Speight tapping in for State.

Since the Wolfpack scored last, it gave Duke possession of the ball, and, brother, the Blue Devils really possessed. Groat got the ball at midcourt, and that's where he stayed for exactly one minute and 45 seconds. Dick simply stood there with the ball on his right hip, held securely by his right hand.

The Wolfpack, which had been in a zone defense the entire game (Case quote: "Groat has run us nuts so we decided against a normal defense."), looked to the bench. There the coaches waved the players back into a tight zone. They were to let Groat stand there unmolested as long as he wanted!

With 35 seconds to go, Dick passed over to D'Emilio who promptly flipped back to Groat. Paul Bradenburg leaned over to Captain Lee Terrill to whisper something. He could have written a letter! He had plenty of time.

The Blue Devils were gambling on that one final shot, hoping for victory on the goal, assured of a deadlock if it failed. It was the same strategy displayed by Columbia against Cornell in the Dixie Classic, one of the first times it had been seen in this section.

But Duke moved a few seconds too fast. Groat tried a one-hander and it missed. Fifteen seconds to go. Thompson rebounded, and State worked fast.

As the final buzzer neared, the Wolfpack got the ball to Thompson in the pivot position. He whirled and drove in from the right of the basket. Mel twisted the ball up as the buzzer sounded . . . the game in the balance. But the ball didn't quite make it. Even with the Thompson twist, it coldn't climb over the rim . . . and the ball fell to the floor.

The game was still unsettled.

Duke 70-69 . . . But That Wasn't The End

"And then Duke went ahead 70-69 and I knew we had lost it," the State coach moaned.

This was the second overtime. Speight had made a lay-up, thanks to Terrill's assist, but Janicki tied it with a set shot. There was a foul on Duke, and Captain Terrill voted to take the shot. The State bench wanted it waived, but Terrill had already committed himself. (Said Case: "That's a difficult decision, whether to waive or not.") Thompson made the free throw and State led 69-68 after 2:15 minutes of play.

Duke had possession. Groat got the ball at midcourt, looked back to Duke Coach Hal Bradley who waved the Blue Devils to "go get 'em." Duke was behind now, it had to work the ball. And it paid off. . . . D'Emilio hitting a one-hander to give Duke the 70-69 margin with 2:20 to play.

State missed a shot, and Duke regained possession with less than two minutes to play. Case stood up, joining 9,000 others, and waved the Wolfpack to come out of its zone . . . to force the play. Groat dribbled in but lost possession, and in the scramble Thompson was fouled. A few seconds over a minute remained. What to do? Thompson took the free throw, made it for 70-70.

But Duke had possession. The Blue Devils worked deliberately. With 13 seconds to play D'Emilio took the shot, a one-hander from the right-hand side of the court. It was short, Thompson jumped high and intercepted.

State was fired . . . downcourt came the Wolfpack. Speight passed in to Brandenburg, just to the right of the foul circle. Paul stepped in, raised his right knee to get his loft, fired the ball with his right hand. In it went . . . State 72-70 . . . four seconds (approximately, suh) to play. The Blue Devils didn't get to midcourt before the final—and really final this time—buzzer.

Coach Case still grinned: "You know, it was the easiest time I ever had walking across that Duke gym. Everybody was so stunned nobody moved. I just walked straight to the dressing room, first one there."

DUKE'S DICK GROAT DRIVES FOR BASKET

The double overtime thriller Saturday night at Duke's Indoor Stadium long will be remembered by those who were there. Photo above shows Dashing Dick Groat, the Duke All-American, driving toward the basket for a shot. Bernie Yurin (82) moves in to guard with Paul Bradenburg (73) coming up from behind. Groat's teammate, Dick Johnson (24), is the other man in white. State won 72-70.

Only State, Kentucky Run Into Real Tests

Other Pre-Season Cage Favorites Start Drive For March Tourneys

BY RIP WATSON

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—College basketball went into "conference" last night, and only in the South were there any near upsets in the various conference races.

Starting down the long road which leads to N. C. A. A. tournament berths for conference champions, most of the early season favorites were in great form in winning opening games. True, Kentucky and North Carolina State, perennial Dixie powers, did have trouble, but they won out in the end, as usual.

Kentucky, defending N. C. A. A. and Southeastern Conference champs, trailed Louisiana State by 28-17 at the half, and anxious Wildcat fans sensed the first Kentucky loss at home in 103 games over a period of nine years. Led by Soph Billy Evans, however, Kentucky came back strong in the second half and walked off the floor with a 57-47 triumph.

North Carolina State, trying for a sixth straight Southern Conference crown, had to battle through two overtime periods to down arch-rival Duke, 72-70. The winning points came in story book fashion as Sub Paul Brandenberg threw in a one-hander from near mid-court with but four—that's right—seconds to play. This heroic shot, however, merely duplicated an effort by Duke's Bernie Janicki which tied it at 64-all five seconds before the end of regulation time.

These pyrotechnics overshadowed the start of other conference races, which saw Kansas and Illinois, rated first and second in the Associated Press poll of the nation's top 10 teams, get off winging. Kansas began its drive for the Big Seven title with a routine 71-48 shellacking of Oklahoma, while defending champion Illinois restricted Minnesota's Big Ed Kalafat to one field goal for a 52-43 decision over the Gophers. Kalafat had been averaging 18 points a game.

The Big Ten's other unbeaten teams, Indiana and Iowa, kept pace with the Illini as Indiana, No. 5 team in the poll, dumped Michigan, 58-46, and Iowa handed Michigan State its first loss, 61-60.

Washington, ranked third in the poll, whaled Idaho, 61-42, to get even for an upset loss to Idaho Friday night and regain a head of steam for their drive to another Pacific Coast Conference title.

On the East Coast, Columbia did not begin defense of the Ivy League crown, but Penn, one of the early favorites, solved Yale's zone defense for an 81-55 trouncing.

Similarly, Oklahoma A. and M. didn't do anything about its Missouri Valley championship, but St. Louis was active and strengthened its threat to the Aggies. The Billikens, rated seventh in the country, rolled at will in the fourth quarter to trounce previously unbeaten Lasalle, 62-46, for their ninth win in 11 starts.

The Southwest Conference5s 1951 co-champions, Texas Christian and Texas A. and M., both scored victories last night, the Horned Frogs, aided by big George McLeod's 22-point barrage, downed Texas, 52-43, and the Aggies outshot Arkansas, 47-42.

In the Skyline Six, Utah whipped Denver, 49-38, and Wyoming beat Alberta, a non-conference foe, 71-49.

It was a great night for the top 10 poll teams, as all came home winners. Besides the difficulties of Kentucky, No. 4, New York University and St. John's, rated sixth and eighth, had considerable trouble at Madison Square Garden. The Violets were slowed by Lafayette's deliberate brand of basketball, but survived a late threat to win by 59-49, while St. John's almost blew a 13-point lead before downing St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, 59-57.

Kansas State, No. 9 in the poll and defending Big Seven titlists, defeated a tired bunch of Arizona tourists, 78-52. It was Arizona's fifth straight loss on a lengthy road trip.

Little St. Bonaventure's, 10th in the poll, stayed in the ranks of the unbeaten with an 80-56 win over Westminster.

W.C.L. Extends Play, Cuts Down Rosters

HICKORY, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Judge T. Earl Franklin of Morganton was elected president of the Western Carolina Baseball League at a meeting of the directors of the Class D loop here today.

Franklin, judge of Recorder's Court in Burke County, succeeds Pete Deaton of Hickory, who headed the circuit last season but offered his resignation to the directors last November.

The directors also voted for a 126-game schedule for the 1952 season. Last year the teams played only 112 games. The '52 race will open Monday, April 21, and close Saturday, August 30.

A 16-player limit for each team also was approved today. Each club will be allowed to carry four veterans, eight limited service men, and four rookies. Last year the limit was 17.

De-Emphasis Won't Hurt --Presidents

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The chairman of a committee of college presidents studying what's wrong with sports said today a de-emphasis program would not hurt the quality of competition.

The committee, which hopes to come up with a written report before it adjourns tomorrow night, met behind closed doors today with representatives of accrediting associations. They would have the job of policing the proposed code.

After the meeting, Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College and chairman of the committee, told reporters:

"What we propose won't affect the quality of competition. What we want to do is restore some order to this business.

"The effect of what the viewers will see will be just as exciting and as interesting as what we have now."

The presidents at their meeting here last month proposed that postseason football bowl games be eliminated, that Freshmen be barred from varsity competition and that athletes be compelled to take the same courses as, and keep up with, other members of their class.

Hannah said that in general no college presidents have disagreed with what the committee has done so far.

CINCINNATI GREETS EARLY ARRIVALS FOR N. C. A. A.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Early arrivals began straggling in today for what generally is regarded as one of the most important conventions in the 46-year history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Problems of televising of football games; over-emphasis of athletics, particularly football; the sports gambling scandals and the future of post-season bowl games are a few of the matters expected to come before the N. C. A. A. members when they get down to the weighty part of their convention Thursday.

The preliminary sessions will start tomorrow, however, among various N. C. A. A. committees and affiliated groups.

Other organizations which will be meeting during the week are the American Football Coaches Association; American Association of College Baseball Coaches and the sports division of the American College Public Relations Association.

Pa. Dog Amateur Derby Winner At Pinehurst

PINEHURST, Jan. 6. — (AP) — Rhett's Night, a black and white pointer owned and handled by E. H. Vare of Merion, Pa., won the Amateur Derby today in the 34th annual Pinehurst Field Trials.

Rhett's Night failed to connect with game but produced an excellent ground working pattern.

Oakview Delivery Boy, owned by Clyde Oaks of South Boston, Va., took second place.

Third place was divided between Oakview Major, also owned by Oaks, and Devana, owned and handled by E. E. Millter of Mt. Holly, N. J.

The Amateur Derby was the second of four stakes in the six-day meet. The amateur all age was completed yesterday.

Duke Win Supports State's Supremacy

But Coach Everett Case Predicts West Virginia Will Grab Title

BY ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Southern Conference has further assurance that North Carolina State's Wolfpack is still basketball boss of the 17-team league.

For State, winner of five successive circuit championships, made that plain again Saturday night when the Wolfpack used two overtime periods to edge Duke's Blue Devils, one of the big threats to its supremacy, 72-70.

Paul Brandenburg, a reserve forward, poked in a one-handed shot from near mid-court with a second left to decide the hotly-contested issue. The game had moved into overtime when Bernie Janicki, Sophomore forward, gave the Dukes a 64-64 deadlock with a carbon copy heave of that thrown by Brandenburg.

Everett Case, the man who guides the Wolfpack, admitted yesterday (Sunday) he was breathing much easier after the Blue Devils had been beaten.

"It was as good a game as a team of mine has ever played in," the State coach said. "The customers were stunned at the end."

State's victory was its fifth against no defeats in conference play. The licking knocked Duke into seventh place and made the team's record 3-3.

Case predicted that West Virginia's Mountaineers, who came up with an amazing 100-75 conquest of New York University the past week, would win the regular season's Southern Conference crown.

At least one team might quickly disagree with Case, though. That would be North Carolina's Tar Heels. The Tar Heels kept step with the Wolfpack Saturday night by tripping Clemson, 65-59, to extend their record in family feudin' to 5-0.

The Tar Heels, who have improved immensely since the season started, gained most of their victory margin in the first half and protected it the rest of the way. Jack Wallace and Al Lifson each made 17 points for North Carolina but yielded scoring honors to Clemson's Johnny Snee, who tallied 22.

South Carolina's Gamecocks were the only other team undefeated in conference play. The Gamecocks have won both their starts.

West Virginia, boasting the best over-all record in the loop, ran its winning streak to six straight Saturday night by edging Niagara University, 74-71. The Mountaineers' Mark Workman chipped in with 36 points. The triumph was West Virginia's eighth against a single loss.

Red-hot Furman scored its seventh win by nipping Tampa University, 73-70. Maryland, with Lee Brawley and Gene Shue collecting 16 points each, trimmed Navy, 48-45. William and Mary handed the University of Virginia its 10th straight spanking, 70-59. The Citadel nosed the independent Piedmont quintet, 62-54.

Three other conference teams lost. Roanoke College turned back Washington and Lee, 75-69. Georgetown (D. C.) walloped Wake Forest, 80-61. Morris Harvey swamped Virginia Military, 78-55.

Ted Kroll Takes Lead In L. A. Open At 214

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Baldwin Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., who is combining business with a honeymoon, shoved some of the nation's better known stars further into the background today when he took over the lead at the end of the third round of the $17,500 Los Angeles Open with the lowest score in the 1952 tournament thus far.

Kroll, a slight, 32-year-old newcomer to the headlines, clipped three strokes off par with a 68 that sent him to the front of the field with a 54-hole score of 214.

The Dutchman shot a 70 for 215 and looms as a big threat when play is resumed tomorrow over the 7,027 yards of the par 35-36—71 course at the Riviera Country Club.

Kroll was all even with par on his first nine, and then came home with three birdies, thanks to putts good for 3 and 10 feet and a chip shot holed out from 30 feet away.

His 68 set the midway mark pacesetting Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, and Long John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., back in the race for the $4,000 top money.

The Texan took a 73 for 217, where he was tied with tempestuous Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., who shot a 70.

Barnum wound up with a 74 for 218. One stroke behind him was another seasoned tournament performer, Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, who had a 73.

The National Open comes to this state in 1952, boosting the annual "take" to its all-time high.

The National Open, of which Ben Hogan of Ft. Worth is defending champion, will be played at the Northwood Club in Dallas June 12, 13 and 14. It has a cash list of $10,000.

Three tournaments in February will put up $30,000.

The golf tour starts at El Paso February 7-10 with the $10,000 El Paso open. It then moves to San Antonio February 14-17 for the $10,000 Texas Open. Next is Houston where the $10,000 Houston Open will be played February 21-24.

The next action will be the Women's Weathervane at Houston in April. This tournament, first in the cross-country tour of the feminine linksters, offers $3,000 in cash prizes.

In May the $15,000 Colonial Invitation will be played at Ft. Worth.

Then comes the National Open in June.

In October, the Texas P. G. A. tournament, with $5,000, will be played in Galveston.

Texas the past year produced the National Champion of men's golf—Hogan; the National Amateur Champion, Billy Maxwell of North Texas State College, and the National Women's Open champion, Betsy Rawls of Austin.

PLANNED PUBLIC RELATIONS

It has often been suggested in CAMPUS NEWS that careful advance planning is a necessity to good public relations and that effective programs of public relations do not just happen. Nowhere is this principle of procedure more applicable than in the area of publicity.

A behind-the-scenes account of the presentation of Christian Education Magazine's twenty-five year citation to President David Jones of Bennett College provides an example. The presentation was made at the banquet during the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of The Methodist Church, held January 7-8, in Washington, D. C.

Timed to parallel as closely as possible the association meeting, an article appeared in The Christian Advocate telling of the services of Dr. Jones and of the growth and development of Bennett under his guidance and leadership. A similar feature, which might well have been termed a "success story," appeared in the January 7 issue of Newsweek magazine. Another such feature was sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate and short advance stories were sent to all conference and regional advocates. In attendance at the banquet were reporters and camera men from wire services and from local and other newspapers.

A reasonable amount of advance planning and careful follow-up once more paid some gratifying dividends.

25 YEARS... A PRESIDENT

by EUGENE MILLER

. . . and during that time David Jones helped Bennett college grow from 3 buildings, 10 students and no funds to 31 buildings, 450 students and a $1,000,000 endowment

WHEN David Jones, president of Bennett college in Greensboro, N. C., was a small boy, the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina was just being founded. The founder, Charles D. McIver, had a saying which became a household word: "When you educate a man you educate an individual; but when you educate a woman, you educate a family."

Today David Jones is rounding out his twenty-fifth year as president of Bennett college, one of the outstanding woman's colleges in the country, and more firmly than ever he believes in Dr. McIver's wise saying.

For the past 25 years it has been Dr. Jones's job to educate and train young Negro women for places in the community and the home. The success of his program is evidenced today by the more than 1,100 Bennett graduates who are occupying prominent roles in medicine, teaching, and business, and by the thousands who as housewives and mothers are helping to rear future Negro leaders.

The Bennett campus in Greensboro with its rolling green lawns and red brick buildings reflects the serenity of life and beauty of surroundings that Dr. Jones has worked so hard to achieve for his students. For actually the story of the modern-day Bennett is the story of Dr. Jones.

That story begins in Greensboro in 1887, when David was born. His father, Sydney Dallas Jones, was a shoemaker, and his mother, Mary Jane Jones, a schoolteacher. Both were firm believers in the value of education.

Money wasn't plentiful in the Jones household, and even before he reached his teens, David had learned the value of money the hard way—working as an office boy and doing extra chores. When David was 12, his father died, leaving the wife to support four daughters and two sons.

To help ease his mother's burden, David went to live with his brother, Robert Jones, an editor in New Orleans. There he finished high school.

But David's dreams for an education went far beyond the high-school level. Scraping together all the money he could with his brother's assistance, he left New Orleans in 1908 to enroll in Wesleyan college. There he waited on tables in a fraternity house and operated a pressing shop to augment his savings. He graduated among the top members of his class and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

AFTER graduation, Jones worked with the YMCA in New York, and in 1914 transferred to the Pine Street Y in St. Louis. He found that the Pine Street Y had a membership of only 20 and was heavily in debt. Undaunted, he plunged into the job of building up that membership. The process was a long, tough one but by 1923 it had passed the 2,000 mark. It was during his St. Louis stay that Jones met and married Susie P. Williams, the daughter of a St. Louis high-school principal.

In 1923 Jones left St. Louis to become secretary of the Standard Life Insurance company of Atlanta. But just when Jones was ready to take over his new post, the company failed and the Joneses were left stranded in Atlanta.

Even in this desperate situation, fortune smiled on Jones. Five hundred miles north of Atlanta in Greensboro, N. C., a group of men were also faced with a desperate situation. As trustees of Bennett college they were trying to find some way of salvaging the venerable Negro institution, a coeducational college since 1873. Competition from the fast-growing, state-supported institutions had made serious inroads on Bennett's finances and enrollment.

The Bennett trustees decided that the solution lay in making the institution a woman's college. It was at this point that David Jones's name was introduced by one of his old Greensboro schoolteachers.

WHEN the trustees offered Jones the post, he blinked in amazement. He had never taught or contemplated being an educator. Running a college was as foreign to him as throwing a javelin. But the offer presented a place to settle down and a challenging opportunity. Jones accepted it.

The situation looked anything but promising when Jones arrived on the campus in 1926. Total enrollment of the college was 10 students; there wasn't a dollar in the bank. The college consisted of a small, scrubby campus of three buildings, and the entire student body, the faculty, and the Joneses all lived in one large, rambling structure that served as a dormitory, faculty residence, and president's home rolled into one.

The first good news Jones received came in the form of pledges from the Woman's Home Missionary society and the Board of Education of The Methodist Church. That first year Bennett operated on a budget of $14,408 and received $2,791 in tuition. The deficit was made up from the funds supplied by the two Methodist groups.

Although Dr. Jones spent long hours desperately trying to put the college on a sound financial footing, he found time also to formulate an over-all educational plan that was to provide a firm steppingstone for the college's development.

Dr. Jones believed that there was a direct correlation between the physical surroundings of a school and the education that it furnished its students.

Twenty-five Years a President

"Our buildings are to be kept clean, ot for the inspection of visitors, but or our own self-respect," Jones told is students.

Next, Dr. Jones believed that the ducational program should be geared bout the concept that each girl must evelop an individual philosophy of fe. "Emphasis is to be placed on the rls as individuals," Jones told his culty. "Our graduates are not to be mass-produced and not to be made to conform to one mold. They must be taught to think for themselves."

The years moved slowly from 1926 to 1931, and so did Bennett's finances and enrollment. In 1931 Jones had dangled before him the lucrative post of manager of the $3,000,000 Rosenwald Housing project in Chicago at twice his salary as Bennett president. "My wife and I decided it would be bad business to move on when we haven't finished the job we have undertaken here," he wrote the project directors in declining it.

The next year Jones appealed to the Board of Education for a grant, but his request was turned down. Shortly thereafter one of the board's members, Dr. J. H. Dillard, happened to be in Greensboro and dropped in to visit Dr. Jones.

"David, have you taken that Rosenwald job?" Dillard asked by way of conversation. When Jones said he had turned it down, tears began to form in Dr. Dillard's eyes. "Listen, if that's how much you think of Bennett, Bennett must go forward." The result was a grant of $250,000 on one condition — the amount would be matched by other contributions.

Friends of Dr. Jones thought such an offer was no better than nothing. But Jones remembered Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer, a deeply religious woman, who had for many years been interested in educational institutions. Maybe she could be convinced of the future of Bennett.

He invited Mrs. Pfeiffer and her friends to Bennett. The women were immediately impressed with the clean, scrubbed look of the college, and the well-mannered, courteous students. In the end, Mrs. Pfeiffer matched the Board of Education contribution, and through the succeeding years she and her husband were the college's principal benefactors, giving a total of $1,050,000 to the school.

And Mrs. Pfeiffer later often called upon the board to match her contributions. As a result, the Rockefeller group has given a total of $835,000 to Bennett since 1932.

As for Dr. Jones himself, these 25 years have blessed him, too. For his accomplishments at Bennett, he has been awarded an honorary doctorate from Howard university, and has been honored by election to the board of directors of the Association of American Colleges.

Dr. Jones has been a member of the Board of Education of The Methodist Church for the past 20 years and a member of the National Council of the Churches of Christ. He has also been honored by being named president of the Association of Methodist Colleges.

Now that the proverbial 25 years have rolled by, what is Bennett's status? On a beautiful 42-acre campus stand 31 buildings, all in the best American Colonial tradition. The college has an endowment of over $1,000,000, and assets in buildings and property amounting to $3,591,995. It has a student body of 450, representing 32 states and several foreign countries. Its educational rating is the highest; its faculty hand-picked and representative of various religious beliefs, creeds, and backgrounds.

HONORED:

For Oustanding Service

A singular honor was bestowed on Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett college, when the National Association of Schools and Colleges of The Methodist Church and Christian Education magazine honored him on the occasion of the completion of 25 years of service as a Methodist college president. The story of Dr. Jones' achievements are featured in this issue.

Dr. Jones received this honor at a special banquet which was held at the American university, Monday evening, Jan. 7. A present member of the strategy committee of the organization, Dr. Jones is also a past president of the association.

Dr. Jones began his duties as president of Bennett college in 1926 with 10 young women as students. Now over 500 women train annually at the college, located almost in the center of Greensboro, N. C.

EUGENE MILLER

Eugene Miller ("25 Years a President") works in Greensboro, N. C., home of Bennett college, as assistant city editor of the "Daily News." At 26, he is also a radio news commentator and author of articles appearing in "Coronet," "Good Housekeeping" and "Popular Science"

What about the future? Dr. Jones wants to build his college internally. First of all, he hopes to build the college's endowment from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 to enable the college to withstand inflation and to keep Bennett's financial foundation solid.

Second, he wants a strong faculty and money enough to attract and hold outstanding teachers.

As for size, Dr. Jones points out that the trustees have always planned to keep the college's enrollment at a maximum of 500 students. "We can't fulfill our mission in a mass way," he explains.

$75,000 Gift Clears Debts Of Bennett

GREENSBORO, Jan. 13. (AP)—The presentation of a $75,000 check from the Kresge Foundation has made Bennett College entirely debt free, Dr. David D. Jones, president of the local Negro institution, announced today.

Dr. Jones made the announcement jointly with N. S. Calhoun of Greensboro, chairman of a drive to raise $180,000 by December 31, 1951.

The Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Michigan, a philanthropic organization established in 1924, pledged the $75,000 in the event Bennett College raised the $180,000 before the deadline.

Totaling $260,000, the money will be used to pay a debt the college incurred a few years ago to help build a student union building on the campus. Cost of the new construction was $500,000. Approximately $300,000 was available to the school and it was forced to raise the remainder.

CRISIS
NEW YORK CITY
JAN 1952

Annual BENNETT COLLEGE Christmas choir concert was given in Pfeiffer chapel on December 16, featuring Frances Carr, Thomasina Martin, Erma Rhea, Melvina Lyons, Grathea Taylor, and Cornelia King as soloists.

The program was divided into three parts: the first being highlighted by "Hodie, Christus Natus Est," by Sweelinck; the second, by selections from "The Messiah"; and the third, by folk carols from various countries.

President David D. Jones and N. A. Calhoun, prominent Greensboro citizen, appealed to interested people concerned with the upkeep of Bennett to make their contributions to the Bennett college quarter century fund drive which ended in December.

One of the ace free-lance photographers in the spot news and feature reporting field, Ed. Feinkersh, visited Bennett college campus December 9-11 to shoot over 700 pictures of life on the campus.

Veteran of some of the top assignments from such magazines as Life, Look, McCalls, Ladies Home Journal and Coronet, Feinkersh was under Christmas trees, on tops of tables, and generally in and around all activity on the Bennett campus during his three day stay. Concentrating on the "natural every-day" expression of the Bennett girl, Feinkersh has recorded through his candid camera-eye scenes in the dining room, the dormitories, the classooms and taken pictures of the religious activities as well as the social.

Defend Truth, Bishop Says At Bennett

Truth has no significance to man until he can see it personified, Bishop Edgar A. Love, head of the Baltimore Area of the Methodist Church, declared in his sermon at Bennett College yesterday morning.

Speaking to ministers and laymen attending pastoral and leadership institutes on the campus, Bishop Love said that Jesus symbolized truth and that modern man cannot get away from his responsibility to Christ.

"We are living in perilous times," the prelate continued, "when men are afraid to speak out for truth. But if we keep quiet in days like this, who will there be to speak out for Jesus?"

WORK ON BENNETT COLLEGE HEATING TUNNEL SYSTEM IS RESUMED

Work on completion of the system of heating tunnels on the Bennett College campus got under way last week and will be completed before school reopens in September.

The George W. Kane Construction Company of this city is doing the job which will cost approximately $57,000.

The tunnels, which will be of the walk-in type, will be six feet wide and seven feet high, permitting workmen making repairs or subsequent installations to work without obstruction or inconvenience.

New copper hot water pipes and wrought iron steam pipes will be racked to the side of the tunnels and each section will have louvres installed for the removal of hot air.

The new tunnels, which will connect the Fine Arts Building, Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel, the John Race Administration Building, Merner Hall, the Pfeiffer Science Building, Holgate Library and Kent Hall, will connect up in front of the Student Union Building with the main tunnel from the campus heating plant.

Miss Goins Returns From Virgin Islands; To Speak At Mt. Tabor

Miss Dixie Lee Goins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlin M Goins, who has just returned from St. Thomas Island in the Virgin Islands, will be guest speaker at Mt. Tabor Methodist Church, Sunday, July 10th at 8 p.m.

Miss Goins served as a Missionary and taught Home Economics for two years on the island. She was recommended to accept this position in the islands by the State Supervisor of Home Economics Education. After realizing the great demand for learning by the natives, Miss Goins accepted because she felt the urge to work with those who haven't the educational opportunities that our youth enjoys.

Miss Goins attended Goshen Elementary School, Dudley High School, and is a 1952 graduate of Bennett College. She is a lifelong resident of the Mt. Tabor Community and is very active in all community organizations. She is a member of the Ebenezer Baptist Church of her community and an active member of the Inter-Denomination Ushers Association of North Carolina.

Miss Goins plans to return to the Islands soon.

How Ideas Have Helped Bennett College Growth

Dr. Jones Has Done a Great Deal in 25 Years

By Chester S. Davis

DAVID DALLAS JONES became a college president in 1926. At the time his trustees must have suspected that the new executive was due to have the shortest scholastic career in acadamic history, for in 1926 Bennett College was nearer dead than alive.

Northern Methodists interested in the instruction of Southern Negroes had founded the institution in Greensboro in 1873. Named for Lyman Bennett of Troy, N. Y., the school was started as a co-educational seminary and operated—an overly strong word in this instance—on that basis until 1926.

That year David Dallas Jones was employed to make a college for Negro women out of Bennett. His was a task of making bricks without straw.

Besides his shining title, President Jones was given few assets: four down-at-the-heel buildings, a faculty and student body which was somewhat larger but also down at the heels, a bank account held open by a single dollar, a 35-acre campus planted in turnips and corn, and one mule with a harness of sorts.

It is a pleasant play on words to report that David Jones rooted that mule in the ribs and, stepping into the harness, made a campus bloom in the corn patch.

Unlike most plays on words, that one comes mighty near to telling the truth.

Those of you who have visited the campuses of the various Negro colleges in North Carolina know that these schools tend to shine in the seat and be out at the elbows. Not even the most enthusiastic graduates would dream of comparing their schools with the gothic grandeur of Duke or even with the grab-bag charm of the University of North Carolina.

A Beautiful Campus

The impressive thing about Bennett College is that its physical plant does not suffer by such a comparison. Benjamin Fine, educational director of the New York Times, recently described the Bennett College campus as being "one of the most beautiful college campuses in America."

The Georgian buildings, with their white shutters backed by the soft red of brick and the sheen of climbing ivy, face a carefully manicured quadrangle, fringed and criss-crossed by neatly laid flagstone walks.

Inside the buildings you find that the same high standards of quality and good taste are maintained. The interior of the half-million dollar Student Union Building — the only building of its kind on a Negro campus—is softly colored by Williamsburg paper and tints. The furnishings are the sort you would expect to find against a pine paneled background.

Even in the older buildings, where the decorations are plain, the floors glisten with wax and the rooms are as immaculate and orderly as the point of a pin.

In the well-kept records of the business office this corn-patch-to-college-campus story of achievement is told in other ways. For example, the Bennett College endownment consisted of that one lonely dollar in 1926. Today the endowment is well over $1 million. The campus, worth perhaps $100,000 in 1926, is conservatively valued at $2.5 million today.

The school's budget, which stood at $41,804.74 in 1926, is $465,784.56 this year. When David Jones took over the college there were 10 students. This year the student body is just under 500.

That is a remarkable record for any school. For a privately financed Negro women's college, it is a miraculous record.

But when Dr. Jones, the author of this miracle, tells the story of Bennett College, his matter-of-fact manner gives you the misleading impression that the school, like

DR. DAVID DALLAS JONES

Topsy, "just growed." It wasn't that simple.

David Jones, the son of a cobbler, was born in Greensboro 64 years ago. Like most Negro families in Reconstruction times, his people were poor but they felt an uncommon pride in themselves, both as individuals and as members of a race which was entering an era of opportunity.

That pride has been a motivating force in the career of Dr. Jones and it probably explains why his brother Robert became the first Negro Bishop in the Methodist church.

When he completed his work in Greensboro's public schools, David went north and worked his way through Wesleyan College in Connecticut. Along with his board, room and tuition, he earned a Phi Beta Kappa key.

After a fling at YMCA work and an unsuccessful try at the insurance business, David Jones took a position with the Commission on Inter-racial Relations in Atlanta.

In 1926, when the Bennett College offer came to him, Dr. Jones was faced with an emotional decision. He and his wife had just lost a two-year-old child. He felt that he could no longer travel. He yearned for home and the Bennett College offer, while it meant a loss of income, appealed to him.

"I had visited the college when I was a boy but I had forgotten how shoddy it was. The return was disillusioning," he recalls.

"I was so ignorant about scholastic matters in those days," he says, "that I didn't even know that a college had to be rated."

Bennett's rating in 1926, in keeping with its corn patch campus, was "D," which was as low as it could get.

That first year the Jones family, the faculty and the 10 students all crowded into Kent Hall. There was enough money to keep the rundown plant open, but that was all.

Being a practical man, President Jones made the best of what he had. Along with the eager students and the probably disgruntled faculty members, he went to work with a broom and shovel and established what since has become the spit and polish tradition of Bennett College.

"One day," he remembers, "an old woman came by while I was working on the campus. She stopped to watch me and then she said, 'That's right, Mr. Jones, clean 'em up, paint 'em up. The poor old horse gets a lot of sympathy but it's the sleek horse that gets the pats."

The pats first came as slaps. The two largest educational foundations in the United States took one look at the Bennett campus, listened patiently while the emotional young college president beguiled them with his dreams, and then said "No!"

In 1928, however, a Federal survey committee studying Negro colleges took a look at Bennett College and reported that it was "very favorably impressed with the immaculate appearance of all the buildings on the campus."

Nor were the improvements all physical. In 1930 the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools gave Bennett an "A" rating.

After that Dr. Jones began to slip his hands into the money bags with disconcerting regularity.

In 1932 the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation offered the college $250,000 provided—and here they hung the moon—that Dr. Jones could raise a similar amount.

He did. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer of New York (chemicals) provided the matching money. During her lifetime Mrs. Pfeiffer gave Bennett College more than $1 million.

Steady Physical Growth

Since that time the college has grown steadily and smoothly. One building after another has been added to the campus. Each addition—there are now 31 buildings—has been carefully fitted for its function and blended into the over-all plan of campus development with equal care.

But this bare history of Bennett's physical growth misses the point. The growth didn't just happen. Dr. Jones got the dollars because he had ideas.

"In 1926," he says, "we had no choice but to do a unique job. At that time the big, State-financed Negro colleges were coming along. We either had to offer something special or fail while beating our wings in imitation of what the others were doing."

"Since we didn't have any money—or any real prospects of getting large sums of money—we had to have ideas."

From the beginning the philosophy of Bennett College has centered on two basic ideas.

The first idea was to take each student as she was and then use the resources of the school to develop the possibilities in each girl. "At Bennett," Dr. Jones explains, "our program is student centered, not curriculum centered."

This emphasis on the individual is peculiarly important in a Negro school. David Jones puts it this way: "People have a sense of their own dignity and worth only in so far as they have opportunities to make a contribution of their own."

At Bennett College the ceiling on opportunity is high. Students, for example, sit on all the college committees. They have a wide range of co-curricular activities, with emphasis on dramatics and music. The classes are small and a close relationship among the individual students is encouraged.

Dr. Jones recognizes that the mere business of living on a college campus is a part of the educational process. Many of these girls come from poor homes. Because of their background, their opportunities for living in gracious surroundings have been limited.

Dr. Jones' Philosophy

Even before he came to Bennett College Dr. Jones wrote, "Anyone who thinks through the problem readily can see that students who attend rundown, dirty, ill-kept schools carry back to their homes impressions that will surely make for disorderly lives."

"Our buildings are kept clean for our own self-respect—not for the inspection of visitors," he adds.

The second major idea at Bennett expresses itself in the form of a vigorous fight to abolish any sort of social stratification. "We want nothing here that separates people," Dr. Jones says.

For that reason there are no sororities at Bennett and the line between faculty members is relaxed and informal. David Jones goes so far in this respect that he discourages students from calling him "Doctor," preferring the less formal "Mister."

Here again the idea is important because it meets another peculiar problem of Negroes. In any Negro community there is a tendency, possibly because social opportunities are limited, toward the development of a social caste system that is so strictly defined that it makes the white social ladder seem rungless.

Dr. Jones, well aware of that fact, says, "It is foolish to permit social stratification to develop in a group as economically disadvantaged as ours."

To put this flexible, student-centered, democratic philosophy into effect has required experimentation and a wealth of new ideas.

Dr. Jones has deliberately sought out young men and women—white and Negro, Jew and gentile—who show promise as teachers. Because he has lacked money, he has not always been able to keep them for more than a year or two.

That fact, combined with his own intense—sometimes explosive—desire for top quality instruction explains why the rate of turnover among Bennett College faculty members is so high.

But while they are on the campus these young people contribute new ideas. The good doctor sometimes is described as a dictator. But that is because he has been inflexible regarding the basic principles of the Bennett philosophy. In seeking ideas which will make those principles come alive he encourages experimentation.

In his search for ideas he has shown uncanny skill as a "brain picker."

When he was ready to build his chapel he inquired around in architectural circles and learned that Jens Frederick Larsen, the man who designed the new Wake Forest campus, was considered the top hand in college work.

Dr. Jones went to Mr. Larsen, explained his problem and made it plain that he would like advice although he could not pay a penny for it. Jens Larsen made a trip to Greensboro at his own expense and solved the chapel problem. Since then he has served as the unofficial and unpaid architect of Bennett College.

George Gillette, the man who handled a great part of the Williamsburg reconstruction, is another advisor. Over the years Dr. Jones has picked at the brains of such educators as Edgar Dale (Ohio State), Dean Thomas Holgate of Northwestern University, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Charters, educational consultants of Stephens College, and Dr. Constance Warren, former president of Sarah Lawrence.

David Jones has had the same sort of good fortune among his trustees. Mrs. Julius Cone of Greensboro, for instance, has headed the college's building and furnishing committee for many years. Because she has steadfastly insisted on quality and good taste, Bennett College today can boast of a physical plant that is inferior to none.

There are those who say that Dr. Jones, in his preoccupation with fine surroundings, attractive manners and good grooming, has forgotten that the primary purpose of any school is education. They charge that he is operating a finishing school rather than a serious college.

The record of Bennett girls in top-flight Northern graduate schools does not bear out such charges. Neither does the fact that Bennett girls are in great demand as teachers. As a matter of fact, one Negro educator said, "It's that little extra something the Bennett girls seem to have that explains why we like to get them to teach in our schools."

To Dr. Jones, education is more than vocational training. It also means training girls to live decently and gracefully and to be prepared to serve well as homemakers and mothers.

It is custom work, with each girl presenting a slightly different problem. But, he says, "when you get them moving on their own steam—doing the things they like to do and are equipped to do—that's when they begin to go places. Here at Bennett College we seek to provide the motivation."

David Jones neither seeks nor ducks the credit for what has been accomplished at Bennett College. He is quick to share credit with his trustees, with men like Jens Larsen and particularly with his quiet and gracious wife—a woman who is a lifelong ideal for many Bennett graduates.

But he explains the Bennett story in these simple words: "The Gods bring threads to a web begun."

Bennett College girls do all the work in the dormitories and the dining hall and help keep their campus tidy.

The feeling of Bennett girls towards their school is demonstrated by a surprisingly small student loss and by a wet-eyed sentimentality—on the part of both the president and the graduates—at commencement time.

Bennett College:

GRANT GIVEN

A gift of $100,000 to Bennett college from the Woman's Division of Christian Service was recently announced by Dr. David D. Jones, president.

The grant, which will supplement funds already given the United Negro College Fund, will be applied on the construction of a gymnasium and swimming pool.

Approval of a half-million-dollar budget for the 1955-56 school year and the granting of an indefinite leave of absence at full salary to President Jones were major actions taken by the executive committee of the college trustee board in recent session. The granting of the leave of Dr. Jones is for the purpose of hastening his recovery from an illness which has kept him out of his office a great portion of the current school year. Dr. Willa B. Player, vice-president, who has been in charge of college operations during the illness of Dr. Jones, will continue in that capacity.

A memorial service for the late Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder and president-emerita of Bethune-Cookman college, Daytona Beach, Fla., was held on the Bennett college campus at high noon, May 23. With the flag at half-staff, students and faculty gathered around the flagpole in the center of the campus quadrangle and heard Bishop Edgar A. Love, of the Baltimore Area, deliver the address of tribute. Dr. Bethune was an honorary alumna of Bennett.

Van S. Allen, biology instructor at Bennett college, is the recipient of a scholarship to study at Yale university summer school of Alcohol Studies, from June 27 to July 22.

Miss Frederica Washington of Beaufort, S. C., has been awarded the Belle Tobias Scholarship ($75) given annually to the Bennett college freshman who is considered to have made the most outstanding improvement during the year.

Announcement of this award, and of the award of four Methodist scholarships valued at $400 each, was made at the annual Honors Day observance. Recipients of the Methodist scholarships are: Misses Grace Dungee, Greensboro; Josie Harris, Camden, S. C.; Shirley Johnson, Brown Summit; and Deloris Tonkins, Greensboro.

Missionary— Barbara Patterson of Roanoke, Va., June graduate of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., enters Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn., this week for a one-month indoctrination course preparatory to taking a foreign assignment as a missionary from the Methodist Church.

SUCCESSFUL FINANCIAL DRIVE RECALLS 25 YEARS OF PROGRESS AT BENNETT.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (ANP)--When the Kresge foundation recently presented a $75,000 check to Bennett college and thus acknowledged the successful culmination of a drive to raise $180,000, many friends and alumni of the college recalled the long years of struggle by the school to attain its present status as a leading college for Negro young women.

The Kresge foundation of Detroit, Mich., a philanthropic organization established in 1924, pledged the $75,000 in the event Bennett college raised $180,000 before Dec. 31, 1951. Proceeds from the drive and the donation will be used to pay a debt the college incurred a few years ago to help build a student union building on the campus.

Cost of the new construction was $500,000. Approximately $300,000 was available at the time and it was forced to raise the remainder.

Bennett college has come a long way since it was first organized in 1873. Over the years, competition from fast-growing, state supported institutions made serious inroads on the college's finances and enrollment.

A crisis developed and the trustees decided that the solution lay in making the school a woman's college. Among other things, the trustees believed in the theory that "when you educate a man you educate an individual; but when you educate a woman, you educate a family."

Much of the progress made at the college can be attributed to Dr. David Jones, who has been president of the school for the past 25 years.

The situation looked anything but promising when Dr. Jones arrived on the campus in 1926. Total enrollment of the college was 10 students; there wasn't a dollar in the bank. The college included a small, scrubby campus of three buildings, and the entire student body, the faculty, and the Joneses all lived in one large rambling structure that served as a dormitory, faculty residence, and president's home rolled into one.

During Dr. Jones first year as president, Bennett operated on a budget of $14,408 and received $2,791 in tuition. The deficit was made up from funds supplied by the Woman's Home Missionary society and the board of education of The Methodist Church.

Although Dr. Jones spent long hours desperately trying to put the college on a sound financial footing, he found time also to formulate an over-all educational plan that was to provide a firm stoppingstone for the college's development.

He felt that there was a direct correlation between the physical surroundings of a school and the education it furnished to its students.

"Students somehow absorb the atmosphere of their physical surroundings," he said. "It will show up in their dress and manners, in their study habits, in their attitude to visitors and in every day classroom department."

Next, Dr. Jones said that the educational program should be geared about the concept that each girl must develop an individual philosphy of life.

"Emphasis is to be placed on the girls as individuals," he told his faculty. "Our graduates are not to be mass-produced and not to be made to comform to one mold. They must be taught to think for themselves."

The years moved slowly from 1926 to 1931, and so did Bennett's finance's and enrollment. In 1932 Dr. Jones appealed to the board of education for a grant, but his request was turned downed.

Shortly afterwards, however, because of his loyalty to the college and his refusal to accept another position offering more money, the board made a grant of $250,000. But there was a condition attached to the grant-the amount would be have to be matched by other contributions.

Dr. Jones found an "angel" in Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer, a deeply religious woman, who had for many years been interested in educational institutions. In the end, Mrs. Pfeiffer matched the board of education contribution, and through the succeeding years she and her husband were the college's principal benefactors, giving a toatl of $1,950,000 to the school. Indirectly, they were responsible for the Rockefeller group giving a total of $835,000 to Bennett since 1932.

With this aid, the college was well on its way to becoming the school that it now is. Situated on a beautiful 42-acre campus with 31 buildings, all in American colonial tradition, the college has an endowment of over $1,000,000, and assets in buildings and property amounting to $3,591,395.

Its present student body of some 450 coeds represents 32 states and several foreign countries. Its education rating and faculty are among the best.

As for the future, Dr. Jones envisions a Bennett with an endowment of $3,000,000 and a maximum enrollment of some 500 coeds.

United States Can Assume Leadership of World Says N. Y. Medical Society Head

DR. PETER MARSHALL MURRAY
President, Medical Society of the County of New York

GREENSBORO, N.C.—The United States can assume world leadership only when it accepts the premise that true democracy must not be compromised by prejudice, malice or fear, Dr. Peter Marshall Murray declared in his commencement address at Bennett College here Monday.

Dr. Murray, president of the Medical Society of the County of New York and a prep school roommate of Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett, said that what happens in America, good or bad, is well publicized abroad.

He referred to the remarks of Gen. Carlos Romulo of the Philippines at the recent Afro-Asian conference at Bandung in which the latter said that "although the Communists unconsciously distort the story, the fact remains that the negative status of the American Negro is the one best known in Asia."

He chided U.S. State Department officials as "stupid and unintelligent" for not making more and better use of Negro representativs by sending them to Asia as ambassadors of good will.

Addressing himself to the school desegregation issue, Dr. Murray said:

"The biggest value to come out of the U.S. Supreme Court decision may well be the emancipation of white people for it has given them the legal right to act as good as they are."

"The nation, and not just the Negro group has a stake in the threats and legal moves coming from some Southern states that prepare the way for eliminating their public school systems. The maintenance of a public school system in every section of the country may well be a value the nation will not want to permit any state to abandon at its own discretion."

After paying high tribute to President and Mrs. Jones for their achievement in making Bennett what it is today, the speaker extolled the high purposes of the college, among them, the provision of an opportunity for growth in religious thought, the insuring of adequate preparation in certain specialized fields and the development of the desire to aid in the solution of social problems by a critical and unemotional analysis of current social issues.

He pointed out that the one remedy which can save society today is the "return, with compelling emphasis, to the moral values upon which this country was founded."

"The dignity and quiet culture at Bennett," he said, "help to make a rounded life. This is important, because there is a kinship among people of culture. Water will seek its own level."

"No longer can we hide behind the fact that racial discrimination prevents us from doing certain things. We have been pushed out into the main stream of life and it is now a question of whether we are prepared to take our places in it."

Addressing himself directly to the 100 members of the graduating class, Dr. Murray said: "Do not permit others to set the moral standards by which you order your life. Lift your horizons and in meeting your daily responsibilities, try to see that you are helping to preserve and build a better life for all mankind, for no man is an island unto himself."

In closing, he admonished the graduates to "light a candle, rather than curse the darkness."

$100,000 Gift to Bennett College

GREENSBORO, N.C.—A gift of $100,000 to Bennett College from the Women's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, was announced this week by Dr. David D. Jones, president.

The grant, which will supplement funds already given by the United Negro College Fund, will be applied on the construction of a gymnasium and swimming pool which have been long needed to round out the physical plant.

In making the announcement, President Jones pointed out that it was this same organization that was instrumental in the founding of Bennett as a college exclusively for women back in 1926 when he was called to the presidency.

Speaking at the college's Quarter Century Convocation, he praised Bennett leaders for the "courage, vision, and faith" that has made it a "useful and vital college for women."

End of Campaign

Marking the end of a campaign which brought the college more than $250,000, Cowan cited the rapid growth of Bennett on a campus that 25 years ago was "little more than a corn field and a bean patch."

Cowan was introduced by Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, in the college's Pfeiffer Chapel.

The convocation was held to honor N. S. Calhoun, general chairman of the recent quarter century fund drive, and William Folk, Jr., and Dr. William Hampton, drive division chairmen.

Awards Presented

Dr. W. C. Jackson, former Woman's College chancellor and chairman of the Bennett board of trustees, presented the award to Calhoun. A college trustee, J. A. Tarpley, presented the awards to the division chairman and another award to Robert J. Sailstead, fund raiser associated with the Methodist Church.

The convocation was also marked by the presentation of a citation to Lt. Charles R. Amstrong, wounded Korean war veteran, by Juanita Page, president of the student senate.

Others participating in the service were Bishop Robert E. Jones, also a Bennett College trustee, Rev. Henry Holder, and Alice Rhodes, a Bennett Senior.

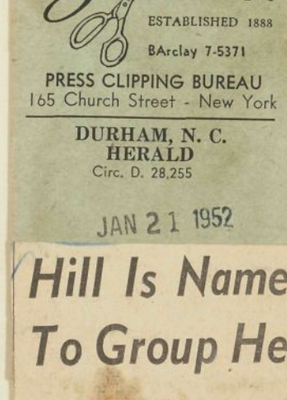
Hill Is Named Assistant To Group Head In Liberia

By JOE BYRD
Herald Staff Writer

William A. Hill, son of Mrs. Nancy E. Hill of 403 Brant St., has recently been appointed administrative assistant to the president of the Booker Washington Institute of Liberia at Kakata.

Hill will go to Liberia under the auspices of the Booker Washington Institute of Liberia Inc., of New York State. He is among the first personnel to be selected to assist the West African Republic in an intensified agricultural and industrial educational program.



WILLIAM A. HILL

Hill, 33, is married and the couple has two sons, William Richard, 13, and Samuel Allen Hill, 2. The Hills live at Ozone Park, Long Island, N. Y. His wife, the former Laura Coles, spent 14 years of her life in West Africa as the daughter of an American missionary, the Rev. Samuel B. Coles.

Asked why he wanted to go to Liberia to teach, Hill said, "I think that a statement made by my father-in-law can answer that better than any other." He said that the Rev. Mr. Coles once told a group that the moment that he arrived at his post in Africa he realized that "empty stomachs had to be filled before preaching would fall on attentive ears."

Hill quoted his father-in-law as saying that "Africa needs agricultural and industrial technicians as desperately as it needs preachers."

The Hills will sail for Liberia from New Orleans on Jan. 25. Mrs. Hill said, "It's just like going home to me." She is a home economist and holds degrees from Bennett College of Greensboro and Columbia University.

The Booker Washington Institute of Liberia specializes in teaching agriculture and industrial development. Particular emphasis is placed on adoption of American know-how and techniques.

Now boasting some 300 students, the Institute was founded in 1928 primarily through a Liberian Government land and financial grant.

The Institute was incorporated in New York State in 1931 and since has received financial support from various philanthropic individuals and societies.

A graduate of North Carolina College, New York University, and the University of Florence, Italy, Hill has taught at Hillside High School, Florida A. and M. College, NYU and in the New York City Public Schools. He presently is working on a doctor's degree in the field of higher education.

Prior to his recent appointment in Liberia, he was director of the Dorchester Cooperative Community Center at McIntosh, Ga.

He said, "I feel that going to West Africa will be an opportunity for me to put to best use the training and experience that I have received here at home."

Bennett College Raises $180,000 In Century Fund Drive

Institution Becomes Free Of Debt

Bennett Qualifies For Conditional Grant Of Kresge

GREENSBORO, N. C. — Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College, announced last week that the citizens of this North Carolina city along with generous help from alumni of the college, faculty, and students, have succeeded in raising slightly more than $180,000 in the Quarter Century Fund Drive under the direction of Chairman N. S. Calhoun, and have thereby qualified to receive a grant of $75,000 from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Michigan.

Both Dr. Jones and Mr. Calhoun expressed their deep appreciation to all concerned—those who gave their contributions and those many workers who aided during the campaign. The grant from the Kresge Foundation automatically makes Bennett College one of the few debt-free institutions of its kind in the South.

THIS FOUNDATION, created by Sebastian S. Kresge and incorporated in 1924, was to be for the purposes of "promotion of eleemosynary, philanthropic and charitable means of any and all of the means of human progress whether they be for the benefit of religious, charitable, benevolent, or educational institutions or public benefactions of whatever name or nature." The Foundation has for a number of years made an annual grant to the United Negro College Fund.

The effort to raise $260,000 was an all-out drive to relieve the Methodist College for Negro women of a debt incurred when it became necessary to build a student union building housing a new dining room and recreation area for the students. The building cost well over $500,000 and some $300,000 was available at the time. The remainder had to be raised and the Quarter Century Fund was thus inaugurated in 1950.

THE DRIVE GAINED momentum when word was received from the Kresge Foundation that trustees would grant the last $75,000 for the fund if the college should raise the initial $180,000 by December 31, 1951.

Dr. Jones pointed out that a record of the college that of never losing a conditional gift, still stands as a result of the drive which was held in conjunction with the 25th anniversary of the school under his leadership. The first such conditional offer was made in 1932 when the General Education Board contributed $250,000.

THE PHYSICAL PLANT of the school is now valued at $2,496,236.04, with an endowment of $1,050,000. Since June of 1950 Bennett has put into capital improvements $490,520.74, investing this money in new improvements such as faculty apartments, additions to buildings, streets, and other necessary items.

Chartered by the State of North Carolina in 1889, the college is named in honor of Lyman Bennett of Troy, N. Y., who contributed the first $10,000 towards its building. The enrollment 25 years ago was ten young women; it now stands well over 500 and is rated "A" by the Association of Colleges and Secondary School of the Southern States. The school has received plaudits from educational authorities the world over and stands as one of the great contributions to the education of the Negro woman.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES of the school is made up of men and women, both white and colored, from various sections of the United States, and is largely responsible for the high and respected educational standards found in the school.

Dr. Jones announced that the college will concentrate its efforts over the next few years in working along with the United Negro College Fund and will merge its support with this worthwhile organization. He was obviously elated over the support afforded the drive by the citizens of the community who aided the cause of the Negro school, and termed the Kresge grant "one of the finest and most appreciated gifts in the history of the college."

DR. RICHARD I. McKINNEY SPEAKS AT BENNETT

Stating that each particular life has its own particular purpose, he called upon youths to pray in an effort to gain strength to live in accordance with various purposes.

BENNETT COLLEGE SENDS "PIN-UPS" TO SOLDIERS

If pictures of Bennett "Pin-Up" girls will aid the morale of Battery A, 46th AAA Automatic Weapons Battalion (SP) somewhere overseas, then the boys of the battalion are in for a surprise, because shots of various Bennett girls are on the way.

Lt. Warren E. Hatcher recently wrote to the Public Relations Bureau at Bennett, saying that the men of his battalion had contributed quite liberally to the College Fund campaign; his men contributed well over $800 to the Fund. He had promised them that, in return for their generosity, he would try to secure some pictures of "the girls back home" to put on the troop bulletin board.

I PROPOSE . . .

Two Methodist leaders suggest fields of endeavor that could profit from action by General Conference

CONSIDERATION FOR MINORITIES

THE General Conference of 1952 meets in one of the most fateful hours which our world has ever known. I would like to see it give a minimum of time to political maneuvering and parliamentary debate, and a maximum of time to problems that bring us to a sense of our own need of God.

For example, there is so simple a matter as the Golden Rule: "And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." That is a revolutionary doctrine.

Suppose, for instance, that in the church we would challenge members to do unto the minority groups here in America as the majority would be done by. That would create furor in the General Conference, and yet that is the thing with which the General Conference needs to be challenged.

There can be very little reality in our [illegible]stianity as long as we preach doc- Chris[illegible] which we make very little effort trines [illegible] This doctrine of doing unto to practice.

others as we would have them do to us, of course, would get our church into world influence, for it would challenge our statesmen and the statesmen of other nations to treat all groups in the world as we Americans would want to be treated.

It would challenge labor to treat the employers as labor would want to be treated; and it would challenge the employer to do away with the exploitation of labor which is so prevalent in American industry. It would challenge those vested interests which live on the slums and, therefore, live on the ill health and lack of well-being of millions of our citizens.

It might, if we had influence enough, challenge the statesmen of the world to see that little has been done to bring the world to the fundamental understandings of the Christian doctrine and of its corollary, Christian democracy.

Honored At Bennett

Four men who were largely instrumental in raising over $250,000 in the Bennett College Quarter Century Fund drive which was recently completed, and a wounded Korean soldier who is on leave in Greensboro, were officially recognized and honored at Bennett recently by trustees, faculty, students and friends of the college; the men for their contribution to education and the soldier for his contribution to democracy.

N. S. Calhoun, prominent Greensboro citizen, church and civic leader who served as general chairman of the drive, was awarded a citation from Dr. W. C. Jackson, president of the board of trustees and a member of it during the 25 years of the growth of the college. Mr. Calhoun was cited as an example of courageous leadership in the cause of education and was warmly saluted for the job he did in organizing the group. Another trustee, J. A. Tarpley, issued citations and grateful thanks for the parts that William Folk Jr. and Dr. William Hampton played as division chairmen. A surprise award was given to Robert J. Sailstad who served as assistant to President David D. Jones throughout the drive.

High light of the convocation which was held in the beautiful Annie Merner Pfeiffer chapel and attended by church, education and civic leaders of North Carolina, was the presentation of a citation to 1st Lieut. Charles R. Armstrong, a graduate of A. & T. college and brother to a recent Bennett graduate. As Lieut. Armstrong walked down the long aisle flanked by two other army comrades, the audience instinctively stood and paid the wounded lieutenant silent and grateful tribute while the citation was read. Those on the speakers platform, as well as those throughout the chapel, wept as he was thanked by Student Senate president, Juanita Page, for his sacrifices.

The featured address was given by J. C. Cowan Jr., president of Burlington Mills corporation. He paid high tribute to Dr. David Jones, who this year completes 25 years as president of the school, calling his accomplishments as "God-guided." He stated that "beneath the Bennett college story is one of this generation's outstanding examples of faith," and remarked that "faith, vision and courage stemmed through conviction of God."

Protestant Welfare Emphasis On Homes For Negro Children

The Special Committee on Home-Finding, a promotion of the Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies, held its first meeting last week and heard suggestions that efforts to find foster homes be concentrated in Negro neighborhoods because eight out of ten children needing temporary care are Negro.

Joseph E. Davis, Executive Vice-President of the Carver Federal Savings and Loan Association, presided at the meeting and the Special Committee learned from Federation staff workers that stepped up activity had resulted in making contact with 587 prospective foster families in the past four months, compared with 263 during the same period a year ago. The figures show an increase of 136 per cent in the number of Negro prospective foster parents. Members of the Interracial committee recommended that emphasis on personal contacts with prospective foster families be continued, and offered their cooperation in making this possible. They also agreed to request that civic and social organizations include discussion of foster home care as a part of their meetings.

As previously noted in this column, foster homes are for temporary care, not for adoption, of children who must be cared for away from their own homes because of family tragedies such as sickness, death, divorce and desertion. From $50 to $60 a month is paid for the care of each child, in addition to clothing, medical and dental expenses. Persons interested in boarding a child will be referred to one of the eleven affiliate agencies, but contact should first be made with the Federation of Protestant Agencies, 207 Fourth Ave., New York 3 (Spring 7-4800).

The National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA, and its Washington office will carefully guard the separation of Church and State, but this does not mean the separation of religion and politics, declared Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary, at a luncheon held at the Hotel Statler in Washington recently. The luncheon honored the new general director of the Washington office, Dr. Earl Frederick Adams, who described the Washington Office as "a symbol of the cooperative effort of the churches to achieve higher standards of righteousness, justice and morality, and to preserve our spiritual heritage."

Dr. Cavert said the central purpose of the Washington Office is to strengthen the position of the 29 churches of the national Council "in their relations with the government of our country." He emphasized that it is not a regional office, a lobby, or a legislative bureau, but an integral part of the National Council. As in the action opposing the Appointment of an ambassador to the Vatican, the Washington Office keeps continuous watch on developments which enables the Council to act upon the basis of accurate and authoritative information.

The Society of Missionaries of Africa, better known as the "White Fathers of the Dark Continent," has established quarters in Los Angeles through the generosity of Mrs. Mary Cheney, a wealthy Mormon-born widow who, recently converted to Catholicism, presented her spacious 17-room residence to the society for headquarters. She not only gave more than $200,000 in property but remained to cook for the Fathers. Her son, Augustine, 19, also an adherent, is now studying for the priesthood.

Dr. David D. Jones, eminent educator, was given a framed citation for his 25 years of services as president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., awarded by Christian Education magazine and presented to Dr. Jones at the annual meeting of the Nat'l Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church held in Washington in January at the American University, and attended by presidents and administrators of ten Methodist seminaries and 125 church-related colleges and universities, and other officials of the Church. Dr. J. Earl Moreland, president of Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., made the presentation.

Dr. William J. Trent, president of Livingstone College, Salisbury, N. C., will be tendered a Testimonial Dinner on Founder's Day, Feb. 12, in recognition of 27 years of unselfish service as head of the administration of the college, announced by the Trustees and the Board of Bishops of the AME Zion Church. Since it is Founder's Day, Bishop W. J. Walls has announced that bishops, officials and members of the church will make a pilgrimage to the college in support of the financial rally for the school and commemorate the founder, Dr. Joseph C. Price. It is expected that more than $75,000 will be reported for current expenses of the college.

Cleveland G. Allen, well known and respected journalist in New York City for many years, sent a letter of greetings to the Hon. W. V. S. Tubman, recently inaugurated President of Liberia. In his letter he said in part: "As an American Negro journalist, I am taking this opportunity to extend you my best wishes and prayers for the success of the ceremonies marking your inauguration as President of the Republic of Liberia. The occasion marks an eventful episode in the long and notable history of Liberia which has made a fine contribution towards the preservation of the principles and ideals which are saving values of a democracy.

"Liberia has taken its rightful place among the nations of the world, and has set a notable example in the peaceful and orderly government which it has maintained over 100 years. Liberia has preserved its self respect and kept its national integrity, and I am sure that under your leadership and guidance the future the Republic of Liberia is safe. . . . God bless you and your country as you go forward facing the responsibility and the task ahead. As Abraham Lincoln once said, "Let us strive to finish the work we are in'."

Bennett Announces 26th Homemaking Institute

President David D. Jones, of Bennett College, announced last Sunday that the 26th annual Homemaking Institute would be held, beginning March 2, and will continue through the following Sunday.

Central theme of this year's program is slated to be, "Re-examining Values for Purposeful Living," and will feature an address in Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel at the opening session by President Harry V. Richardson of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga.

Another prominent speaker, to be announced at a later date, will visit the college during the week, according to Dr. Jones.

The origin and need of values will be discussed by Dr. Richardson in the opening address, Sunday, March 2, at 4:00 p. m. On Monday, March 3, implications of the theme of the institute for both students and faculty will be discussed. Special workshops will be held Tuesday through Friday from 10 to 11:30 a. m. The first part of the week will find the workshop discussions concerned with understanding the process by which values come into being. The latter part of the week the workshops will study the application of values to demonstrate social relations.

On Saturday, March 8, High School Day will be observed and reports of the findings of the Institute workshops will be presented to the college and high school students.

The Institute will close on Sunday, March 9.

Mrs. David D. Jones, chairman of the Program Committee, stated that the week's activities will center around the question of the attainment of proper moral and spiritual values for youth today. The Institute will endeavor to clarify the meaning of democratic values as they relate to personal growth and achievement.

DR. ASHBY IS VESPER SPEAKER AT BENNETT

"What we are able to see as we journey through time depends on who we are, with whom we journey, and why we are journeying," said Dr. Warren Ashby of Woman's College, as he addressed the audience Sunday at Bennett College during the 4:00 p. m. vespers.

Citing the need in many instances for choosing new values for personal living, for selecting new friends, and for renewing one's purpose in life, the speaker pointed out the need for new sensibilities, comparing life with a theatre, where many people go, so intent upon what is set before them on the stage that they are not sensitive to the backstage activities, the stage props, and other media which combine to give the dramatic imitation of what really exists. Dr. Ashby closed his address with a challenge to the audience to venture to the interior and search ceaselessly for the real values in life.

Dr. David D. Jones, president of the college, announced vesper speakers for Sunday, March 2, and Sunday, March 9. They are Dr. Harry V. Richardson, president of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., whose address will open the 26th annual Homemaking Institute at Bennett College, and Dr. Myron F. Bennett College Honors Dr. And Mrs. David Jones

GREENSBORO, N. C. — Yet another honor, this one from the Bennett family, came to Dr. and Mrs. David D. Jones in a surprise ceremony conducted during regular Vesper services in Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel recently.

A hansomely hand-done illustrated manuscript containing the names of the entire Bennett family — from the maintenance men to students, members of the faculty and staff and representatives of the board of trustees, was given to Dr. Jones and his thoroughly surprised wife, Susie.

The Jones, who were recently honored in Washington, D. C. when they received the Christian Education Magazine award for their 25 years of devotion and sacrifices which have raised Bennett College from a corn pasture to one of the most beautiful and thoroughly respected of all Eastern colleges, were completely taken by surprise by the tangible token of esteem by members of "their" family.

"To President and Mrs. David D. Jones on their 25th anniversary at Bennett College.

Duties Of Strong Toward Weak Subject Of Prayer Day Speaker

"The relationship between strength and weakness living together on the earth is the crux of the world's problems today," said Rev. Charles Jones of Chapel Hill when he spoke yesterday in crowded Bennett College chapel.

The occasion was local marking of World Day of Prayer, which was sponsored everywhere yesterday by United Council of Church Women and locally by Greensboro Council of Church Women, headed by Mrs. Warren Ashby.

There should be no condescension in the prayers and works of the strong for the weak, the speaker said, for strength and weakness are relative things. Moreover, he told his interdenominational — interracial audience, the strong should be humble in the fact that they are strong only because they had a head start of one kind or another.

Rev. Mr. Jones, pastor of Chapel Hill's Presbyterian Church, told his listeners that as the spiritually strong they must bear the burdens of the weak, but must do so with humility. He reminded the group that the basis of society—the family—operates, and always has, on the principle of the strong serving the weak: The weakest in the family commands the services of the strong.

Among practical suggestions with which he closed his talk, he told listeners that the strength should be put to work in their own churches, which could be strengthened regardless of their present position. One good way, he said, would be to consider the fact that interracial youth groups of Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Episcopal churches must seek long to find a church in which to meet. "Why not do something about that?" asked he.

In closing he gave reminder that the insight and strength—spiritual, economic, and social—that most present had been blessed with, must be put to use or it will be lost. The soft-spoken young minister looked about the quiet chapel and gently reminded his audience that "we are so heavily in debt it is the only thing to do."

"We should do what is being done here today," he said, "not just once a year, but all year round."

Mrs. Ashby, a Methodist, reported that some 500 persons present gave an offering of $262. The money will go to the united council for distribution equally between home and foreign missions.

The audience was deeply impressed by the work of the Bennett College choir, which supplied special music with William B. Cooper at the organ. Mrs. Edwin F. Lucas, an Episcopalian and vice-president of the state council of church women, directed the worship service, which was arranged by Miss Anne Queen. Mrs. J. W. Wilder was general chairman of the local World Day of Prayer service.

The institute will try to clarify the meaning of democratic social values as they relate to personal growth and achievement, according to President David D. Jones of Bennett College.

5 Workshops Are Slated At Bennett

A series of five workshops scattered about the Bennett College campus will highlight today's activities, as the 26th annual Home-Making Institute reaches the halfway mark. The theme is "Re-examining Values for Purposeful Living."

Yesterday morning Dr. Willa Player, co-ordinator of instruction at Bennett, told the assembly some of the outstanding values we are consciously and unconsciously concerned with are those of honesty, beauty, truth, goodness, and love. She outlined a program by which each could be partially obtained by those who recognized their importance.

Workshops Begin

Workshops also begin today as all students meet with their particular seminar group to discuss values as applicable to certain field areas such as "Personal Development," and "Community Living."

Yesterday morning, Dr. Harry Richardson, president of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., was moderator during an open session.

The first few days of the program are being used to lay the groundwork of the theme of the affair. Students will present the material discovered to other students from throughout the South who will visit the Bennett campus Thursday through Sunday to participate in the institute.

Gammon Seminary Head Speaks At Bennett College

Dr. Harry W. Richardson, president of Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., is to give the principal and opening address on Sunday, March 2, at the Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel at Bennett College, when the 26th Homemaking Institute begins. Dr. Richardson will speak of the values for purposeful living; theme of the week long affair.

Homemakers Hear Speech By Dr. Player

Values are significant to the degree to which the individual operates by them, Dr. Willa Player of the Bennett College faculty told delegates attending today's session of the 26th annual homemaking institute being held this week at the college.

Speaking on "Implications of the Institute Theme," which is "Re-examining Values for Purposeful Living," Dr. Player outlined five aspects of the theme. She listed the first as understanding the concept of the whole person and how he reacts to a given situation.

Next she discussed the need to be met by the total self in reacting to a group situation. "The third aspect involves satisfying of the need, in which we must make choices," she said. "Considered in making these choices are weighing of alternatives for action. The final decision becomes a basis for action or a value."

Points To Conflicts

As her fourth point, Dr. Player points out that conflict sometimes arises out of necessity to make a choice, highlighted by the need for change. "Change sometimes involves change of personality accompanied by uncertainty, fear and anxiety," she said. "The individual may be helped by relating change to progress, by identifying it with the common good or by turning to religious faith."

In conclusion she pointed out that values have little meaning unless the individual exhibits them in his relationships with his fellow man and in his everyday life.

Tomorrow five workshops will be held on understanding values and their application to: personal development, campus life, home and family life, community living and national and international co-operation.

Dr. Jones has been president of the college for more than 25 years.

The aim of this learned society was to collect the records of this vast minority group and treat them scientifically in order that the race may not become a negligible factor in the thought of the world.

Founded In 1926

Dr. Woodson, the founder and relentless guiding spirit in the organization's project, founded Negro History Week during 1926. It is held annually during the second week of February.

This year's history week theme is "Great Teachers." A list of 12 teachers have been suggested by the historical society for fraternal, civic, educational programs all over the nation.

The List

The suggested list includes:

1. Maria Baldwin, teacher and master of Agassiz Public School attended by children of Harvard professors and other notables of Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president-emeritus of Harvard said of her: "I have known many colored students at Harvard who have seemed to me to have been imbued with an almost apostolic spirit, but the life of Maria Baldwin was unique. I know of no other case where a woman from an obscure beginning rose to the head of the best grammar school in the city system serving the children of all races."

The CHRISTIAN EDUCATION Magazine

Association News

In the judgment of many who attended the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of The Methodist Church held recently in the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C., the program was of unusually high order. The speakers who filled the major program spots were among the outstanding leaders in American higher education.

The first session, on Monday afternoon, January 7th, brought before the association members, Dr. Ernest C. Colwell, dean of the faculties, Emory University and former president of the University of Chicago. He discussed skillfully and with conviction, "The Service of the Methodist University to Methodist Colleges." He took a gentle rap at the undue emphasis on the Ph. D. as a prerequisite to college teaching and urged better teaching and better methods without too great an amount of subservience to academic traditions.

On Monday evening, the association met in its annual dinner session with Dr. J. Earl Moreland, president of Randolph-Macon College and vice-president of the association, presiding. Chief speeches of the evening were by R. Franklin Thompson, president of College of Puget Sound and also of the association, and Harold C. Case, newly installed president of Boston University.

Dr. Thompson delivered a vigorous and constructive "President's Address," and Dr. Case inspired and set going some basic educational thinking on the part of all who heard him.

A regular feature of the dinner program is the presentation of the Christian Education Magazine citation to those presidents who, during the twelve months immediately preceding, have completed twenty-five years of service in their present positions. In 1951, only one president, Dr. David D. Jones, of Bennett College, qualified for this. A citation was also presented to Dr. Boyd M. McKeown in recognition of twenty years of service as secretary of the association. Dr. McKeown heads the Department of Public Relations in the Division of Educational Institutions of the Board of Education.

Dr. David D. Jones, with Mrs. Jones, accepts a citation presented by Dr. J. Earl Moreland in recognition of his twenty-five years of service as president of Bennett College.

On Tuesday morning, in the final session the association group heard three addresses of high merit. A discussion by Dr. Merrimon Cuninggim, recently elected dean of Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, on "The Teaching of Religion in the Church College" was both profitable and practical; "The Faculty Member in the Christian College" was the subject covered by Dr. Myron F. Wicke, who heads the board's Department of Higher Education; and Bishop Gerald Kennedy of the Portland Area, The Methodist Church, in his discussion of "What the Church Expects of Its Colleges,"* provided a fitting climax for the association's 1952 meeting.

The association adopted a resolution protesting the passage by Congress of a Universal Military Training measure. It was insisted that unless or until a global war breaks out, the present machinery is adequate to provide the manpower needed in defense industry and the armed services.

26 College Years For Children

Jesse Lockett of 713 Poplar Street never finished high school in his native Georgia, but he has five college-educated children.

Lockett is a service operator with the DuPont Company's office buildings department. He is modest about his job, which he says involves "cleaning up," but he has been with it 28 years. Meanwhile his oldest daughter, Mildred, has become a librarian at Newark, N. J.; another daughter, Delores, who has been a graduate social worker, is the wife of an Army lieutenant, and this June his son Harold will be graduated from Meharie College of Medicine at Nashville, while a daughter, Hazel, is graduated from Indiana University. Still another daughter, Inez, studied for two years at Howard University before marrying.

Among them the five have had 26 years in college. There are eight children in all, and five grandchildren.

Mildred went to State College at Dover for two years, then to Union University, Richmond, Va., and to the University of Illinois for her library degree—a total of six years.

Delores went to Bennett College, Bowling Green, N. C., for two years, then to Atlanta where she took her master's degree in social work. She was a social worker for the Family Court for three years while her husband, First Lt. Seth W. Spellman, was serving with occupation forces in Korea. He remained in the infantry reserve while finishing college at North Carolina A. & T. College, and taking his master's degree in psychiatric social work in New York, but was called to active duty a year ago and is now with the mental hygiene clinic at Ft. Knox, Ky. They have a son and a daughter.

Harold went to Indiana University, winning his "I" as a member of the track team. He started at Indiana before World War II, and after three years in the Army, he went back to Indiana to finish, and then on to Meharie Medical College.

The next son, Jesse, Jr., never finished high school, but is married, with a son and daughter, and lives in Jersey City.

MR. AND MRS. CHAUNCEY WADDELL

Justice Hughes's Defeat Recalled By Daughter

On a November night in 1916, a young Wellesley College Freshman stood on the roof of the Astor Hotel in New York and anxiously watched the news bulletins flashing on the Times Building.

Her father had just completed a strenuous campaign as the Republican nominee for President. The elections returns were coming in.

Asks Question

According to a popular account, her father thought his election was assured that night in 1916. Was that true?

"No! That was a mythological story. Father was never sure of anything that wasn't certain. It wasn't in his character."

Actually, the renowned jurist came very close to winning the vote in the Electoral College. The reversal of 2,000 popular votes in California would have unseated Wilson.

Was the loss a disappointment to Justice Hughes?

Certainly, his daughter said. "Father naturally did his best to win. It wasn't his nature to do anything halfway."

In the long run, the election turned out for the best, Mrs. Waddell said she thought. "He was able to be of greater service and I think the presidency would have shortened his life."

Hughes became chief justice of the Supreme Court in 1930 and retired in 1941. He died in 1948.

The Waddells have been friends of Dr. Jones since Mrs. Waddell became a member of the United Negro College Fund's board of directors in 1946.

"We have enjoyed meeting Dr. David so much in New York that we wanted to stop and see his college, too. Isn't it a lovely place," Mrs. Waddell commented.

Her husband, a former reporter for the Wall Street Journal and the New York Tribune, pointed out that Bennett is one of the 32 colleges which benefit from the U. N. C. F. His wife's job is supposed to be part time only, but now takes nearly all of her attention.

"And most of mine, too," he laughingly added.

Four Children.

Mrs. Waddell was one of four children of the late chief justice. She has a deep respect for her father who was a law professor, governor of New York, and secretary of state, in addition to being head of the nation's judicial branch of government.

Mrs. Waddell and her husband, a New York investment banker now, expect to stop next at Livingstone College in Salisbury. Like Bennett, it is a member institution of the organization U. N. C. F.

'Most Successful' Home Making Meet At Bennett

GREENSBORO, N. C. — The Bennett college 26th annual Home Making Institute which concluded here Sunday after week long sessions was acclaimed as one of the most successful in the college's history, according to President David D. Jones.

Dr. Jones paid particular tribute to Dr. Harry V. Richardson of the Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. Myron F. Wicke, Secretary, Department of Higher Education, Nashville, Tenn. Both spoke at Vesper services and participated in Workshop discussions.

The Institute, centered about the idea of "Re-Examining Values for Purposeful Living," gave students, faculty and visitors the opportunity to realize the significant fact that no values are applicable to purposeful living by any group unless they are first accepted by the individual.

Dr. Wicke, in his address on Sunday afternoon, emphasized the idea of applying what had been learned during the Institute to everyday living.

Students from 38 colleges throughout the South were special guests at Bennett College for the last three days of seminars, get-togethers and Workshops where the idea of values was discussed.

COOPERATIVE —A Bennett girl enters fully into varied situations as leader or follower, she works intelligently with others . . ."

By SHIRLEY M. KYLE

There was a time when a young girl did not have to worry about whether or not she was doing the right thing at the right time. She always had a parent or elderly relative to guide her. The rules for her pattern of behavios were already laid down for her to follow.

But, as equal rights for women progressed, the tight relationship drawn between parent and daughter was relaxed.

Women Become Independent

Today it is not unusual to find a young girl out on her own, working at a job of her own choosing, living entirely alone in a room or an apartment.

In most cases, the young girl of today must work out her own pattern of behavior which will be both wise and attractive to others.

For this reason, women's colleges have sprung up throughout the nation, not only to provide an academic education, but also an education in personal grooming, and the social graces.

These colleges, like the parents and guardians of the earlier days have set down specific rules and qualifications which each girl must follow from the time she enters the college until she graduates.

There are two such colleges for colored women: Spelman in Atlanta, Ga., and Bennett in Greensboro, N.C.

With an enrollment of 438 girls from 32 states and several foreign countries, Bennett, today, is known as the "Vassar for colored women."

When a girl enters the school, she is screened for defects, then urged to correct them in the various clinics provided by the college. These include clothing clinic, writing clinic, personal hygiene and etiquette courses.

She is also given a handbook, the "Bennett College Blue Book," in which are listed rules and qualifications for her to follow while in the school.

These are known as "the Bennett 'B's' and among them is:

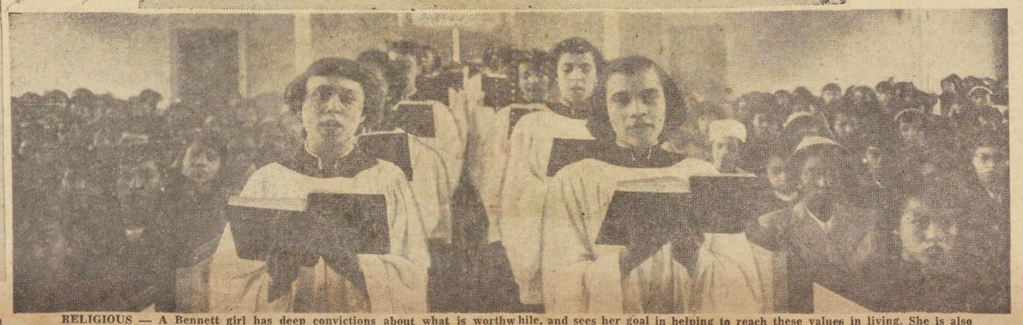
"Be sure to form good beauty habits as a part of your daily routine. The simplest of those are washing of teeth, using good soap and water and natural makeup . . . "

Clothing Advice

The Bennett girl is also advised on the style of clothing she should wear for various activities. For example, when shopping, visiting, or attending shows, she must wear a hat and gloves and carry her purse. Kerchiefs are not considered substitutes for hats.

Common courtesies are practiced daily, not only in the dormitories and classrooms, but also in the Student Union Building. The simple phrase of "Thank You" is used constantly whenever a faculty member or fellow student performs a service, regardless of how small it may seem.

With the aid of colleges like Bennett, the young girl of today, regardless of how independent she might be, obtains the necessary guidance and protection of parental rules and care which the young girl of yesterday received at home.



RELIGIOUS — A Bennett girl has deep convictions about what is worthwhile, and sees her goal in helping to reach these values in living. She is also loyal and manifests a devotion to the highest and best in human endeavor and in human relationships.

APPRECIATIVE OF THE BEAUTIFUL—A Bennett girl is sensitive to loveliness in ordinary surroundings . . . and she recognizes things of beauty as an integral part of everyday life.

SINCERE — A Bennett girl recognizes the value of honesty in social as well as academic pursuits, and can be depended upon to express frank judgment in any situation in which she is involved.

Helen Keen Hopes To Create Race Harmony By Experiment

BY CECIL PRINCE
Record Staff Writer

Ignorance, prejudice, pride and passion: Many a warrior for social justice has battled each and lost.

Today a bright-eyed teen-ager from Ohio shook a white fist at convention and challenged them all.

"Let's face it," said she with a grin. "At Bennett I am a Negro. It's as simple as that."

Helen Margaret Keen is an 18-year-old white girl who dares to step across Dixie's aged-in-anguish barriers between blacks and whites. On February 4, she entered strictly-Negro Bennett College for women.

To impatient Helen Keen, it was a thumping protest to Southern segregation and all distinctions that breed social cruelty.

Not Color-Conscious

This 20th Century nonconformist is no sober-sided Amazon. Her eyes constantly twinkle with unconcealed merriment. Her cheeks are lit to a delicate flame. She is full of dash and buoyancy that emerges even when she wrinkles her forehead and speaks her deepest convictions. And packed into her 120-pound, five-foot-three form are king-sized convictions.

"I have a complete lack of color-consciousness," she said. "I date boys from A. and T. I sit with the girls upstairs in the Negro Jim Crow sections of theaters. If I were to ride on busses, I would sit in the rear as a Negro."

And with a mischievous smile: "I find that I enjoy myself a great deal—despite all the strict college restrictions on Bennett girls.

Father Is Teacher

Miss Keen is the Brooklyn-born daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest M. Keen of Tiffin, Ohio. Her father is a sociology professor at Tiffin's Heidelberg College and she came to Bennett as a one-semester exchange student from the Ohio institution. It is a bold experiment of the Midwest college to promote interracial understanding and Miss Keen is the first Heidelberg student to participate.

"At first I thought, 'Oh, what an adventure!'" she said. "But then I realized that here was a wonderful way to bring about racial harmony. It sounded intriguing and fascinating and I jumped at the chance to come."

She picked 79-year-old Bennett because its curriculum best suited her music major. Now she plans to switch to sociology and psychology.

"I had never been isolated from Negroes before, but still I had never really lived with them. I always have tried to accept people as they are—as individuals."

Readily Accepted Here

Miss Keen said she was amazed and pleased to find that she was herself readily accepted by Bennett's students with few reservations.

"This changed my attitude from one of perhaps passive interest to one of complete acceptance of a whole group—to a point where I became a sort of in-group member. I lost all identity with any one particular group. I feel as if I have become a sort of racial cosmopolitan."

Bennett girls looked upon Miss Keen first as a curiosity, then as a "regular fellow." She has won close friends among both faculty and students. She knows no off-campus whites but says she certainly has no prejudices against non-Negroes.

some misconceptions of Bennett girls about "all white people" and she sincerely hopes it will awaken some Southern whites about racial harmony.

"It's a funny thing," she remarked. "When I came here I knew there was one important reason, along with all the obvious ones, but I couldn't put my finger on it. . . . I don't look upon this as merely a sociological experiment. And, as an individual, I am not conventionally religious but one cannot overlook the religious aspects and Christian goals in the removal of barriers."

She discounts the "pseudo-harmony" between races in the South and believes that "only living as I do, as an 'interracial' in the Bennett College family, can I learn to understand individuals as individuals and not merely groups as groups."

Interested In Sociology

She finds the field of sociology "awfully intriguing" and hopes to work for "some organization like the N. A. A. C. P. (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) after she finishes her education.

Meanwhile, on the South's "social injustice," she has some sturdy opinions:

"The South has a long way to come and, of course, the big problem (race) has an economic basis. . . . The answer lies a good part in education but when the day comes when Southerners won't have to fight tooth and nail to eat it will then be possible for Southern whites and Southern Negroes to accept each other as individuals.

"The problem is not one-sided but someone has to take the first step. I think the responsibility for that first step lies on the shoulders of the white group."

Antagonism is at least open in the South, she admitted, while in the North it is hidden under disguises.

Miss Keen's presence on the campus is not taken lightly by Bennett's administration. President David D. Jones has deep-felt hopes that the exchange plan between Northern colleges and Southern Negro institutions will help improve race relations in America.

Twenty private white schools in the South are already admitting Negro students to their classes, he pointed out.

Greensboro's Bennett (enrollment limit: 500) was founded in 1873 and became a women's college in 1926 when Dr. Jones took over. It is one of only two Negro colleges for women in the nation.

The school is supported in part by the Woman's Division of Christian Service and the Board of Education of the Methodist Church.

Today the South eyed not only its beauty but its courage as well.

INTERACIAL STUDENT EXCHANGE AT BENNETT COLLEGE

An 18-year-old whit girl whose home is in Ohio has been enrolled for the second semester at Bennett College, Greensboro, as a part of an exchange student program sponsored by the Evangelical Church, it was announced last week by Dr. David D. Jones, president of the school for Negro girls.

Helen Keen, Brooklyn born daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest M. Keen of Tiffin, Ohio, is registered as a full time dormitory student and lives an eats with her colored room mates in an air of congeniality.

Her father, a teacher of sociology at Heidelberg College, encouraged Helen to make application for the one-semseter exchange program and Heidelberg accepted a Bennett girl, Rebecca Turner, New Orleans, as a student for this semester.

"I've always been interested in race relations," the Ohio girl said, "and since I've been a Bennet I've learned so much more of practical experience from my association with classmates than I ever would from musty sociology books."

Her [illegible] experience will pay off, however, since she plans to switch from music major to a major in sociology and psychology sometime next year.

An extremely versatile girl she also dabbles in art and often finds means to express herself by tackling a paint brush and canvas.

Dr. Jones stated that the idea of having a white student on campus was thoroughly explored and he felt that the relationship between the girls would enable those of both races to reach an understanding through first hand experience. Daughters of Bennett's few white teachers have occasionally attended the institution but this marks the first time such an exchange program has been carried on at Bennett although Dr. Jones said that over 20 colleges in the country are using such a method to strengthen and bind harmonious race relations.

White Student From Tiffin, Ohio, Has Enrolled At Bennett College

Bennett President David D. Jones said today that Miss Keen is an exchange student from Heidelburg College in Ohio.

She entered Bennett February 1, Dr. Jones said, and will remain for one semester. She is specializing in music at the Negro institution.

The white girl was accepted here on an exchange student plan, explained Dr. Jones. A Bennett student, Rebecca Turner of New Orleans, La., is attending Heidelburg.

Bennett officials listed Miss Keen's age as "about 18."

Dr. Jones said she is Bennett's first white student "in recent years." He declared that children of the college's white professors have occasionally attended classes at the Negro college in years past.

"It is not an unusually precedent," said Dr. Jones. "About 20 private white colleges in the South have admitted Negro students."

He indicated that there have also been exchanges between Northern institutions and Southern Negro colleges.

Exchange Student Attends Bennett

The exchange, sponsored by the race relations committee of the Reformed Church, has previously sent white students to Southern Negro colleges, and students at Negro colleges to Northern schools, it was stated.

Miss Keen, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest M. Keen of Tiffin, is a freshman and majoring in piano. Rebecca Turner of New Orleans, La., a music major at Bennett, is now studying at Heidelberg. The exchange is for the current semester only.

Dr. David D. Jones, Bennett president, said that the exchange plan had been thoroughly explored and that it was felt that the exchange between the two colleges would be beneficial to each institution, to both races, and particularly to the two girls concerned.

Dr. Murray Blasts Prejudice in U. S.

GREENSBORO, N. C.—The United States can assume world leadership only when it accepts the premise that true democracy must not be compromised by prejudice, malice or fear, Dr. Peter Marshall Murray declared in his commencement address at Bennett College.

Dr. Murray, president of the Medical Society of the County of New York and a prep school roommate of Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett, said that what happens in America—good or bad — is well publicized abroad.

HE REFERRED to the remarks of General Carlos Romulo of the Philippines at the recent Afro-Asian conference in Bandung in which the latter said that "although the Communists unconscionably distort the story, the fact remains that the negative status of the American Negro is the one best known in Asia."

He chided U. S. State Department officials as "stupid and unintelligent" for not making more and better use of Negro representatives by sending them to Asia as ambassadors of goodwill.

Addressing himself to the school desegregation issue, Dr. Murray said:

"The biggest value to come out of the U. S. Supreme Court decision may well be the emancipation of white people for it has given them the legal right to act as good as they are."

GREENSBORO, N.C. — The United States can assume world leadership only when it accepts the premise that true democracy must not be compromised by prejudice, malice or fear, Dr. Peter M. Murray declared in his commencement address at Bennett College here Monday.

Dr. Murray, president of the Medical Society of the County of New York and a prep school roommate of Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett, said that what happens in American, good or bad, is well publicized abroad.

Citing remarks of Gen. Carlos Romulo of the Philippines at the recent Afro-Asian conference at Bandung in which the latter said that "although the Communists unconscionably distort the story, the fact remains that the negative status of the colored American is the one best known in Asia."

HE CHIDED U.S. State Department officials as "stupid and unintelligent" for not making more and better use of colored representatives by sending them to Asia as ambassadors of good will.

Addressing himself to the school desegregation issue, Dr. Murray said:

"The biggest value to come out of the U.S. Supreme Court decision may well be the emancipation of white people for it has given them the legal right to act as good as they are."

"The nation, and not just the colored group has a stake in the threats and legal moves coming from some Southern states that prepare the way for eleminating their public school systems.

"THE MAINTENANCE of a public school system in every section of the country may well be a value the nation will not want to permit any state to abandon at its own discretion."

He admonished colored people that:

"No longer can we hide behind the fact that racial discrimination prevents us from doing certain things. We have been pushed out into the main stream of life and it is now a question of whether we are prepared to take our places in it."

"Do not permit others to set the moral standards by which you order your life. Lift your horizons and in meeting your daily responsibilities, try to see that you are helping to preserve and build a better life for all mankind, for no man is an island unto himself."

Bennett grads hear Dr. Scott

GREENSBORO, N.C. — "The men and women who have done most to make this world a better place in which to live gave of themselves," Dr. Julius S. Scott told members of the graduating class at Bennett College in his baccalaureate sermon Sunday.

Dr. Scott, president of Wiley College, was heard by an audience that overflowed Pfeiffer Chapel onto the terrace outside where loudspeakers had been set up to carry the exercises.

In urging the graduates to "give of themselves," as they go out into their respective communities, Dr. Scott pointed to Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, Booker T. Washington and others who helped to make the world better by giving of themselves.

"JESUS CHRIST," he said, "never went to college, never owned a home, never commanded an army. In fact, He did nothing that in the eyes of the world of His day was warranted as 'great'; yet no man has altered the course of history as He did. He gave himself.

"To follow Him is to strive to enter the straight gate and the narrow way that leads to a deep, full and meaningful life."

'Desegregation Can & Will Work,' Says Panel At State Homemaking Institute

GREENSBORO — Desegregation can and will work, five college students agreed here Tuesday night during the second program of the 30th annual Home Making Institute series at Bennett College.

The students, all of whom came from Guilford County institutions, participated in a panel discussion on "Human Dignity and Integration." They agreed that segregation adversely affects the expression of human dignity, although they differed in procedures and techniques toward desegregation.

In introducing the topic, Miss Ellerbe stated that American democracy cannot continue to flourish, with continued segregation and other discriminations against minority groups. She documented the changes in the interpretation of the U. S. Constitution as expressed by the U. S. Supreme Court in recent years.

Mr. Young stated that human dignity and self-respect are the ultimate aims of a Christian life and that any hindarances to these aims are stumbling blocks to the Christian religion. Mr. Duren, who spoke of the historical aspects of the subject, called for the acceptance of the individual for what he is.

Caling attention to the wide gap between legal decisions and actual implementation of desegregation, Miss Busiek said, nevertheless, that she believed that this gap could be bridged with restraint.

Miss Snyder, the concluding speaker, told of the impact of segregation on personal feelings and international relations. She urged that all individuals think anew on the subject. While colleges and churches have taken a stand, she said, they cannot do the whole job. Graham 5/5/52

White Girl Enrolls At Bennett College

GREENSBORO, N. C. (Special)—An 18-year-old white girl whose home is in Ohio has been enrolled for the second semester at Bennett College, here, as a part of an exchange student program sponsored by the Evangelical Church, it was announced last week by Dr. David D. Jones, president of the school for Negro girls. This set a new precedent in race relations, marking the first time a white girl ever enrolled at a Negro college in the South.

Helen Keen, Brooklyn born daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest M. Keen of Tiffin, Ohio, is registered as a full time dormitory student and lives and eats with her colored room mates in an air of congeniality.

An Experiment

Her father, a teacher of sociology at Heidelberg College, encouraged Helen to make application for the one-semester exchange program and Heidelberg accepted a Bennett girl, Rebecca Turner, New Orleans, as a student for this semester.

"I've always been interested in race relations," the Ohio girl said, "and since I've been at Bennett I've learned so much more of practical experience from my association with classmates than I ever would from musty sociology books."

Helen's practical experience will pay off, however, since she plans to switch from a music major to a major in sociology and psychology sometime next year.

Extremely Versatile

An extremely versatile girl she also dabbles in art and often finds means to express herself by tackling a paint brush and canvas.

Dr. Jones stated that the idea of having a white student on campus was thoroughly explored and he felt that the relationship between the girls would enable those of both races to reach an understanding through first hand experience.

Daughters of Bennett's few white teachers have occasionally attended the institution but this marks the first time such an exchange program has been carried on at Bennett although Dr. Jones said that over 20 colleges in the country are using such a method to strengthen and bind harmonious race relations.

Special to the Herald Tribune

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 26.—An eighteen-year-old white girl has enrolled as a student in Bennett College, a Negro women's college here, as part of a program sponsored by the race relations committee of the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Miss Helen Keen, from Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio, is believed to be the first white woman student to enroll at a Negro college in the South. While she is spending the current semester at Bennett, a Bennett student, Miss Rebecca Turner, is studying at Heidelberg.

Miss Keen, the daughter of a Heidelberg sociology professor, lives in a dormitory on the Bennett campus and has a Negro roommate. She spends her social hours with the Bennett students, and when she goes to the movies in Greensboro she sits with them in the segregated balcony section of a theater.

Miss Keen said in an interview that she was very pleased to participate in the exchange program, and was amazed to find herself so readily accepted by Bennett students, with few if any reservations. She is active in extracurricular activities and is a member of the Bennett Little Theater.

Miss Keen and Miss Turner were chosen as exechange students because of their ability to mix well, Jefferson P. Rogers, of the Race Relations Committee of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, explained.

In the past, exchanges have been made between men students at Franklin and Marshall College and Morehouse College, and Talladega College and Cedarcrest College. The church's program is aimed at bettering race relations at the college level.

Such exchanges have worked out "exceedingly well," Mr. Rogers said, and pointed out that other exchanges are being arranged for the coming year.

Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett, said he believes the exchange will be beneficial to the two colleges, to the races and to the girls concerned.

Bennett has always maintained a policy of giving its students insight into racial and religious groups. The faculty has white and Negro membesr and representatives of all major religious faiths.

Miss Keen said she is sure her presence on the campus has helped destroy some misconceptions Bennett girls had about "all white people."

Large Budget For Bennett Approved

President Jones Granted Leave

Approval of a half-million dollar budget for the 1955-56 school year and the granting of an indefinite leave of absence at full salary to President David D. Jones were major actions taken by the executive committee of the Bennett College trustee board yesterday.

Dr. W. C. Jackson, chairman of the board, presided at the sessions held at the home of Dr. Jones.

Hasten Recovery

The granting of the leave to Dr. Jones is for the purpose of hastening his recovery from an illness which has kept him out of his office a great portion of the current school year.

The committee also approved a list of 99 candidates for degrees to be awarded at commencement exercises on May 30, the auditor's report and the report of the investment committee.

Dr. Willa B. Player, vice president, shared with Dr. Jones in the presentation of the president's annual report. He introduced nine students who gave reports on various phases of academic and cocurricular activities in which they have engaged this year or plan for the summer vacation.

During Dr. Jones' illness, Dr. Player has been in charge of operations at the college. She is expected to continue in that capacity during Dr. Jones' leave of absence.

Members of the committee present, in addition to Dr. Jackson, included: Bishop Edgar A. Love, Baltimore; Mrs. H. C. Black, Johnson City, Tenn., secretary of the board; Mrs. J. G. Meidenbauer, Buffalo, N.Y.; Mrs. Harry E. James, New York City; and J. A. Tarpley, Greensboro.

A gift of $100,000 to Bennett College from the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, was announced by Dr. Jones.

The grant, which will supplement funds already given by the United Negro College Fund, will be applied on the construction of a gymnasium and swimming pool, long needed to round out the physical plant.

In making the announcement, Dr. Jones pointed out that it was this same organization that was instrumental in the founding of Bennett as a college exclusively for women in 1926 when he was called to the presidency.

CHURCH GROUP MEETS

Baritone Appears In Concert Here

Robert McFerrin, baritone, who made his debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company last January, captivated his audience when he appeared in concert last night at Bennett College. Sympathetic and unobtrusive accompaniment was provided by Norman Johnson at piano.

For the first half of his program the singer chose numbers from German, Italian and English composers, including Bach and Purcell.

With a voice of unusual richness and power, McFerrin brought musical and dramatic understanding to his interpretations of two French songs, Dupare's "L'Invitation au Voyage" and Faure's "Notre Amour."

Particularly pleasing to the audience was the artist's rendition of a group of gambling songs taken from the Reelfoot Lake area in Tennessee and a group of Negro spirituals arranged by Hall Johnson. Among the latter were "His Name So Sweet," "Witness," "I'm Gonter Tell God All My Troubles," and the impressive "Oh, Glory."

McFerrin was called back for several encores.

Vesper Speaker Named At Bennett College

Miss Setaria Watson of Detroit will be the principal speaker when seniors at Bennett College conduct their traditional vesper service at 4 p.m. today in Pfeiffer Chapel.

She will speak on "Today's Dream — A Reality Tomorrow." Sarah Smith of Goldsboro will direct the choir, with Janice Hightower of Binghamton, N.Y., at the organ.

Presiding officer will be Christine Ireland of Greensboro, and serving as chaplain will be Maurice Pitts of Winston-Salem. Maria Elliott, of Andros Island, Bahamas, will read the Old Testament lesson.

David Jones School Dedication Is Held

Theater Guild Plans Operas At Bennett

Two Menotti operas will be presented by the Senior Theater Guild of Bennett College in the Little Theater at 8 o'clock tonight.

"The Telephone" will feature Myrtle Green and Roy Eubanks of A&T College, with Morella Hinton as accompanist.

Oshia Brown and Dr. George Breathett of the college faculty will be cast as the husband and wife in "Amelia Goes to the Ball." Others in the cast will be Delores Alexander, Mayme Ellerbe, Robert Hayes and Douglas McAdoo, the latter two from A&T.

Peeler Is Speaker At Bennett Chapel

The children of tomorrow will become what you make it possible for them to become, A. H. Peeler, principal of the J. C. Price School, told Bennett College students at the chapel hour this morning.

Speaking as an "ambassador" from the children, the speaker reminded his listeners that the school children with whom they will later come in contact will expect more of them because of the tremendous advantages afforded by Bennett.

"I would like you to do three simple things," said Mr. Peeler. First, make a plan or set a goal based upon your values and your varying degrees of ability. Second, decide where to draw the line or how far you will go in any direction, and third, dedicate yourself to your life's task."

Senior Is Speaker At Bennett Service

"The steps we take now will determine whether our dreams of today will be realities of tomorrow," Miss Setaria Watson of Detroit, member of the class of 1955 at Bennett College, declared at the Sunday vesper hour yesterday in Pfeiffer Chapel.

The vesper hour is one traditionally set aside each year at which members of the senior class have charge of the entire service.

She pointed to Dr. Dorothy Brown, a member of the class of 1941, who is professor of surgery at McHarry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn., Sara Lou Harris Bowser, a member of the class of 1943, in the field of modeling; and Dr. Vermelle Kelly, of the class of 1945, who is pediatrician at the Kate Bitting Reynolds Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Miss Watson paid tribute to President David D. Jones and to Mrs. Jones for having the vision, the know-how and the determination to develop Bennett, from its small beginnings, into the position of educational leadership which it now occupies.

Bennett Offers Menotti Operas

The Bennett College Senior Theater Guild productions of two Gian Carlo Menotti operas were well received last night when presented in the Little Theater on the college campus.

The productions, "The Telephone" and "Amelia Goes to the Ball," were co-directed by Miss Constance Johnson, dramatics instructor, and Miss Mary Jane Moore, music instructor. Male roles were portrayed by students from A&T College and by Dr. George Breathett of the college faculty.

Myrtle Green of Florence, S.C., and Roy Eubanks of Greensboro were the principals in "The Telephone" with Novella Hinton as accompanist. Leads in "Amelia Goes to the Ball" were effectively handled by Oshia Brown of Asheville and Dr. Breathett.

NEW UNIT DEDICATED

Negro School Leader Pleased At Progress

That was Mrs. Gladys Woods' smiling reaction at the close of yesterday's ceremonies at David D. Jones School when the new 12-room Negro unit was dedicated.

She has been with the South Street community school for more than 30 years; its principal for the past 20 and an associate of Dr. Jones, president of Bennett College for whom the elementary unit was named, during that time.

Arranged Program

She had arranged most of the dedication program for which Dr. Jones' daughter, Dr. Frances Jones Bonner, a practicing physician in Boston, Mass., was the principal speaker. Dr. Bonner reviewed her father's life in the community.

"I can represent the family," she said, "but nobody can speak for father or represent his deep feeling for things and people."

Dr. Jones, the first Negro member of the Greensboro School Board, was unable to attend because of illness. But city and county school and governmental officials were among those who overflowed the 300-capacity auditorium.

Many Adults Stand

As many adults stood outside as were seated inside. Children remained in classrooms until open house after the program. Many of the parents of the 401 pupils were there.

John R. Foster, chairman of the Greensboro School Board, accepted keys to the school on behalf of the board; Supt. Ben L. Smith for the administration; Joyce-Jennette Faucette for the pupils in the school's three grades; and Mrs. Marie Robinson for the parents and community. Architect Edward Loewenstein presented the keys. Dr. William H. Hampton extended greetings.

The presence of school board members, county commissioners, county and city managers, seemed to emphasize the goal attained by the school. The first one in the community was built in 1923. It was used until the new one was opened last September. Then the old one was torn down.

'Proud Of School'

Mrs. Woods said, "We're all proud of our school."

And, as if to prove their own pride, grade mothers there is no PTA for the school) presented the school with a high-fidelity amplifier, tape recorder and speaker.

Dr. Chatterjee, John Hay Whitney Foundation visiting professor of sociology at Bennett, said that truth is the strongest and most important thing in life, because truth is God.

Bennett Acquires Set Of Engravings

GREENSBORO, N. C.—(ANP)—President David D. Jones announced last week that Bennett College had been given a set of the rare engravings, "The Story of the Passion of Jesus Christ."

Engraved on copper by the eminent French artist, Gregaire Huret, there is only one other set of prints in the United States and a limited but undetermined number in Europe.

The engravings were done by Huret for his admission to the French Academy, and were produced under the patronage De Saint Etromul au Martyre. They remained in the latter family until 70 years ago when printings were made from them in Nuremburg, Germany.

The set which Bennett College has acquired were taken to India and remained there until the British left that country when India obtained her independence a few years ago. By a circuitous journey they went to England and, then to the United States.

Each of the 25 prints is encased in a specially built frame, each in itself a work of art, by a cabinet maker and equipped with a lock. The curator of art at Howard University, Dr. James E. Herring, has cleaned and restored the sets. It will be unveiled at Bennett, May 20.

BISHOP JONES IS MOTHER'S DAY SPEAKER AT BENNETT

"Mothers never die," he said, "they live on in the lives of their children. Therefore, every day should be Mother's Day, not just the second Sunday in May."

The speaker, brother of Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett, and resident of Waveland, Miss., reminded his listeners that life is one thing, and living, quite another. He said that life is divinely given, but for every birth, there comes a social responsibility that lasts to the grave.

AMERICA'S BEST WEEKLY

BENNETT COLLEGE FOUNDED 1873

Campus—Benjamin Fine, educational editor of the New York Times, once said "At Bennett College the campus sets the tone."

Poise—Typical of thousands of girls who have come under the Bennett influence is Joyce Rush, Winston-Salem (N. C.) freshman, who epitomizes a poise and quality of charm characteristic of the "Bennett Girl."

Chatting—Velma Jones and Doris Stephens, both of Greensboro, N. C., exchange campus gossip on portico of Student Union Building.

By A. M. RIVERA Jr.

GREENSBORO, N. C.—Oliver Wendell Holmes, late distinguished justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, once said, "No man can go far, who never sets down his foot until he knows the sidewalk is under it. No man has earned the right to intellectual ambition until he has learned to lay his course by a star which he has never seen—to dig by divining rods for springs which he may never reach."

Here in this city of education stands a monument to just such a man. The man is David D. Jones, 64-year-old educational statesman; the monument is Bennett College, first referred to as "The Vassar of the South" by this paper and described by Benjamin Fine, New York Times educational director, as "one of the most beautiful college campuses in America."

Among the great small colleges in America, it has been said that none is younger and more dynamic; energetic and captivating, audacious and successful.

This was not the picture a quarter of a century ago when David Dallas Jones, a handsome son of a cobbler, was called upon to perform a modern miracle . . . restore life to an expiring Methodist college which was begun in 1873.

Today, Bennett's thirty-one American colonial-style buildings and beautifully landscaped forty-two-acre campus are valued at nearly three million dollars. An enrollment of 439 students from thirty-two states and many foreign countries make up the interesting Bennett community.

Last January Dr. Jones was awarded the Christian Education magazine's award as a symbol of his achievement in the twenty-five years of his presidency. Recently the board of trustees named him "president for life."

For an idea of the miracle which has been wrought under the Jones influence we went to the records. In 1926 the Bennett College endowment consisted of one lonely dollar; today the endowment is well over $1,000,000. The campus was valued then at something in the neighborhood of $100,000 and a very conservative estimate of the campus today is nearly $3,000,000.

The school's budget, which stood at $41,000 in 1926, is now $470,000. The student body is just short of 500 this year. Dr. Jones explained that this is the maximum enrollment the trustees have planned for. "Our thinking does not include mass education," Dr. Jones said.

Dr. Jones has deliberately sought out young men and women from many lands and from many sections of this country who show promise as teachers. Among the present faculty are two teachers from Poland, one from China, another from Austria, Jews, Negroes and Northern and Southern whites. Just recently a white girl was admitted as an exchange student from Tiffin, Ohio. To his less courageous critics, Dr. Jones has one answer. "If it's right, we do it. If it's wrong, we don't."

Because of lack of money and the fact that he has had to compete with the state-supported colleges for qualified instructional personnel, Dr. Jones has found it difficult to keep many of his teachers more than one or two years. This is one of the problems which he hopes to solve in the near future.

The blueprint for the future calls for strengthening the college internally and a program to increase the endowment from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

As Dr. Jones celebrates his silver anniversary as skipper of Bennett College, admirers from all sections of the country add their prayers for his good health and continued success to the many blessings which have come his way. Many honors have rewarded Dr. Jones for his sacrificial devotion to Bennett.

Whenever the story of Bennett is told the names of two women will always stand out in bold relief: Mrs. Susie Williams Jones, the wife and inspiration of Dr. Jones; and Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer (Chemicals), of New York, Bennett's principal benefactor.

When a shortage of time and material staggered and almost wrecked the yearling girls' school, Mrs. Pfeiffer matched a $250,000 Board of Education grant and asked the board to match subsequent grants made by her. As a result the Rockefeller group has given $835,000 to Bennett since 1932. Mrs. Pfeiffer and her husband gave a total of $1,050,000.

And so, to a man who put his foot down where there was no sidewalk and laid his course by a star which he had never seen, the Courier joins in saluting David Dallas Jones upon the completion of twenty-five conspicuous years of Christian service.

ourier Readers Tell the World:

U. S. Best Country for Negroes, But, It Can Stand Improvement

By HAROLD L. KEITH
(Courier Forum Analyst)

COURIER READERS think that the United States is the best place in the world for Negroes but they want it understood that the Negro is by no means satisfied with his present status. Seventy-three and two tenths per cent say the U. S. is best; 19.1 say "No"; 7 are undecided.

Many of them go so far as to state that the only reason they voted "yes" was because they had visited no other country and knew of none other than their native land, America. A Charleston, S. C., housewife summed up this viewpoint by asserting:

"For we know of no other country and we are privileged to make our country what we desire, a better or worse place in which to live."

Another large group within the 73.2 per cent who answered "yes" to this week's question took the opportunity to direct criticism toward the Negro. some opinions were mild, such as the comment of the home economist in Petersburg, Va., who stated, "We as Negroes can make it better by working together on important matters that affect us and the world."

Others took the more caustic bent as exemplified by a rancher in Pittsburg, Calif., who revealed that, "The Negro's worst enemy in the United States is himself."

OF THE 19.1 per cent who voted "no," some pointed to certain specific issues in reaching their conclusions. A doctor in Louisville, Ky., pointed to the "controversy over FEPC" as ample evidence that this country is not the best.

Of the 7.2 per cent who were undecided, the majority, approximately 80 per cent of this figure, sat on the fence because they felt that they needed to know more about other countries before reaching a decision.

Although 19.1 per cent of the total voted "no" only 6.8 per cent of the medical profession forum participants followed suit as compared to 13.6 for white collar people and 24.5 per cent of workers in other categories.

A comparison:

	Yes	No	Undecided
Medical Profession	81.8	6.8	11.3
White Collar Workers	77.3	13.6	7.6
All Other Workers	68.6	24.5	6.7
Total	73.2	19.1	7.2

ARE WISE, there were some marked differences in the thinking of white-collar workers in comparison with other occupations. For example, in the Southeastern states of Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, the voting went:

	Yes	No	Undecided
White Collar Workers	84.	3.5	12.5
All Other Workers	..t	7.6	30.7
Total	7	9.	18.2

In the Midwest, the cleavage in thinking was even more remarkable:

	Yes	No	Undecided
White Collar Workers	90.	...	5.
All Other Workers	52.6	36.8	10.5

IN THE big metropolitan areas of over 1,000,000 people, such as Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago a strong "no" was registered by even the white-collar workers. And yet, the medics thought otherwise. For example:

	Yes	No	Undecided
Medical Profession	99.5	.5	....
White Collar	60.	40.	....
All Other Workers	50.	50.	....
Total	53.8	46.1	....

A difference of thinking of sorts was noted among the residents of various classes in the rural areas. Here the folks voted as follows:

	Yes	No	Undecided
Medical Profession	86.9	13.	8.6
White Collar	78.4	13.9	7.5
All Other Workers	72.6	21.	6.3
Total	75.2	17.8	6.8

IN SUMMATION, it is surmised that the Negro loves these United States. It is a love of the land, of the soil from which these 15,000,000 citizens have sprung that makes its presence felt. Most of the forum participants acknowledge that the American way of life leaves much to be desired in its failure to live up to pronounced ideals, in comparison with this love of homeland.

For that reason a majority of the readers who answered in the affirmative followed the lead of a small business' co-owner in Wendell, N. C., who voted "yes" "with reservations."

Negroes Lose Fights for Va. Council Seats

Norfolk Publisher, T. W. Young, To Be Voted on June 10; Two Race Ministers Run in Roanoke, Danville

LYNCHBURG, Va.—(ANP)—All Negro aspirants for election to city councils in Virginia lost in the primary last week. In at least one case, political trickery was charged, and in others the lethargy of Negro voters was given as the reason for the defeat of Negro candidates.

In Lynchburg, Dr. H. E. Thompson, polled 1,441 votes for seventh place in a field of ten candidates. Three seats were filled in the primary of April 1.

In Portsmouth, C. Thomas Younge, barber, won 229 votes in his ward to 236 by his opponent. George L. Grimes, incumbent. Younge, who lost by only seven votes, charged political trickery. The other Negro candidate, Mrs. Nancy Wheeler, was defeated by E. Robie Sturtevant, who retained his Council seat by a vote of 180 to 151 from his ward. The majority of voters in Mrs. Wheeler's ward are white.

GEORGE E. HARDY, cook at the University of Virginia, polled 404 votes in his bid for a Council seat in Charlottesville. The winning candidates polled 1,352 and 1,225 votes, respectively.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE —NOT GOOD FOOD

● Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here's why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon—right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes mostly waste—not good food! You avoid that typical "laxative" tired, run-down feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self again, full of life! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢.

THE GREATEST CALAMITIES OF HUMAN EXISTENCE

GREENSBORO, N.C.—"The greatest calamities of human existence are those which people bring upon themselves," Dr. William A. Banner declared at the opening of the 29th annual Home-Making Institute at Bennett College Sunday afternoon.

Speaking in Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel, Dr. Banner, associate professor of church history at Howard University in Washington, and a former Bennett instructor, said that the world of nature is not hostile to human life, but only appears to be hostile when man proceeds with his activities without perspective and good will.

"The longer we live," he said, "the more we realize that God's creation is good and that the possibilities of a good life are all about us. The real question is whether we shall act wisely or foolishly. We frequently ignore the warnings of creation, behaving as we please, and then become distressed when things go wrong.

"We are not going to alter the way of things by our opposition. Instead of breaking God's law we are actually breaking ourselves against God's order. Meanwhile, God's laws remain there to confront us—later, if not soon."

When asked for the evidence that religion is really true, the speaker said that he has merely to point to the misery and distress of human life around the world as evidence that life in accordance with selfishness and without vision, leads to disaster. He pointed to city slums as evidence.

"Many of us," he continued, "live in accordance with aristocratic principles. Such people are those who believe that the good things of life need not be enjoyed by everybody, so long as a select few, including themselves, have all they want."

Students who feel that going to college gives them something that other people cannot or should not have, are guilty of living by this aristocratic principle, he explained, adding that they have no perspective.

He declared that perspective has been provided by the U.S. Supreme Court ruling calling for the end of segregation in the nation's public schools, by the international programs of the United Nations and in the great appeal of such books as Alan Paton's "Cry the Beloved Country."

Tying in his subject with the institute theme of "Education for Social Change," Dr. Banner said that vision must be accompanied by good will if it is to become effective. He urged the students to work for the elimination of subsistence living through efforts to remove slums and raise the wage level of the ordinary person and to work for the cultivation in family life of the arts which enrich the human spirit—conversation, friendship, artistic creation and community service.

Recalling the death recently of Sir Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, who refused to commercialize on his discovery, Dr. Banner said that the acquisition of material things is important but that the real need in the world today is for convincing those who have to share with those who have not.

"Reverence for life," he concluded, "may be, in the words of Albert Schweitzer, our pathway through the thicket of human existence."

German Delegation Observing Industry In America Current High Point Visitors

Mutual respect and a better understanding of their American friends is being absorbed in large measure by 10 Germans representing that country's labor unions and management organizations.

The delegation will be in Piedmont North Carolina until late next week, looking over American industry, its problems and its technological advancements. They will stay at the Elwood Hotel here and visit industrial plants and other points of interest in High Point, Thomasville, Greensboro and other nearby cities and towns.

As explained by Paul M. Bergman of the Office of International Labor Affairs in Washington, the group designed its tour in the United States to see the wood processing industry from start to finish. After three weeks in Washington, they traveled to Portland, Ore to see how Americans acquire and process their raw materials. They chose the High Point area to view the manufacturing process because it also gave them the chance to see for themselves one segment of the American laboring population over which their European neighbors, the Russian satellites, raise a great fuss — the Negro race.

Visit Colleges

As a "short course" in race relations, the delegation journeyed to Greensboro yesterday to visit Bennett and A & T College, two of the better Negro educational institutions in this section.

Also on tap for attention in addition to industry in action are other segments of American social life. They will be guests at civic clubs and other meetings of organizations "to see how Americans work and play and participate in civic life," in the words of Bergman.

The list of those on the trip include Franz Eder, Karl Lipp, George Luellmann, Hans Nega, Jakob Soltau, Hermann Theilicke, Hebert Vatler, Alois Wachtel, Erick Schreber, all German labor experts, and Fritz Michael, a labor afafirs specialist representing a management organization.

14 H.U. Students Visit Cornell U.

WASHINGTON

Fourteen Howard University students recently returned from Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., where they attended the Student Exchange Weekend on April 3-6.

Visitors from Arkansas A.M. and N. College, Bennett College, Lincoln University, Morgan State College, North Carolina College, and Virginia Union University also were present for the weekend.

A program was planned by the Student Council of Cornell University to show the representatives a little about the University. The guests, most of whom arrived on the evening of April 3, were housed in the fraternity and sorority residences. Meals were served at the respective living units.

Friday morning, students attended classes with the residents of their living units. A campus-wide tea was held in the afternoon, and a public symposium in the evening completed the planned activities for the day.

Dr. Bond Speaks

The speakers for the symposium were Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln University; Dr. Robert Cushman and Dr. Milton Konvitz of Cornell University. The role of colored universities and colleges in the U.S. and the part education and legislation play in breaking down prejudices were among the topics which were stressed. A question and answer period terminated the meeting.

Students again attended classes on Saturday morning, after which they were introduced to the president of Cornell University. An outing and campus tours were held in the afternoon.

The agenda for the evening included a banquet in honor of the visiting students and professors and parties for the visiting faculty and students. Speaker for the banquet was T. P. Wright, vice-president of Cornell. The student party, which was held at the Pi Lambda Phi fraternity house, was attended by all visiting students who escorted or were escorted by Cornell students.

National Social Whirl

By Evelyn Mansfield Swann

DON'T EXACTLY REMEMBER WHEN THE saying, "It's later than you think," became popular, and I can't exactly remember when it became a part of my vocabulary, but I do know that I used it often but never took the phrase seriously, nor did I even look beyond the words to see the real meaning of them. But they struck me rather forcibly last week when the boss passed around memorandums re this year's vacation season. Vacation time is almost upon us, and it seems that it was just a couple of weeks ago that several of my friends and I were getting together to plan how we could be sensible and not run into the ground this business of Christmas buying. But if vacation is upon us here at the Guide, then most other people, I suppose, are eagerly looking forward to theirs. Here's hoping that all of you will have a bigger and better vacation than you have had in all the previous years. Here's hoping that this year you will take that nice long auto trip about which you have been thinking since you first married . . ., or the plane ride to the West Coast will become a reality . . . or the jaunt to Mexico will turn out to be more than a notion . . ., or the boat trip to Bermuda will be a dream come true. Plan now to do some of the things you want to do because it really is later than you think. And . . . wherever you go, don't forget to drop your social reporter a card so those you leave behind will be able to keep up with you.

Clergyman Is Vesper Speaker

GREENSBORO — While man must have a certain minimum of material goods to sustain life, a greater abundance of goods does not necessarily mean a greater abundance of life, the Rev. James W. Gwynn, Sr., told Bennett College students at the Sunday afternoon vesper hour.

The speaker, pastor of St. Peters Methodist Church, Oxford, N. C., said that poverty is no insurmountable obstacle for those who have the will to do, and that life cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

"Our real wealth," he declared, "lies in what we have that we can share with others. And our lives are really measured by what we know, what we do and what we love. The things that a man loves reveal the true breadth and depth of life."

The Rev. Mr. Gwynn urged his audience to put Christ first in their intellectual and emotional lives as well as in their personal lives, reminding them that if they seek first the kingdom of God all else will be added.

GREENSBORO — Announcement of six pre-medical education scholarships at Bennett College was made this week by Dr. Willa B. Player, vice president and admissions officer.

The scholarships, each with a value of $500, will be awarded for the 1955-56 academic year to high school girls whose average is 85 or above and who score successfully on objective tests to be given by the college.

Because of the success experienced by Bennett graduates with a major in science education, greater emphasis than ever is being placed upon this phase of the college curriculum, embracing liberal arts studies, science and mathematics.

Also in the science division are courses in medical secretarial science, medical technology, predental and pre-nursing training, science education, home economics and health and physical education.

In addition to classroom and laboratory work pre-medical education students engage in field work in the campus Children's House and in the hospitals and social agencies in the city.

Scholarship inquiries should be addressed to the director of admissions.

Tribute Is Paid To Motherhood At Bennett

"There is immortality in motherhood," Bishop Robert E. Jones Sr., retired Methodist prelate, told an audience attending the special Mother's Day vesper service at Bennett College yesterday.

"Mothers never die," he said, "they live on in the lives of their children. Therefore, every day could be Mother's Day, not just the second Sunday in May."

The speaker, brother of Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett and resident of Waveland, Miss., reminded his listeners that life is one thing, and living, quite another. He said that life is divinely given, but for every birth, there comes a social responsibility that lasts to the grave.

Yesterday's service also featured the baptism of four children of Bennett graduates — an annual Mother's Day observance—and a citation by the college to Mrs. Alma Tarpley Taylor, local school teacher and [illegible] of the class of 1930, for 25 years [illegible] mother, teacher and community worker. Dr. Willa B. Player, vice president, made the presentation.

Interracial Housing Experiment Results Reported At Bennett

A report on a successful experiment with an interdenominational and interracial housing cooperative was given to Bennett College students in chapel this morning by Dr. Carl Soule, field secretary of the National Board of World Peace of the Methodist Church.

The eight-year-old experiment, he explained, is being conducted at the York Center Community Cooperative, near Chicago, which was originally established on a 60-acre tract by members of the Church of the Brethren, but now includes families representing several other non church-related residents.

"Our population," said Dr. Soule, "is about 60 per cent Caucasian, 20 per cent Nisei and 20 per cent Negro and we all live together in peace and harmony. There are three advantages to us, namely, we save money by buying cooperatively, we get the feeling of creating something, and third, we know that we are helping to advance the cooperative movement in the world."

The speaker, who selected his text from the Book of Acts, declared that this book of the Bible has never been finished. "We are writing chapters in the Book of Acts every day," he said, "as we try to do God's will. The Book of Acts will not be closed until the Christian Church vanishes from the earth."

Bennett Graduate To Serve As Missionary To Hiroshima, Japan

The seed of an idea to serve mankind will come to full flower soon for Miss Charlotte Alston, 1954 Bennett College graduate of this city, who left last Friday on the first leg of a trip which will take her to Hiroshima, Japan, for three years of missionary service as a teacher under the auspices of the Methodist Church.

"I don't know just when the idea struck me," said Miss Alston, an accomplished organist, "because as far back as I can remember, I have had a desire to do missionary work. I had first thought of India because I had some idea of the need there as a result of my reading and listening to various speakers who have returned from that country.

"However, when the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church suggested that possibly the need was as great or greater in Japan, I could not raise any objection to being sent there."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Alston of 1805 Water St., Miss Alston is one of a family of eight children—five sisters and two brothers. She is the seventh child. Two of her sisters are also graduates of Bennett—Mrs. Pauline Darnell, a Greensboro teacher, and Mrs. Myrtle Weeks, who teaches in Alamance County.

Miss Alston will teach music, direct the choir and perform related duties at the Hiroshima Jo Guakuin, an all - girl school whose faculty includes a few other Americans and some Chinese Nationals.

Following her graduation from Bennett as a music major, Miss Alston enrolled at the Scarritt College for Christian Workers in Nashville, Tenn., where she remained from last September until the end of February.

In preparation for her assignment in Japan she took a number of courses, among them one dealing with "Non-Christian Beliefs and Practices," another an "Orientation to the Japanese Language" as well as "Introduction to the Bible" and the "History of Israel."

To further her music education, she enrolled at the Peabody Musical Institute in Nashville, where she was the only Negro student, taking work in composition, piano, and organ and a course in the "History of Sacred Music."

While at Scarritt, Miss Alston's roommate in Bragg dormitory was a registered nurse preparing for work in Africa. She was elected to the Student Council as the first-year representative, was treasurer of her dormitory council, organist for the morning chapel and an assistant to the head of the music department.

"I learned a lot about self-discipline at Scarritt," she confided, "and I am sure that it will stand me in good stead in the field of Christian service."

Persons just entering the missionary field of the Methodist Church, Miss Alston revealed, sign up as probationers for a three-year period under what is known as the "Three Program." These persons are designated by the figure "3" and the initial letter of the country to which they are assigned, thus Miss Alston, by being assigned to Japan, is a "J3."

Bennett Graduate To Serve As Missionary To Hiroshima, Japan

The seed of an idea to serve mankind will come to full flower soon for Miss Charlotte Alston, 1954 Bennett College graduate of this city, who left last Friday on the first leg of a trip which will take her to Hiroshima, Japan, for three years of missionary service as a teacher under the auspices of the Methodist Church.

Miss Charlotte Alston

"I don't know just when the idea struck me," said Miss Alston, an accomplished organist, "because as far back as I can remember, I have had a desire to do missionary work. I had first thought of India because I had some idea of the need there as a result of my reading and listening to various speakers who have returned from that country.

"However, when the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church suggested that possibly the need was as great or greater in Japan, I could not raise any objection to being sent there."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Alston of 1805 Water St., Miss Alston is one of a family of eight children—five sisters and two brothers. She is the seventh child. Two of her sisters are also graduates of Bennett— Mrs. Pauline Darnell, a Greensboro teacher, and Mrs. Myrtle Weeks, who teaches in Alamance County.

Miss Alston will teach music, direct the choir and perform related duties at the Hiroshima Jo Guakuin, an all - girl school whose faculty includes a few other Americans and some Chinese Nationals.

Following her graduation from Bennett as a music major, Miss Alston enrolled at the Scarritt College for Christian Workers in Nashville, Tenn., where she remained from last September until the end of February.

In preparation for her assignment in Japan she took a number of courses, among them one dealing with "Non-Christian Beliefs and Practices," another an "Orientation to the Japanese Language" as well as "Introduction to the Bible" and the "History of Israel."

To further her music education, she enrolled at the Peabody Musical Institute in Nashville, where she was the only Negro student, taking work in composition, piano, and organ and a course in the "History of Sacred Music."

While at Scarritt, Miss Alston's roommate in Bragg dormitory was a registered nurse preparing for work in Africa. She was elected to the Student Council as the first-year representative, was treasurer of her dormitory council, organist for the morning chapel and an assistant to the [illegible] field of Christian service."

Persons just entering the missionary field of the Methodist Church, Miss Alston revealed, sign up as probationers for a three-year period under what is known as the "Three Program." These persons are designated by the figure "3" and the initial letter of the country to which they are assigned, thus Miss Alston, by being assigned to Japan, is a "J3."

"Although I have only a smattering of the Japanese language," she said laughingly, "I am not anticipating too much difficulty since English is taught at the school where I will be employed."

28th Annual Homemaking Institute At Bennett College March 28th To April 2nd

GREENSBORO, N. C. — In a world stricken with insecurity and uncertainty no civilization can expect to be greater than it progeny. The girls at Bennett College—forever conscious of the power of the woman as homemaker — were willing to pause for one week and discuss and evaluate what could be done to insure greater security and happiness for our Nation's children. The theme, "The Nation's Most Precious Resource—Its Children" is one which has been a part of the Bennett way of thinking for sometime.

Theater which meets during the

The Bennett College Children's month of June attempts to insure the children of the Greensboro Community against a lack of self expressive media. The plays are selected by the director, Miss Constance Johnson, for their potential contribution toward maknig the very young achieve a feeling of personal worth.

Certain Fields Study Projects keep the Bennett girl in constant contact with children and adolescents. One very profitable experiences in this area has been visits to the Richardson Hospital where girls have read and directed study and play hours for sick children. The Carnegie Library has provided the means for girls to participate in Children's story hours.

With the coming of the New Bennett College Children's House new opportunities were offered the girls for work with youngsters. By and large, the choosing of the theme, "The Nation's Most Precious Resource—Its Children" was no mere accident but, rather, an outcome of much sincere interest in helping the very young develop gracefully and happily into secure thoughtful adults.

The program of this, the 28th Annual Homemaking Institute, has been so designed as to provide interesting and informative discussions of all of the vital facets of a child's life. The week will be devoted to workshops and class discussions on such topics as, "The Child in the Home," "The Child in the School," "The Child in the Community," "The Impact of World Conditions on the Child" and 'Vocational Opportunities in Working with Children."

Three outstanding Bennett graduates will serve as consultants for the Institute. They are: Dr. Vermelle Kelley '45 Pediatrician; Mrs. Mae W. Catchings, '33, Y. W. C. A. Director and Mrs. Gwendolyn Davidson Cunningham, '38, Principal of a Charlotte, North Carolina Elementary School. Other resource persons are: Mrs. E. L. Hillman, secretary of the General Department of Church Women, Siler City, North Carolina; Dr. Stephen A. Ginn, Psychiatric Pediatrician of the Greensboro-Guilford Mental Clinic and Mrs. Gwendolen E. Chesters, Family and Child Welfare Unit, The United Nations, New York, New York.

J. A. TARPLEY

Tarpley Received L.L.D. Degree At Wiley College

By Dr. David D. Jones

J. A. Tarpley, supervisor of education for the city schools of Greensboro, received the honorary degree of L.L.D. at Wiley College, Marshall, Texas, Sunday March 21, 1954 on the occasion of the eighty-first Anniversary of the founding of the institution. The degree was conferred by Dr. Julius S. Scott, president of Wiley College, of which Mr. Tarpley is an alumnus. The Founders Day Message was given by Dr. David D. Jones, president of Bennett College.

This honor came to Mr. Tarpley because of his distinguished and lengthy service in education and civic affairs. This long list of services includes: Four years as an instructor at Bennett College, presidency of the North Carolina State Teachers Association, the principalship of Washington Street School for five years and the principalships of Dudley High School for the past 20 years.

In addition to these services, Tarpley has taught for three summers at the North Carolina College in Durham. Although he is known widely for his service in the schools of North Carolina, both on the secondary and college levels, and his work with professional organizations for teachers, he has contributed fundamentally to the organization and operation of several Greensboro community agencies.

He was among the founders of the Hayes-Taylor Y. M. C. A. and has served that institution as chairman of his board of management for ten years. He is also responsible in a large way for the development of the Nocho Park and Windsor Community Center which serves the recreational needs of citizens of Greensboro.

Mr. Tarpley is a member of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, the Greensboro Order of Masons and holds degrees from Wiley College and the University of Michigan. He is also a member of St. Matthew Methodist Church. Once serving as superintendent of the Sunday School for more than ten years.

Youth Overcomes Physical Handicap

Leroy R. Russell presents the 13th annual song festival and quartette contest, Sunday, May 16th at 2 p.m., in Memorial Stadium. A great musical extravaganza. Special guest artist, Mr. Lewis Watts, age 18 of Lexington, Va. A junior at Lylburn Downing High School he plays the bass drums in the band, makes better than average grades, "pitches" softball and is active in other sports. Thats nothing unusual for a high school boy except that Lewis Watts has no arms. Lewis, 18, was born without them. The growth of tissue stopped at the shoulders. But he has "never felt sorry" for himself, determining many years ago to live a life as near normal as possible.

Gets A Toe Hold

His legs and feet have been trained to perform the many tasks necessary to daily living that a normal boy does with his hands and arms. "He can write better than I", says his principal, U. B. Broadneaux. "In fact, he is one of the highest standing pupils in the junior class, at Lyborn Downing High School.

Lewis writes by gripping a pencil or pen between his big toe and the one next to it on his right foot. He holds the paper steady with his left foot.

In addition to writing flawlessly in "longhand" he has become quite good at lettering and prepares posters advertising games of his junior league soft ball team, the "Wildcats". He also does sign painting.

Bats With Foot

He "pitches" occasionally for the softball team. When on the mound, he eases the toes on his right foot under the ball, balances it on top of his toes and whips it toward the batter. Last summer, he missed a shut out by just one run. The previous summer, he pitched two no hit games. With his foot he bats, cleans his teeth, pitches horse shoes, and with his lovely voice he sings in the church choir, the school glee club, and has his own radio show. Lewis is active in several other sports besides softball. He has served as extra point kicker for the high school football team. He hopes to go to college to continue his musical training upon graduation from

FOREWORD

By President David D. Jones

Again this year, the Homemaking Institute will allow the college to emphasize the importance of Home-Life Education. Utilizing the institute theme—"The Nation's Most Precious Resource—Its Children"—we shall take advantage of the opportunity to implement the general education of our students in the important area of home and family living. Fortunately for us, the functional character of our curriculum enables us to do this by exploring a variety of ways of learning—each pointing up the relational aspects of our educational program. This year we hope to achieve the purpose of the institute by a creative combination of formal and informal instruction.

Of greatest importance is the classroom activity, for faculty and students will depart from a discussion of the regular class assignments to engage in a series of discussions, critical analyses, and investigations of specific topics drawn from a carefully planned reading list of contemporary books, materials, and bulletins of information recently published in the area of family living, especially as it relates to child life. While each instructor will approach the study and discussion from an orientation which is most appropriate to his own subject field, these need not be related to or an outgrowth of previous classroom assignments. In other words, the Institute Week will represent a "Stop Day' from regular class routine or procedure. The point to be remembered is that the students will be approaching the study of the theme from a number of angles and against the backdrop of a variety of experiences. Both the field trips and the workshops will have rich meaning only as the students see operating in them the cross currents of thoughts and interpretation which have been inspired by the reading and class discussion.

Aside from the information, understandings, and insights to be gained from an examination of the topics, the institute will illustrate a method or way of working highly suggestive of the type of creative planning and interpersonal association which we covet for all families in solving the problems of their individual members—particularly the parents and children in the home.

Thomas B. Reynolds Announces For Com.

Thomas B. Reynolds was born and reared in Guilford County, and has lived his entire life here. He resides at Route 1, Climax, in Clay Township, where he successfully operates a tobacco, grain and cattle farm. He is a member of Tabernacle Methodist Church, and is also a Mason, being a member of Greensboro Lodge No. 76. Served on the Draft Board No. 41, Civil Service, Greensboro from January 1953 to February, 1954.

He has served for the past eleven years as deputy sheriff and court officer of Guilford County, and only recently submitted his resignation to be effective March 31, 1954. Mr. Reynolds is also a successful business man and for twenty-two years was a partner and manager of the Julian Milling Company at Julian, North Carolina. He has always been active in the affairs of the Democratic Party, and for twenty years has served as a precinct chairman of Clay Township.

Mr. Reynolds is a widower, his wife having died in Aug. 1952. He has four children: Worth Reynolds, a World War II veteran, and three daughters, Mrs. George McNeeley, who lives near Gethsemane Church in Center Grove Township, Mrs. Thomas Gibson, a nurse at Cone Memorial Hospital, and Mrs. Gurney Bowman. Mr. Reynolds is fifty-five years of age.

Reynolds' Statement

It is my purpose to be a candidate for one of the three vacancies on the Guilford County Board of Commissioners, subject to the action of the Primary of the Democratic party on May 29.

I have been a farmer and interested in the agricultural development of the county for many years. It is my feeling, and I believe the feeling of a great many citizens of this county, that the rural section of the county should have some representation on the Board of County Commissioners. It is in response to this feeling that I have decided to become a candidate for the Board of Commissioners. It is also my feeling that the revaluation program of the present Board of Commissioners was both unnecessary and unwise, and has resulted in an unfair shifting of the burden of taxation to the disadvantage of the farmers and of the small home owner generally. I believe that all citizens should be treated fairly and given a square deal, not only the big business man but also the small business man, the wage earners, and the farmers of Guilford County.

I believe in economy in government, and I do not think governmental economy was observed by the expenditure of about $300,000.00 of the county's money in the revaluation program, largely for the purpose of bringing in outside people to place a value upon the property of the people of Guilford County. I am firmly convinced that Guilford County can be efficiently operated with a great deal more economy.

I feel that a public office is a public trust and that a public servant is the servant of all the people and not their master. I shall therefore insist that all county employees deal with the public with courtesy and helpfulness.

I have always believed in and been a supporter of good schools and progress in the field of education. As a member of the Board of Commissioners, I shall continue my interest and support of good schools.

It is my intention to make an aggressive campaign, during the progress of which I shall have more to say regarding the issues above suggested.

My record is open for public approval. Your support will be appreciated. Vote for the man of your choice. I'll still be your friend.

YWCA MEMBERSHIP DRIVE TO BEGAN APRIL 11-25

The Susie B. Dudley Branch of the YWCA is launching its eighth Annual Membership Drive beginning April 11-25. The goal of the drive this year is to have every woman and girl become a member of the Y. Throughout the eight years of its existence the Y has grown in many areas—it has increased its membership; and more activities of all types are being offered for the Greensboro community.

In the field of interest groups, the following classes are offered: Ceramics, Bridge, Beginners Spanish, Drawing and Sketching, Dramatics Workshop, German Instruction, Interior Decorating, Adult Social Dance, Public Speaking, Slimnastics, Knitting and Crocheting, and Flower Groups.

The YWCA belongs to everyone. As a member you are entitled to participation in program activities of the local association; you are affiliated with a community organization which through its long history has become a recognized center for friendliness, recreation, education, and service, for young women.

Under the very efficient and capable leadership of Miss Lamitsoi Bright-Davies, Miss Gwendolyn Finn, and a host of volunteer workers the Dudley Branch is furnishing wholesome recreation and fellowship for all age groups. It is constantly becoming a most vital part of the community.

The committee responsible for over-all planning of launching the membership drive include, Mes. Pauline Donnell, chairman, Mary Lee Williams, Mildred Mayes, Hortense Shoffner, R. E. McNair, Mary Gilmore, Wilhelminia Foy, Julia Lee, Bernice Norwood, Geraldine Florence, Catherine McGibony, Lillian Cummings, Ruth Edwards, Angeline Smith, and Miss Magalene Lee.

The Y theme this year is, "We go to church; we go to school; we go to work; we go to the YWCA. Go with us." It is a slogan, that in its association, places the Y as a basic and important part of the community life.

Byron Haworth Seeks Post Left By Rep. Crissman

BYRON HAWORTH

Byron Haworth is forty six years of age, married, and has two children, a daughter and a son.

He was graduated from the Burlington High School in 1924; received his A.B. degree from Guilford College in 1928 and the LLB degree from Duke University Law School in 1934.

He is a member of the Springfield Monthly Meeting of Friends (Quakers) and is now the Clerk of the Springfield Monthly Meeting. He served as Reading Clerk of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends for approximately twelve years. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Southeastern Section of the American Friends Service Committee and a member of the Executive Committee of the Friends Committee on National Legislation.

He began practicing law in 1934 in High Point as an associate member of the law firm of Dalton, Turner and Dickson. He is now the senior member of the law firm of Haworth, Haworth and Walker. He was judge of the High Point Juvenile Court for two years and Prosecuting Attorney of the High Point Municipal Court for two years. He served as chairman of the High Point Democratic Executive Committee from 1942 until 1948.

Mr. Haworth is a former school teacher, having taught three years in the Greensboro Senior High School. He was also Alumni Secretary of Guilford College for a short period of time.

He is a member of the High Point and North Carolina Bar Association, a Mason, a Woodman of the World, and a member of the American Business Club. He is a member of and secretary of the Salvation Army Board of Directors and a member of the Board of Directors of the High Point United Fund.

Statement By Byron Haworth

"For the past several days I have received many calls from fellow Democrats who represent a large number of the voting precincts in Guilford County, including the Greensboro area, to urge me to become a candidate for the North Carolina State Legislature.

During the six years I was party chairman, these same Democratic and party leaders worked with me, shoulder to shoulder, loyally and unselfishly, to promote the cause of the Democratic Party. I have therefore decided to become a candidate for the North Carolina House of Representatives recently vacated by the Honorable Walter E. Crissman, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held Saturday, May 29.

Having lived in Guilford County for twenty six years, four years as a student at Guilford College, three years as a teacher in the Greensboro Senior High School, and nineteen years as a practicing attorney in High Point, I desire to utilize my time and experience by continuing the high standard of capable and unselfish legislative service set by former legislators of High Point, Walter E. Crissman and O. Arthur Kirkman.

If nominated and elected to this office I shall give conscientious, serious, and careful consideration to matters affecting the people of our state and county. My final decision and vote on all matters of importance will reflect not only my considered and deliberate judgment but also the advice and counsel of our duly elected Senator and Representatives from Guilford County and any and all other citizens of the county who express to me a desire to be heard.

It is my belief that the duly elected representatives of the people of the State of North Carolina, and the County of Guilford, should transact the public's business in the open and not in secret. Any law now on the statute books or any law conceived in the future which does violence to this principal of democratic government will have my vigorous opposition.

If nominated and elected as one of Guilford's four representatives it shall be my purpose and policy to approach and dispose of all problems and matters fairly and impartially to the best interest of all our people and in such manner as to reflect credit on our county and its citizens."

Clerk Joseph P. Shore Announces For Re-Election

Joseph P. Shore, clerk of Guilford County Superior Court has announced for re-election in the forthcoming primary. So far Mr. Shore has no opposition and it is doubtful that anyone else will enter the contest as the records show, Joe Shore has done a magnificient job and is continuing to do so.

Mr. Shore is a member of Westmnister Presbyterian Church; member of Greensboro and North Carolina Bar Associations and the North Carolina State Bar; past president of the Young Democratic Club of Guilford County; past treasurer of the Young Democratic Club of North Carolina; past president of North Carolnia Clerks' Association; member of Civitan Club of Greensboro; member of Guilford Lodge 656, Masonic Order; Shriner and is married to the former Mary Elizabeth Coble; have three children, Betty Jo, Edward Eugene and Elizabeth Ann.

Mr. Shore was appointed clerk on August 25, 1940, after the death of Judge A. Wayland Cooke. He was elected the first time in 1942, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Cooke. Prior to that time, he served as Deputy Clerk, having worked in evey department in the office. He was born in Forsyth County in 1911 and moved to Guilford County in 1919.

Statement By Mr. Shore

In announcing my candidacy for re-election as Clerk of Superior Court of Guilford County, I cite the record of my administration. The office of the Clerk is a public trust, encumbered with continuing responsibilities. I have endeavored at all times to comply with the Statutes of North Carolina defining my duties, and at the same time to render as efficient, prompt and courteous service to the public as possible. Maintenance of records and documents is an important function of the office, and diligent care has been taken in this connection. The office of Clerk is a judicial one, calling for determination of matters of law, always involving important results to those having business with the Clerk's office. In such matters, I have tried to follow the mandates of the law, in addition to serving the interests of the people of this country. In my opinion, the services rendered by the Clerk's office are of significance to every citizen, and it has been my purpose to afford these services to all of the people of this county.

I hope that the electrate will see fit to re-nominate me, and if I am re-elected, I pledge again my best efforts to the job.

ETTA MOTEN, MEZZO-CONTRALTO, ACTRESS AND LECTURER TO APPEAR

On Friday, April 2nd, Miss Etta Moten, renowned concert artist, will appear in the Bennett College Chapel at 8:00 p.m. for the Imperial Court, Daughters of Isis, Imperial Project.

Miss Moten has combined her singing with acting and lecturing. She has appeared in musical comedies as well as dramatic productions to radio from New York, Chicago and San Francisco, to Hollywood where it may be remembered that she introruced the song "Carioca" in the picture "Flying Down to Rio"; to Brazil, Argentine and Uruguay.

As "Bess" in George Gershwin's revival of "Porgy and Bess", she toured the United States and Canada. Recently she returned from a tour of West Africa, Europe and England, where she gave song recitals in concert halls and for the British Broadcasting Company.

As a singer of spirituals, it must seem that Miss Molten is unsurpassed. Such pathos, such prayerfulness, and on occasions such humor as she throws into her singing of these songs, is memorable.

REV. CARL KING SPEAKS AT BENNETT COLLEGE

Speaking at Bennett College vesper services on March 1, Rev. Carl King, of Salisbury, N. C., declared that people must have a task which will give them something meaningful to do in their lives.

Rev. King, executive secretary of the Board of Education of the Western North Carolina Methodist Conference, spoke on "Finding The Trail of Life".

People must find a great cause to work for to discover the worthwhile trail in life, Reverend King said, and Christianity is such a cause.

"One must always find a task which will give him something meaningful to do", he pointed out, "something which will challenge the best he has to give."

Those who seek and find a way to serve, he asserted, will have found the worthwhile trail of life.

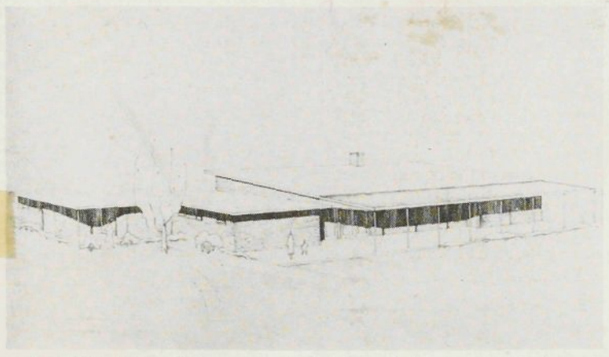
College Organizes Alumnae Chapters Over Broad Area



Architect's drawing of the nursery school to be erected and furnished in the summer months. The school will accommodate twenty-five children, provide opportunities for parent education, and for participation by students majoring in home economics, elementary education, and psychology.

BENNETT COLLEGE PLANS NURSERY SCHOOL

It is particularly fitting that in this issue of the Bennett Builder, which is dedicated to our graduates, that we should also be announcing from the College the proposed Nursery School, which is to be erected on the campus, and will be ready for use in September, 1953, at the opening of the school term. It is expected that the Nursery School will be largely made up of children of faculty people, children of our graduates in the local community, and a limited number of community children. The Nursery School, to be known as the Children's House, will be located on the southwest corner of the College campus.

Through the years it has become more and more evident that the field of Nursery School Education is an area where Bennett College can offer a definite contribution. There is an urgent need for workers with children in the Nursery School field, but more than that, all of our students need to see and understand child life. The Nursery School will serve four purposes. It will give the children who come to the school a good start in child care. It will train a group of interested persons in the maintenance and direction of a Nursery School. It will call the attention of our students to the importance of child life, and it will also set a pattern for a large area of our state and region for those who will be trying to make a contribution in this field.

ALUMNAE CHAPTERS ORGANIZED

Important in Bennett's on-going program of progress, is the recent effort on the part of the College to organize its graduates into alumnae chapters over a wide geographical area. President David D. Jones is receiving word from many such centers giving the plan of organization of the alumnae chapter, and the names of the officers. This effort is spearheaded here at the College by Miss Eleanor Barnwell, of the Class of 1949, who is serving as part-time Alumnae Secretary.

Eager to enlist the interesting support of the largest possible number of graduates, Miss Barnwell requests that all alumnae, who have not already done so, should get together and organize formally, so that they may be able to help build a strong future for the College. As a part of this organization is the plan also to have the College participate in the National Association, which is made up of alumni organizations from all of our colleges. It is the hope of the alumnae here in Greensboro that a large number of graduates will return to the campus for the Commencement activities. This will enable the group to present the formal over-all plan of organization at the meeting of the graduates, for your consideration. Plan to be present for all of the activities. In this way the organization will get off to a challenging and satisfactory start.

SENIOR DAY EXERCISES HELD AT BENNETT

"It is the things in which you believe that will largely determine your future careers," Dr. David D. Jones, president, told 93 seniors at the annual Senior Day exercises in Pfeiffer Chapel, here Friday.

"We have to believe in something or in someone," he said, "because in time of trouble — and you will have troubles—you need someone to whom you can turn or some fundamental truth to which you can hold fast. Otherwise, you may crack up."

The seniors who had just been robed in their academic attire by their sophomore "sisters," were told that the cap and gown did not set them apart as superior to other students on the campus or to other persons in their communities.

Dr. Hobart S. Jarrett, chairman of the humanities division, presented the class to the president and announced that twelve seniors were being honored for high scholarship.

Top honors went to Miss Thelma Owens of Johnson City, Tennessee, with a 3½-year average of 2.92. The others in order of their scholastic standing are:

SENIOR DAY EXERCISES HELD AT BENNETT

"It is the things in which you believe that will largely determine your future careers," Dr. David D. Jones, president, told 93 seniors at the annual Senior Day exercises in Pfeiffer Chapel, here Friday.

"We have to believe in something or in someone," he said,

Dear Bennett Graduates:

This word comes as a sincere greeting from the students, faculty, Mrs. Jones and me to the now 1,296 graduates whose names and addresses are presented in this issue of the Bennett Builder. With the graduating class of 1953, we shall have approximately 1,400 graduates of the College as a college for women. With the present student body, this list of alumnae constitutes Bennett's greatest asset.

In the near future, it is our hope that alumnae chapters may be set up in every section of the United States where at least six of our graduates are living in close proximity to each other. Already we are beginning to hear interesting accounts of the working together of these graduates. The Washington Chapter, particularly, has been active and has knit together in close fellowship the graduates who live in Washington. Just recently, an alumnae chapter was formed here in Greensboro. It is our sincere hope that in the very near future we may have 1,400 of the graduates actively engaged in work of the alumnae chapters in behalf of the College.

In sending this word of greetings to you, we send our sincere good wishes for your well-being. Wherever you are, we feel certain that you are facing life with courage and with poise and with hope. Recently, I heard a sermon from Dr. Ralph Sockman in which he talked about how everyone of us is called upon to seek for mastery over the immovables of life. The immovables of life, he said, were pain, loneliness and frustration. These come to all of us. Some of us meet them with more courage than others, but nevertheless, each one of us in our own way can strive to master these common lots of all mankind. Mrs. Jones and I have the sincere hope that the Bennett girls, wherever they are, are striving for mastery with high hope and genuine courage.

Whenever it is convenient, be sure to come back to the campus. It is always a pleasure to welcome you to your Alma Mater.

DAVID D. JONES, President

NINE BENNETT STUDENTS IN "WHO'S WHO"

Names of nine women students at Bennett College are listed in the 1952 edition of the book, "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The Bennett students were included in the book honoring outstanding college students across the nation because of their scholarship, leadership, and contributions to life on campus.

Included among the nine students, all seniors, were the following: Willie Beatrice Cox, Rocky Mount; Lovye Gwendolyn Davis, Cheraw, S. C.: Bercella Elizabeth Lawson, Kinston; Cornelia Marie King, Philadelphia, Pa.; Lyvonne Delcenia Mackel, Natchez, Miss.; Thomasina Marian Martin, Camden, S. C.; Elizabeth Hazel Reese, Tupelo, Miss.; Rebecca Emily Turner, New Orleans, La.; and Kathryn Delores Williams, Ashland, Ky.

CHOIR

The Bennett College Choir, under the direction of Mr. Clarence E. Whiteman, has just been laboriously working to record the choir program which will soon come over the air, over the American Broadcasting Company system. This brings to mind that Bennett College is a member of the United Negro College Fund, which every graduate of Bennett College and every friend of Bennett should support by all the means at his command. This is the tenth year that the United Negro College Fund has run a campaign for the 31 member colleges. Bennett receives approximately $30,000 a year from the United Negro College Fund. This is a little less than 10% of our budget, but it is a considerable lift in meeting the budget. The money which comes from the United Negro College Fund to Bennett College is used for scholarships, so that a large number of girls owe their continuance in college to the United Negro College Fund. It is reasonable, therefore, to urge that every Bennett graduate, and every friend of the College should give his full support to the United Negro College Fund.

NEWS FROM OUR ALUMNAE WANTED

This issue of "The Bennett Builder" is dedicated to the graduates of Bennett College. It carries a complete alphabetical list of our Alums across the nation, giving the names and addresses as we now have them in the Records Office. In order to help us to do a better job on where the graduates are and what they are doing, a questionnaire is included on the back page of this bulletin. Please take a moment and fill this out, so that we may have up-to-date news of all of the Bennett graduates. Some reports have come into the College recently, letting us know about many of your activities. A number of recent graduates are studying in colleges and universities like Oberlin, Western Reserve, Syracuse, Fisk, Meharry, and Atlanta University. Last year's seniors have secured many teaching positions in North Carolina, Florida, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York. Some Bennett grads have reported recent marriages and recent births. We know that we should have much more news of this nature to include in a later issue of The Builder, when Bonnie Bennett Reports on Where our Alums are . . . and What they're doing . . . Help Bonnie Bennett do a better job. Send news about yourself and other graduates to the College. In this manner you can help us to correct our mailing list also, so that we may be sure news reaches you promptly. Your Alma Mater needs your help on this!

CHILDREN OF BENNETT GRADUATES CHRISTENED

The Annual Graduate Association Christening took place in the Annie Merner Pfeiffer Chapel on Mother's Day, May 10, 1953. It is traditional at this Service for the Bennett graduates to return to their Alma Mater to have their children christened. Impressive ceremonies were conducted on this occasion when the children of four Bennett grads were baptized. They were as follows: Waddell Eugene Hinnant, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Waddell Hinnant (Ann Barnett, '48); Deborah, and Dianne Scott, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott (Gwendolyn Robinson, '50); Randolph Preston, and Rudolph Clifton Grigsby, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Grigsby (Evelyn Sherrill, '37); Jane Carlynne Bowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bowling (Nan Wright, '33.)

THE BELL SONG

"Ring out the bells of Bennett College!
Let them sound over mountain, hill and plain—
For the sound can't be mistaken,
In each heart it will awaken
A longing to be back in school again."

CELEBRITIES STAFF HOMEMAKING INSTITUTE

An author, a movie actress, a foreign correspondent, and two newspaper executives highlighted the 27th annual Homemaking Institute held at Bennett College March 15-22.

The theme of the week-long meet, which drew in community leaders and students in joint enterprise, was "Achieving Peace Through Creative Experiences."

Keynote speaker at the opening session of the Institute was Ralph Ellison, author of "The Invisible Man" and winner of the 1952 National Book Award for best fiction. Ellison told the Institute meeting: "I know of peace only such as a person who dedicates himself to fiction or art can know it." He declared that "each generation must rediscover the world for itself."

Speaking on March 16, Allan Raymond, foreign correspondent and writer now for Reporter Magazine, said that peace will have to come as an individual matter. "There will be no peace," Raymond declared, "so long as tyranny and slavery exists." The veteran correspondent told the group that peace can come to an individual from a sense of accomplishment of something worth doing.

Motion picture actress Maidie Ruth Gamble, star of "The Well," arrived at Bennett College on March 19 to participate in panel discussions of the Institute theme. Mrs. Norman spoke on the role of films in achieving peace. She is a Bennett College alumna, having graduated here in 1934.

Two other nationally known leaders, G. James Fleming and Miss Mary Esther McWhirter, came to Bennett during the week to speak at the Institute. Fleming is executive editor of the New York Amsterdam News, and Miss McWhirter is director of peace education for children and editor of News Letter of the American Friends Service Committee of Philadelphia, Pa.

During the week all five guest speakers participated in panel discussions and workshops in which students dealt with achieving peace through creative experiences. Workshop projects included such crafts as rug-making, knitting, and leather work. Arts were also included such as the dance, piano, short story writing, verse writing, and many other projects. All projects completed during the week were displayed on March 21 to show the progress made during the Institute.

BENNETT, ALMA MATER, FAIREST

Ever have you stood
Loving sisterhood."

METHODISTS GIVE BENNETT GIFT

COLLEGE STRESSES OFF-CAMPUS WORK

Bennett College students are participating in off-campus work in hospitals, libraries, churches, community centers, and other community training, McClure McCombs, head of the Bennett field studies program, has reported.

Under the program, the students are now receiving practical job experience at L. Richardson Hospital, Carnegie Library, Windsor Community Center, Juvenile Court, in the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., and in church programs in Greensboro.

Students also are participating in community-college sewing, cooking, and play schools under the field studies program. Placements are being made for them in local radio stations, nursery schools, and Salvation Army work.

At the present time, some 15 various local religious, social-civic, economic, and industrial organizations offer about 100 openings for training of Bennett students in community work. Each student has an opportunity to get this field training before graduation from Bennett, McCombs said.

RARE ENGRAVINGS ARE UNVEILED AT BENNETT

A set of 32 engravings done by seventeenth century French artist Gregoire Huret were unveiled in special ceremonies at Bennett College on Palm Sunday, March 29. The set is now on display in Holgate Library.

Known as the "Passion" set, the engravings depict the sequence of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. They are a gift presented to Bennett College by Wellesley Girls' High School of Naini Tal, India, and the set is one of the only two in this country. The other is housed in the New York Public Library.

The engravings came to Bennett from India when the Methodist school for girls was closed. For years, the set hung in an aged brick Easton Chapel, named for Wellesley's second principal in Naini Tal.

Housed in valuable teakwood, the engravings were mounted at the Indian school in panels in six alcoves of Easton Chapel. In writing to Bennett about the engravings, a teacher at Wellesley said that "they were a beautiful asset to the chapel of Wellesley and have a place of affection in the memory of all of us who worshipped there."

The artist Huret completed the beautiful engravings in 1663 and entitled the set "Theatrum Passionis Jesus Christ." As a result of the work, the engraver, a cabinetmaker's son, was made a member of the French art academy.

The early history of how the engravings came to the Indian school is obscure, but they were hung in Easton Chapel not long after the school was organized in 1880. While the school was a Methodist institution, it was supported by government grants from England. When the English withdrew from India, it was decided that the school was no longer needed, and the rising nationalistic feelings of the native Indians caused the English government to close it. It was then that the officials at Wellesley decided to give the engravings to Bennett.

The principal of the school at the time of its abandonment, Miss Ada Marie Kennard, who taught there for 24 years, wrote to Bennett:

"I am very happy that Bennett has the engravings, that are really very valuable, and meant so much to our school for nearly half a century."

Pei-Lee Ho and Lien Yun Chien, freshmen at Bennett College from China add much to the international character of the campus. The faculty and student body include persons from China, Germany, Russia, Japan, Puerto Rico, and the British West Indies.

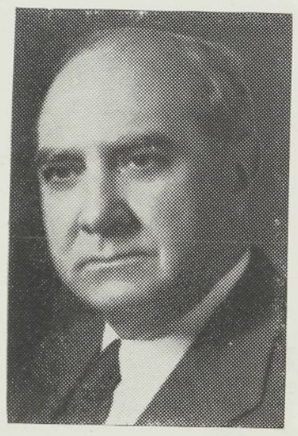
SENIOR DAY EXERCISES HELD AT BENNETT

"It is the things in which you believe that will largely determine your future careers," Dr. David D. Jones, president, told 93 seniors at the annual Senior Day exercises in Pfeiffer Chapel, here Friday.

"We have to believe in something or in someone," he said,



BENNETT COLLEGE PREXY HONORED BY CITY TRUSTEES

A new 12-room Negro elementary school on six acres of land on South Street (off Ashe Street), will be named the David D. Jones School in honor of Dr. Jones, president of Bennett College, according to decision of the school board trustees recently.

Construction is scheduled to begin shortly after July 1 with Edward Loewenstein as architect. It will cost around $350,000.

Dr. Jones was born in the Warnersville area—locality served by the school—and rose to distinction in church and educational work. President of Bennett since 1926, Dr. Jones holds membership in more than a dozen school, library, and church organizations, and is listed in "Who's Who in America."

The new school will replace the present nine-teacher, 300-pupil school whose building has been condemned for use. Plans include widening and paving of South Street. The school came into the system in 1890 when districts were enlarged. It was the second Negro school in the city. Mrs. Gladys Woods is principal.

COLLEGE SISTER SONG

When the world seems to frown on you,
And you can't help from feeling blue,
When you know there's someone there
Who is really going to care,
Never mind what others say or do;
She will love you as a sister would
And I tell you it feels mighty good;
If you lose, if you win,
Loyal through thick and thin.
O! College sisters, here's to you!

ADMISSIONS COUNSELORS KEEP BUSY SCHEDULE

With the work of the Admissions Office well under way, the outlook for next year's Freshman Class is very fine indeed. Miss Eleanor Barnwell, Associate Director of Admissions, since January, is in constant touch with the Counselors throughout the United States. Already the applications received thus far indicate that students will be enrolling in Bennett College on September 10, from a wide geographical area. The fact that the Counselors interest students in the localities where they are, is largely responsible for this spread. This year, as an innovation in the Admissions Program, the Counselors are requested to administer competitive examinations which are intended to serve as a basis for the limited number of regional scholarships which will be awarded to incoming students beginning with the September, 1953, term. Miss Barnwell is a member of the Class of 1949. As the newly appointed Associate Director of Admissions, she comes to the position highly qualified, having graduated with the Master's degree from Syracuse University in New York State, with a major in Educational Guidance. In addition to her responsibility in Admissions, Miss Barnwell is serving as part-time Alumnae Secretary, assisting with the over-all effort in organizing the Alumnae Chapters on a national basis.

THE BENNETT BELL

The Bennett bell has a new hat, but the old melody lingers on. The bell, now a symbol of the Bennett tradition, rings twenty-three times a day, summoning students to classes, meals and special activities, since 1878, five years after the opening of Bennett College. On March 8, a dedicatory service was held on the campus when the two hundred fifty-seven pound bell was housed in a new colonial style tower. President Jones, Reverend J. E. Brower, and Miss Mernelle Martin, recalled the history of the Bennett bell for the audience, and spoke of the many human interest stories which have centered around the Bennett bell and students over a long, historical past. Today's bell ringer, like all of the bell ringers of former days is looked upon with respect by all of the students, for her punctuality and the large part which she plays in the smooth operation of the College's daily schedule.

SENIOR DAY EXERCISES HELD AT BENNETT

"It is the things in which you believe that will largely determine your future careers," Dr. David D. Jones, president, told 93 seniors at the annual Senior Day exercises in Pfeiffer Chapel, here Friday.

"We have to believe in something or in someone," he said, "because in time of trouble — and you will have troubles—you need someone to whom you can turn or some fundamental truth to which you can hold fast. Otherwise, you may crack up."

The seniors who had just been robed in their academic attire by their sophomore "sisters," were told that the cap and gown did not set them apart as superior to other students on the campus or to other persons in their communities.

Dr. Hobart S. Jarrett, chairman of the humanities division, presented the class to the president and announced that twelve seniors were being honored for high scholarship.

Misses Mary E. Ensley, Birmingham, Ala.; Mary Head, McMinnville, Tenn.; Gwendolyn Freeman, Kansas City, Mo.; Sue Simmons, Robbins, N. C.; Janice Hightower, Binghamton, N. Y.; Yvonne Ireland, Greensboro; Shirley Diggs, Baltimore; Jean Richmond, Mebane, N. C.; Juanita Wright, Lumberton, N. C.; Barbara Williams, Orangeburg, S. C., and Etta Woodfork, Reidsville, N. C.

A magnolia tree was planted in front of Merner Hall and dedicated to Dr. George M. Bell of Kingston, Pa., field representative of the college for nearly 20 years. Miss Setaria Watson of Detroit made the dedication address. The annual Senior Day banquet and dance followed in the Student Union.

MRS. KATHERINE LYNN AND DR. DAVID D. JONES

Woman To Get Degree ---40 Years Late

On May 26, a graying Negro woman will receive her degree from Bennett College—more than 40 years late.

In 1911, Mrs. Katherine Donnell Lynn of 300 North Luther Street, completed her first two years at Bennett. It took 41 years more—interrupted by a teaching career, caring for an invalid mother, and raising a family of three—before she could finish the other two years.

Mrs. Lynn returned to Bennett in January, 1951, to complete her degree requirements after first seeing her three children safely through college. Her two daughters both attended Bennett and graduated with honors a few years ago.

Had Tight Schedule

Mrs. Lynn sandwiched her Bennett studies into a tight schedule that kept her on the go from 6 a. m. to midnight. While going to school at Bennett, she taught as supply teacher in the city school system and at the night school for veterans at Dudley High School, and ran a household.

Her teaching work took up the greater part of her days and nights. She went to Bennett from 3:30 to 5 p. m. on week days and Saturday mornings. She did her studying during mealtimes, free periods at school, and by burning the midnight oil.

The handsome Negro woman has had a craving for education ever since she got her first taste of the "three R's" at a Greensboro elementary school, which she attended along with Dr. David D. Jones, Bennett's president.

In 1925, she married R. O. L. Lynn, and moved to Selma, Ala., where her husband took over as president of the Alabama Lutheran College.

In Alabama, Mrs. Lynn raised her family, managed to do some teaching and studying, and wrote a book, "Everyday Living," widely used today as an aide in teaching illiterate adults how to read and write. She also had time to infuse ambition and a desire for knowledge into her children.

Modest About Success

Although she is very modest about her own success, Mrs. Lynn is proud of her children and their accomplishments, Daughter Natalie, 25, has her master's degree from Howard University and is doing research at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, and Daughter Rosalind, 23, is a research instructor at Pennsylvania State College, and working for her doctor's degree. Robert Lynn, 21, was an outstanding chemistry student at the University of Illinois.

In 1948, when her husband was named dean of Immanuel Lutheran College here, and the Lynns began making plans to move back to Greensboro, "it was like a dream come true." Mrs. Lynn recalls. "Greensboro has always been my home, and Bennett my heart."

After she moved back to Greensboro, Mrs. Lynn decided to complete her work toward a bachelor's degree in psychology. "It was something I had waited for so long, and this was my chance," she explains.

The work was hard, for teaching methods and approaches had changed. She worked so hard at times, and stayed "so close to her typewriter" that she would have dreams about working on another term paper or essay. But she persisted. "My heart was in it and I loved it. And everybody was so kind to me, Dr. Jones, the faculty, and the students."

Now her red letter day is not far off. She's already completed her degree requirements and is waiting only for graduation day. Of course, she isn't sitting back and taking life easy; she's still teaching school, both day and night.

Atlanta, Ga Sociologist At Bennett

GREENSBORO — "We are beginning to realize that the family must be reconstructed and reinterpreted in the light of the new requirements and the new demands being forced on its members," Dr. M. C. Hill, Atlantea sociologist, declared here Friday.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the closing session of the 29th annual Home-Making Institute at Bennett College, Dr. Hill, chairman of the department of sociology and anthropology at Atlanta University, pointed out that activities that once centered in the home, such as production of food and clothing, family recreation, religious instruction and the like, have been shifted to great factories, canneries, commercialized recreational centers, vocational schools and Sunday Schools.

"The individual now looks outside his home to satisfy his interests," he declared. "The individual is becoming an atomized and individualized fragment of his family rather than a part of a unified whole.

"Young people themselves must explore and discover the future design of family living. They must develop deeper and more penetrating insights into problems of individual and family adjustment. They must acquire more knowledge and skills for getting along in marriage, for the managing and financing of the family economy, and for adjusting the family to the changing mores of the community."
